Space Lab 'Go' Given by LBJ

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson today ordered the defence department to build a $1.5 billion orbiting space laboratory to be launched in 1968 with two men aboard.

In a statement read at his news conference, Johnson said the manned orbiting laboratory (MOL) "will bring us new knowledge about what man is able to do in space" and "will enable us to relate that ability to the defence of the nation."

As presently conceived, the MOL will be a big cylinder about the size of a house trailer in which two men will live and perform experiments in space for two weeks to a month.

Johnson again committed the United States never to put weapons of mass destruction into orbit. He said "we believe the heavens belong to all the people" of the world.

The MOL on which the U.S. is now proceeding is intended to test man's ability to do useful work in space.

It will be launched by a Titan 3-C rocket, the most powerful booster yet developed by the United States. The crew will ride into space aboard a modified Gemini spacecraft developed by National Aeronautics and Space Administration for its current pre-lunar flight program.

The Gemini spacecraft will be attached to one end of the laboratory and the two will go into orbit together. Once in orbit, the two crew members will crawl from the Gemini into the lab. When the time comes for them to return to earth, they will crawl back into the Gemini, cut loose and descend the way NASA's Gemini pilots do.

Final decision to go ahead with the MOL had been long delayed. The project first was initiated in 1963 when the defence department abandoned its Dyna-Soar space glider project. But until today it had never got out of the planning and design stage.

The military is particularly interested in finding out just what men can do over long periods aboard a spacecraft. Some of the current Gemini experiments are designed to that end.

Some of the military questions are concerned with man's ability to spot, identify, and track other spacecraft, which might be hostile, and with his ability to identify, place, and photograph structures such as rail lines, cities, and air fields on the surface of the earth.

Eventually, experts have said, the U.S. must have the ability to approach, inspect, and if necessary, capture or destroy enemy spacecraft.

The president said unmanned flights to test launching, recovery, and other fundamental aspects of the MOL system will begin late next year or early in 1967.

The first manned launch of a fully-equipped MOL is scheduled for 1968. Johnson said this flight with men aboard will be folowed in the same year by five others.

Astronauts Whirl To New Records

Eight-Day Flight Looks Sure

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The Gemini 5 astronauts, their beards itchy and their cramped space cabin cluttered, set a U.S. space endurance record today and took aim on the Soviet-held world record for a single flight.

They eclipsed the 97-hour, 59-minute record of Gemini 4 at 11:59 a.m. EDT. They have a go-ahead to pass the world record of nearly five days at 9:06 a.m. Thursday.

Comfortable in their cramped, weightless quarters, the two spacemen appeared sure to ride the skies the full eight days.

SPOTS WAKE

Pilot Charles Conrad Jr., a navy lieutenant - commander spotted the wake of the aircraft carrier Lake Champlain which is scheduled to recover the astronauts from the sea Sunday.

Conrad's excited voice announced: "He's at 12 o'clock. I can see him turning. Bigger than heck. We got him in sight this time."

"Roger, I knew an old carrier pilot could find the carrier," said capsule communicator James A. McDivitt. "Very good."

Conrad made his first carrier landing in June, 1955, on the deck of the Lake Champlain. He'll be aiming for it again when the eight-day flight ends.

Command pilot L. Gordon Cooper Jr. long before had logged enough hours in space to claim the world record in that department. His wife, Trudy, relayed her congratulations to him in space.

The world record for a single flight is held by Soviet cosmonaut Valery Bykovsky who orbited the earth for 119 hours and six minutes beginning June 14, 1963.

Their beards itchy and their small space cabin showing some of the clutter of four days of occupancy, the astronauts discussed with doctors on the

Gemini Twins Take Spy Films, Soviet Claim

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A Russian newspaper suggested today the two U.S. astronauts aboard Gemini 5 may be busy taking spy pictures of Cuba, North Viet Nam and Communist China.

Red Star, official organ of the defence ministry, made the charge to support its claim that the United States space program was heavily geared to military needs.

"American propaganda praises the scientific aims of the Gemini program and tries to conceal its military character, but these attempts are futile," Red Star said. "The real purpose of the program is obvious."

Red Star said long-range cameras aboard could provide detailed photographs of cities, railways, ports and ships, and the astronauts were also equipped to "carry out visual intelligence."

Meanwhile, President Johnson today offered the Soviet Academy of Science an invitation to observe the October launching of the Gemini 6 space capsule.

The president told a press conference that he had directed space administrator James E. Webb to invite the academy to send a high-level representative to the space shot—one of whose goals is a rendezvous with an orbiting satellite.

Johnson said he hoped the Russians would accept the invitation, and that their representative would get a warm welcome.

Damage has not yet been estimated. The Diamantis did not break her journey for repairs.

U.S. JET HIT

Mobile Missile Strikes Again

SAIGON (AP)—A U.S. spokesman announced today a U.S. Navy Phantom jet was downed by what appeared to be a surface-to-air missile Tuesday about 90 miles south of Hanoi. One crew member is presumed dead, the other missing.

It was in the same general area Tuesday that North Vietnamese gunners felled a U.S. Air Force F-105 Thunderchief, one of a four-plane force attacking an airfield under construction 20 miles west of the city of Thanh Hoa. The helicopter rescued the Thunderchief pilot.

The spokesman said the Phantom, a supersonic plane from the 7th Fleet carrier Midway, was hit near Thanh Hoa.

The downing was the first indication that Communist anti-aircraft missiles have been moved as far south as Thanh Hoa. It seemed likely that the missile was fired from a mobile launcher.

One parachute was seen after the Phantom was hit, but search and rescue operations failed to locate the American airman. The other crew member is presumed dead, the spokesman said.

Two other American planes have been downed in the last month by missiles which Soviet technicians are presumed to have installed in North Viet Nam. U.S. officials think Russian personnel are helping to man the missile launchers.

A U.S. Air Force Phantom was downed by a missile northwest of Hanoi July 24, and a navy Skyhawk was shot down Aug. 12 about 50 miles south-southwest of the North Vietnamese capital.

Scientist, Student Disappear

BERLIN (UPI)—British authorities announced today two Britons have disappeared in East Germany.

The disappearance of one of them—a scientist who speaks Russian in addition to English, French and possibly other languages—triggered a hunt for clues in Britain, Paris and Berlin.

The scientist, identified as Arthur Wilbraham, 29 of Plymouth, vanished Friday and was reported arrested by Communist police.

British authorities said they could not confirm the arrest report.

The second missing Briton, John Thwaites, a 19-year-old youth studying in Vienna, traveled into East Berlin 10 days ago and did not return.

In London, the newspaper Evening Standard said Wilbraham was a member of the Anglo-French teams of experts working on the Concord supersonic jet airliner both nations are developing jointly.

British officials here said they believed there was no connection between the two disappearances.

Navy Switches To Gas Turbines For Destroyers

OTTAWA (CP) — The navy will make a revolutionary switch to gas turbine from steam engines in its new destroyers, informed sources said today.

The gas turbines will provide higher maximum speed in the four destroyers, scheduled for construction between 1967 and 1970, and for much faster attainment of high speed in submarine chases.

Sources said the change will add about $5,000,000 to the capital cost of the $142,000,000 four-ship program but that this increase will be more than offset in the long run by lower operational and manpower costs.

The gas turbines are smaller and lighter than steam plants and thus will allow more space for fuel and, consequently, for more sea time without refuelling. Working conditions will improve — there will be no steam boilers to clean — and there will be less heat and noise.

The switch to gas turbines will mean a delay of about six months in the start of construction of the first destroyer—to about mid-1967—but there will be no delay with the other three.

With a gas turbine engine, the destroyer propellers will be turned by gas vapors instead of steam passing through turbine blades.

ARSON RING REVEALED WITH QUEBEC ARRESTS

QUEBEC (CP)—Two men were charged with arson and conspiracy to commit arson here Tuesday in what Quebec justice department sources called the beginning of action against one of the biggest arson rings in Canada.

Charged were Alfred Cyr, 44, a merchant now held on a commissioner's warrant, and Gerard Arsenault, 35, a salesman.

The charges arise from a fire which destroyed a mobile canteen in suburban Ancienne Lorette in 1962.

"Six or seven" other persons are being held under fire commissioner's warrants.

Quebec justice department sources said a $5,000 insurance policy was paid after the fire in connection with which Cyr and Arsenault have been charged, and high premiums were paid for other fires the inquiry is investigating.

Court Watchdog Sought by MLA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ernie LeCours, Social Credit MLA for Delta, said today he is seeking money to finance an organization called Defenders Unlimited to watch over lower courts in British Columbia.

He called for 1,000 members of the public to contribute $1 each to set up the organization.

If the money is collected by Sept. 21, he said, he would contribute $500 to the fund, but will drop the idea if less than 1,000 people are interested.

At the last session of the legislature, Mr. LeCours sharply criticized B.C.'s courts.

"I received a large volume of mail in support of my contentions," he said.

"The writers included professional people, ex-policemen and newspapermen and most of them supported my suggestion that a citizens' organization be formed to keep an eye on the lower courts and provide assistance and guidance when required.

If the money comes in, he said, it would be used to organize a central group of laymen with local units in various areas of B.C.

"Volunteers will be sought to keep in touch with local courts and supply any required information to the central body," he said.

"You might say the basic idea of the organization would be to make the public more aware of the operations of our courts and also make our courts more aware of the public. I believe this will ensure a better quality of justice for all our citizens."

Chemical Blasts Rock City

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) —Dozens of violent explosions ripped through a Du Pont Chemical Corp. plant five miles from downtown Louisville today.

Authorities evacuated everyone from a two-mile radius in fear a huge tank of vinyl chloride would explode.

Jefferson County police said at least one person was killed. A fire captain said four persons were killed and 17 injured, but this could not be confirmed.

The explosions sent towering mushroom clouds of black smoke into the air, shattered dozens of windows in buildings and could be heard 10 miles away. Periodic blasts could be heard for more than two hours.

WITHDREW

All available emergency equipment from the city and county was rushed to the scene shortly after the first series of blasts, at about 10 a.m.

But the explosions continued to rock the area and authorities ordered the firemen and police to withdraw.

Police ordered the evacuation of everyone within a two-mile area of the plant in fear that liquid vinyl chloride would explode. Estimates of the tank's capacity ranged up to a half-million gallons.

Commercial air traffic was warned to bypass the area.

An Old Seadog Learns New Trixie

Trixie, a lop-eared cocker spaniel, was safe home today after spending 20 hours alone at sea.

Still trying to find her land legs, the two-year-old pet was reunited Tuesday night with the five pups she last saw Saturday.

It was only by a stroke of luck that Trixie was ever able to see her 10-week-old family again.

On Saturday she tumbled into the water while sailing with owners, George and Dora Storrie, of 1871 Allenby, Oak Bay.

They were on a cruise from Sidney to their summer cottage on Pender Island at the time.

It wasn't until the 19-foot outboard, the Sir Bouncealot, reached Pender that they noticed Trixie missing.

Fearing the worst, they searched the Fairfax Point area for three hours.

There was no sign of Trixie.

Tuesday they inserted a newspaper advertisement in the hope that Trixie might have paddled to shore.

It was a very different story they heard from the couple who answered the ad.

Dr. Robert Talbot, aboard the pleasure cruiser "Tera," found Trixie Sunday five miles south of the point where she was lost—floating on a raft.

Through his binoculars he spotted the black and white dog sitting forlornly on the raft, five miles from the nearest land.

Since then, the family, who are visiting Victoria from Seattle, have fed and cared for Trixie.

In return for saving the family pet, Mr. Storrie is presenting the Talbot family with one of the pups.

SHERIFF SUIT NO GAME, LAD CAPTURES BURGLAR

LONDON (AP)—An 11-year-old boy has been praised in court for playing sheriff and actually getting his man.

The boy is Barry Youngs of nearby Clacton-on-Sea.

"He found a real crime and tackled it like a real sheriff," prosecutor Thomas Lavelle told the court Tuesday.

It began when, dressed up in his sheriff's uniform, complete with badge, Barry spotted three men breaking into a house.

First, he went home to tell his mother to telephone police, giving her the address of the house the trio entered. Then he hid in some bushes near the house. As the three men came out of the house, they split up. Barry couldn't keep track of them all—because he had no deputies—so he followed one of them.

"Barry trailed the villain," said the prosecutor. "He trailed him for over two miles, hiding behind bushes and trees, telephone boxes, booths and slipping in and out of shop doorways."

BARRY
. . . relentless

The man must have seen the sheriff trailing him, for he broke into a run. Barry ran too, but was soon outdistanced.

"Staying after his man, he went to the police station and told the detectives there he could spot the man. They put him in a car, toured the seafront—and Barry saw him."

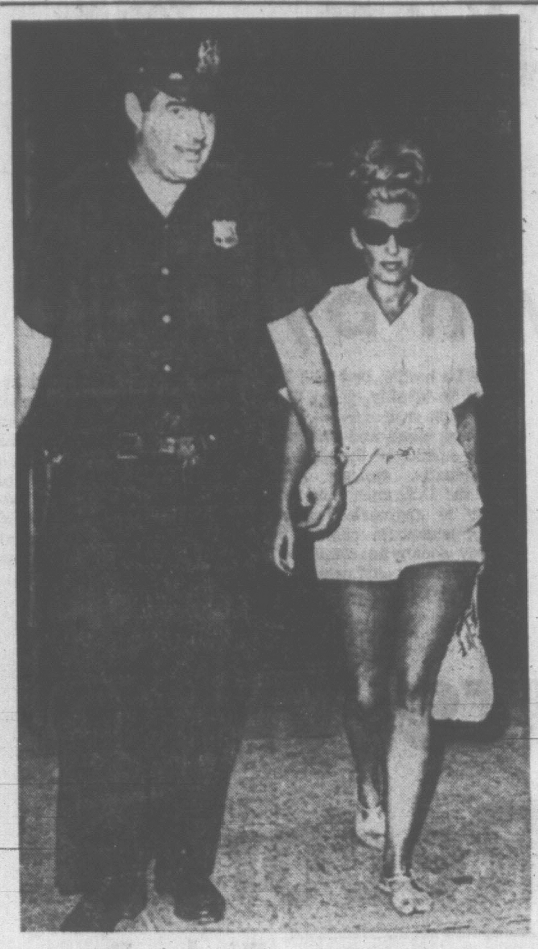
In court was Raymond Brent, 22, who, the Royal Navy said, was absent without leave. Brent pleaded guilty to breaking into the house but said he stole nothing. He was put on probation and held until the navy comes to get him.

Of the young sheriff the prosecutor summed up:

"It was very public-spirited of this boy and I would like to say how much we appreciate what he did."

Said Barry:

"It was a pity I didn't have my handcuffs with me. I just dream of making an arrest."



Surprised blonde leaving courthouse.

COMPUTER NABS ERRANT MOTORIST

NEW YORK (UPI)—It was a delightful day and the attractive blonde in the tight white shorts was tooling along Grand Central Expressway en route to the beach.

She was well within the speed limit and had nary a second thought about the police car stopped along the roadside. That is until a cruiser darted up beside her blue sports car and the patrolman at the wheel motioned her to pull over.

Mrs. Gloria Placenta was indignant. Her outrage increased when a busload of newsmen and photographers wheeled up to watch radio patrolman Benjamin C. Fishman arrest her for passing a red light—on May 5, 1964.

The New York police department's computer made another arrest.

Mrs. Placenta was the victim of Operation Corral, a new police technique which uses a Univac 490 computer to spot stolen and uninsured cars and scofflaws for whom warrants have been issued.

Within the course of 27 seconds and the space of 900 feet, the Queens housewife had her licence plate number monitored, electronically checked and found to be on the wanted list. The rest was routine police work.

"What am I—some kind of criminal?" the angry housewife asked when Fishman told her a warrant was out for her arrest for failing to appear in court on her traffic violation.

"It's a good thing I have steady nerves. You can drop dead from a thing like this," she growled as police prepared to drive her to a station house to be booked.

LONDON—Christopher Lloyd says that smaller spiders are more tasty—"larger ones, the bathtub variety, are rather bitter."

"I much prefer the smaller ones," said the 31-year-old real estate man. "You crunch them up, and when you do, you get just the hint of flavor. They aren't bad at all."

Lloyd said he read somewhere several years ago that spiders were edible.

"Then, one day I was entertaining some children at tea and a big spider crawled out of the salad," he continued.

He reached forward, picked up the spider and ate it.

"It gave the children a big laugh," he said, "and now it's become something of a gimmick."

LONDON—David Johnstone, a 37-year-old bachelor, wants to cross the Atlantic Ocean in a rowboat. He placed an ad in today's London Times for five willing oarsmen to help him.

"Will five fortitudinous oarsmen over 28 join me to plan and engage in second-ever trans-Atlantic rowing voyage?" Johnstone's ad asked.

Johnstone, who says he is a journalist, said that two men rowed the Atlantic in 1897, making the trip in 55 days.

"I want mature men to join me in this venture because it is likely to be physically and psychologically shattering," Johnstone said.

Underhill has hired eight girls, all 18 or 19 years old.

LONDON—Four Scottish members of Parliament said Tuesday they will boycott this year's House of Commons Christmas card because it depicts a Scottish king paying homage to an English king.

The MPs—all Labor supporters—claim it is unsuitable for sending to their constituents.

The card, which commemorates the 700th anniversary of the foundation of Parliament, shows the 13th-century Scottish king, Alexander III, greeting the English king.

One of the protesting MPs, Neil Carmichael, said he has written to the Speaker of the House complaining about the design.

Scotland and England were separated countries until 1603 when James VI of Scotland became James I of both countries.

GUILFORD, Conn.—Patrolman Nicholas Heery, sent to investigate reports of ghostly doings at a deserted farm house, opened the front door and a strange figure swooped at him, knife in hand.

The figure was a dummy, one of several in the house. All were made from sheets rigged on wires strung to make the dummies plunge down stairs and lunge through doorways.

The report of strange happenings came from Frederick Bennett, the owner, after he had stopped by the old house to see if vandals had damaged it.

Bennett found a mannequin lying in state in the living room, a bobby-trapped kitchen, and one bedroom rigged so that a person outside could pull wires to raise the lid off a chest, lift the sheet off the bed and jangle the bedsprings.

Bennett and Heery agreed the haunting was probably the work of ingenious youngsters.

SPOT MISSILE

In their 62nd orbit as they sped over the U.S. Pacific coast, the astronauts observed a Minuteman missile blast off from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif. They also successfully spotted one Tuesday.

Conrad's manner was peppy in copying the details of the day's flight plan for Gemini control in Houston. It prompted this exchange:

Mission control: "You guys are sounding better all the time, Pete. You must like it up there."

Conrad: "Well, we're getting used to it."

Conrad explained the problem of the routine tasks:

"We had quite a bit of housekeeping to do, and by the time we got done re-stowing things, well, it was getting pretty late."

The astronauts have to carefully put away whatever they use. Otherwise, it drifts about in the weightless space of the capsule.

DIDN'T SLEEP MUCH

Doctors who keep constant tabs on them from earthly stations around the world are pleased with their condition. But the astronauts don't seem to be getting as much sleep as some flight officials would like.

"Did Gordo (Cooper) go to sleep right after your last Hawaii pass?" a communicator in the Hawaii tracking station asked during one pass.

"He's sort of been catnapping," Conrad replied. "He had a good long . . . naw . . . he had about an hour of very deep sleep in this last orbit.

Hawaii: "And how long was your nap?"

Conrad: "I slept about an hour and a half."

Hawaii: "Pretty good sleep?"

Conrad: "Yeah, I don't remember anything."

Dr. Duane Catterson, night flight surgeon, indicated no cause for concern over the short sleep cycles and said: "Everything is looking satisfactory. The crew is feeling fine."

HOME GARDEN

Now's Perfect Time For Weeding, Sowing

Overcast skies and rain-moistened soil are an ideal combination for a number of garden jobs.

Hilda

The sowing of a few lettuce, radish and onion seed will germinate within a few days, and provide young saladings in as many weeks.

Weeding becomes a pleasure when the soil is damp, for every seedling weed will come out now with all its roots, and many of the more deeply rooted ones such as the thistles may also be pulled out intact. All this means less work in spring.

Garlic, onions and shalotts which had begun to mature before the recent rain must be lifted now before they begin to grow again.

Bend over the tops if still green, shake the soil from the roots, spread the bulbs thinly on a wire rack or tray and put them out to dry whenever the sun shines or the air is dry.

Gradually the tops can be cut off and the root removed; the bulbs then should be stored in large-mesh onion sacks in an airy dry place.

Warm, damp soil in late August is an invitation to lift and divide some of the spring and early summer perennials.

The sticky pink Lychnis viscaria which makes so vivid a border plant in May and June is one of these. Each rosette of leaves with its basal stem and a few rootlets may be bedded into a sandy peat mixture to form a new plant in a few weeks.

Doronicum, the yellow daisy-like Leopard's-bane may be pulled apart into separate tubers. Each one will grow into a plant. At Kew Gardens, England, this is done each year with doronicum to obtain the finest flowers. Here we are inclined to leave it in unproductive clumps.

Pulmonaria, another delightful spring flower, blue and useful in shade, can also be lifted for division now.

U.S. ALTERS BOMBING PATTERN IN VIET NAM

Air Strikes Hit Economy

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. pattern of bombing in Communist North Viet Nam has moved up the scale to include electric power plants and dams.

Whether this, pointed up in new strikes against such a target during the weekend, means escalation of the war appears to depend on semantics.

Is a complex which includes power plants, dams and locks a military target or is it a segment of the civilian economy which also is militarily useful to an enemy?

Defence Secretary McNamara, in a press conference last April 26, emphasized that the air strikes then being conducted by U.S. and South Vietnamese planes were "carefully limited to military targets."

He listed the types—transit points, barracks, supply depots, ammunition depots—all of them used along the route by which military manpower and equipment were being infiltrated into South Viet Nam. Then he said there had been added to the target system railroads, highways and bridges "which are the foundation of the infiltration routes."

On April 4, a routine announcement of operations said a bridge had been hit and added that a "thermal (steam) power plant near the bridge was also hit" by U.S. Air Force planes.

HIT PLANT AGAIN

July 30, navy planes from a carrier struck again at the thermal plant near Thanh Hoa.

Then Sunday, 11 air force F-105 jets struck the complex near Thanh Hoa again. Pilots reported heavy damage on the generator hall and a transformer building and said a dam and lock system was damaged.

The target complex includes dams and accompanying locks, which presumably have the functions of both supplying hydroelectric power and facilitating shipment of goods, civilian and military, along the river. The generating plants supply electricity for homes and industrial factories.

A U.S. Army handbook on Viet Nam lists aid given by the Soviet Union and China to North Viet Nam. The list includes, under Soviet aid, this item:

"Sixteen thermal electric power plants at Thanh Hoa, Vinh, Lao Kay, Phu Tho, Cha Pa; power transmission lines and transformer substations . . . two hydroelectric power plants."

It seems entirely possible that these facilities, in addition to the Thanh Hoa complex, are plotted in bombing maps for possible future attention.

Touring Soviet Experts Probe Our Economics

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP)—Russia' money-conscious construction bosses went underground at Canada's richest gold mine Tuesday on the eighth day of their tour of the country's newest developments.

The Giant Yellowknife mine is not exactly new—gold was first discovered here in the early years of the depression and they have been producing it seriously for the past 15 years—but it provided a slight change of pace for the Soviet delegation that came to Canada Aug. 16. For more than a week the party headed by Andrei I. Slivinsky, a member of the council of ministers of the U.S.S.R., has been criss-crossing Canada looking at everything from one of the world's greatest hydro development projects in Quebec to a hospital in Hay River, N.W.T. The tour of the new hospital was only one of many fast looks the Russians took Monday as they air-hopped from Fort Smith near the Alberta border to Yellowknife with stops at Pine Point and Hay River on the south shore of Great Slave Lake. And as they moved north and west across the territories the Russians continued to probe into the economics of Canadian development.

QUESTION COST

Everywhere they went they asked questions about cost, budgeting and job-tendering. "Who do you get your materials from? How do you estimate the cost? Why do you build this way and not that? It has become increasingly obvious that the Russian of today is extremely money-conscious and that the Communist world no longer can build and produce merely because the need is there.

A source close to the six-man delegation put it this way: They have been building a great country for almost 50 years without concern for expense. Now, with great expenditures earmarked each year for space research and military preparedness they have to take a second look at what it is costing them to exist. So Mr. Slivinsky and his colleagues are asking Canadians how we in this country program and finance the projects they are being shown.

These have included the newest and biggest mining discovery in 15 years a Pine Point, power development projects, a tunnel across the St. Lawrence River and a water intake system at Great Slave Lake.

On Monday they showed extreme interest in the construction methods at the Pine Point mining site of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company where a heavy industrial corrugated steel siding was used on all project buildings. They paced off the size of the great steel sheets and measured their thickness. And they asked about the cost and where it could be purchased.

SUMS UP FEELINGS

Konstantin Kroupitsa, director of a construction research institute, summed up their feelings:

"This is an excellent piece of construction, but in Russia we would not waste valuable steel on walls. How do you do it?"

If Mr. Kroupitsa got his answer he wasn't telling. Leaders of the Russian delegation were closeted with officials of the mining company for more than an hour as they asked their questions again and again. And there was no announcement when they came out.

At Hay River, the gateway to the Mackenzie River water route to the far north, the Russians nodded in approval at the town's new ice-skating arena.

LBJ ANSWERS GOP CRITICS

'Issues Greater Than Parties'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson answered a Republican charge that Democratic administrations are responsible for the U.S. position in Viet Nam with the assertion today that he has had "excellent co-operation" from Republican leaders in fighting the war.

So far as he is concerned, the president, a Democrat, told a press conference, he doesn't know which party is involved when he draws upon officials for advice in the conflict.

"The issues of war and peace are far greater than the personalities involved, or the parties," he said.

In a "white paper," House of Representatives Republicans asserted that not only did the Democrats commit the United States to defend South Viet Nam but Johnson's 1964 election campaign talks caused a miscalculation by the Communists on U.S. aims.

They said this was caused by Johnson's action in picturing his Republican presidential opponent, Barry Goldwater, as being trigger-happy.

Johnson did not comment on this latter charge. But he said Republican former president Eisenhower had been a "tower of strength" to him, the joint military chiefs of staff and Defence Secretary McNamara.

The president noted that McNamara himself is a Republican.

REBUTS STATEMENT

The Republican white paper was issued as a rebuttal to Johnson's statement that he is carrying out the commitment Eisenhower made to Viet Nam in 1954.

Asked about U.S. air strikes in North Viet Nam, Johnson said operations have been up to expectations and that they have been effective.

He said such raids are in cut supply of men and arms to keeping with the planned purpose of their mission—to try to the Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam.

Johnson said he is hesitant to say how good or bad things are in Viet Nam.

As for peace hopes, he said United Nations Ambassador Goldberg is doing everything as "our left hand" for peace while McNamara is using "our right hand" in combat.

"Peace, that simple little five-letter word, is the most important word to us in the English language at this time."

Johnson agreed with a questioner that the situation in Malaysia "is very difficult."

He said "we are going to make every effort we can to preserve the peace in that area." And, the president went on, what the United States is doing in Viet Nam has a bearing on that sector of the world.

BIRD FLEW COOP, LEFT EVIDENCE

BIRMINGHAM (Reuters) — An Englishman accused by two detectives of stealing a homing pigeon opened his coat and let the evidence fly away.

"You can't prove it without the bird," he chuckled.

But Desmond Cullen, 26, was jailed Tuesday for three months for theft on the strength of a pigeon feather. One of the detectives plucked it from his coat.

'UN Should Make Attempt To Settle Viet Nam War'

By DON MACLACHLAN

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Two former foreign affairs officials said Tuesday the United Nations should attempt a settlement of the Viet Nam situation.

Chester Ronning of Camrose, Alta., former Canadian charge d'affaires to China, said if no settlement can be reached outside the UN, the UN should try to find terms acceptable to both sides.

Prof. John Gange of Eugene, Ore., former executive secretary in the U.S. state department, suggested UN Secretary-General U Thant ask several states to form a "corporate undertaking" for a settlement.

Mr. Ronning told the third annual Banff conference on world development it would not be necessary to wait for North Viet Nam and China to become members of the UN.

Prof. Gange, head of the foreign affairs department at the University of Oregon, warned in an interview that UN attempts at a Viet Nam settlement could meet flat opposition from North Viet Nam and China.

Both countries had said they have no use for the United Nations, but continued attempts, no matter what the source, must be made to bring North Viet Nam and the U.S. to the conference table.

CS Invited by Jodoin Into Labor Congress

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress issued a formal invitation today to the 80,000 - member Civil Service Federation of Canada to affiliate with the 1,200,000-man CLC.

He told the 24th triennial conference of the federation he was there to deliver the message that "there is a place for the Civil Service Federation of Canada in the CLC."

The question of possible affiliation will be coming up during the next three days as the 200 delegates open discussions of proposed resolutions. Several deal with affiliation.

Federation spokesman said there is no clear indication of how the delegates feel about the question, although CSF President Claude Edwards indicated in his opening address Monday that he supports the idea.

NEVER SPELLED OUT

The two groups have worked together on occasion in the past, and there have been informal discussions on the possibility of affiliation, but the issue was not spelled out before.

Under the federation's present constitution, each association in the civil service organization would have to affiliate individually with the CLC.

The CLC's support of the New Democratic Party had been criticized by some association officials.

"We fully recognize that political neutrality is essential in the government service and we would be the first to fight to preserve that right for you," Mr. Jodoin said.

He said the CLC has fought over the years for civil servants to have collective bargaining rights — something now promised them by the government—and added the CLC could help them in this field, too.

His remarks were taken from a text given the press before delivery.

BCE Wiped Off Companies' List

The provincial cabinet Tuesday finished some old business and undertook something new.

It revoked the incorporation papers of the B.C. Electric, which it took over to form B.C. Hydro in 1961, to clean up the legal details. The revocation means that the BCE name will be wiped off the companies register.

The cabinet also decided to make a $3,000 grant to the new Labor College of Canada being established by the union movement in Montreal.

Big Gun—Small Ammo

MR. DIEFENBAKER HAS launched the opening broadsides of the next election campaign—if he ever left off from the last one—with blistering remarks on his Quebec tour that suggest a mind moved to frenzy by the possible necessity of fighting a general election at this time. Prime Minister Pearson may or may not call one, but the leader of the opposition is obviously frightened at the thought of having to try to rouse the country to vote for the Conservative Party under his leadership.

Well he might be. Mr. Diefenbaker has nothing to offer the nation, and little to show for the past two years but wordy delays which led to Canada-wide resentment at this wasted time in Parliament.

His remarks in Quebec this week are illustrative of the feelings with which he views an election. Having threatened the Liberals almost daily with defeat in Parliament, Mr. Diefenbaker obviously thought that a new government was what the country needed. Yet now, in the face of increasing possibilities that Parliament will be dissolved, Mr. Diefenbaker can see an election call only as a subterfuge by Mr. Pearson to avoid facing him again in the Commons. Surely if the Prime Minister were "afraid" to meet Parliament, he would be even more afraid to meet the country.

Mr. Diefenbaker urges "a reasonable degree of equality" for Quebec, yet in the same breath he castigates Mr. Pearson for allowing that province the device of opting out, whereby Quebec may receive equivalent financial aid to operate provincial services such as pensions rather than participate in a federal plan. Will Mr. Diefenbaker stump Quebec on a policy of forcing it to enter federal programs dealing with provincial responsibilities? If not, what is his alternative?

The plain fact is that Mr. Diefenbaker is not ready to enter an election race, nor is his party. His hold on Conservative followers is far too insecure to give him any confidence that he could do more than stage a one-man tour as he did in the last two elections. And he has nothing new to promise, nothing but frustration to point back to.

Staying on the Walk

POSTAL WORKERS OF CANada—with those in Montreal abstaining—have voted four to one against further strike action. This is a sensible course to take and one that will help to rebuild the public's good will.

Any other action would have caused a deterioration of sympathy for the case they made — and for which they later found support in the Anderson recommendations — that the early wage increase set for them was too low.

The postmen now await in good faith action by the federal government to provide more effective ways than exist at present for settlement of grievances they may have. During the work stoppage frequent reference was made to prospective legislation which would operate to that end.

When parliament reconvenes Canadians will look with interest for details of the legislation. It should have two cardinal points — one, a guarantee that machinery will be set up to provide a fair hearing for any case the postal workers, or other comparable groups, may advance, and, two, a safeguard to prevent any future strike from tying up public and private business to the degree that it was shackled by the postal walkout. This may be a form of binding arbitration.

The decision of Montreal workers declining to take part in the national referendum creates an interesting situation. Are the remaining members of the service to assume that everyone is out of step but Montreal? Or is there an inclination in that city to see if the tail can wag the dog?

The postal workers' brotherhood, which conducted the referendum, has added to its reputation for responsibility—a reputation enhanced by the results of the vote. It doubtless appreciates some of the problems afflicting Montreal, and may recognize in them difficulties of the Montreal workers' own making.

But Then, What's Safety?

MR. WILLIAM HEWARD Grafftey, Conservative member for Brome-Missisquoi, has applied to the Canadian automobile industry the goad used effectively by U.S. Senator Abraham A. Ribicoff to prod American firms.

Mr. Grafftey says "the automotive industry is doing next to nothing . . . and won't do anything until the government acts" to build in recognized safety factors as standard equipment in the modern car.

The Canadian has listed 24 features of a "survival car" demonstrated by an American insurance company to indicate what can be done, at reasonable expense, to protect the lives of motorists involved in accidents.

When Senator Ribicoff applied pressure to the United States industry, its leaders went to Washington to explain what their companies were doing and what they proposed to do—but only after the senator had made it very clear that he believed they were dragging their feet in the safety field.

Like Americans, Canadians have passed through a multitude of new models in recent years which gave sales promotion to such useless designs as tail-fins and an over-supply of chrome. Conceivably, at no greater expense to the purchaser, several of the accepted safety features could have been incorporated in place of these quickly obsolete promotional gimmicks.

In time, if the highway toll continues at its present run-away rate, manufacturers will have to heed the advice of safety-conscious people—as will governments. But why wait for compulsion? Isn't a car which carries in it greater prospects for survival than do most models something worth putting on the market, particularly when car sales to an individual are far from being a one-shot deal? Why not save the customer for another prospective trade-in?

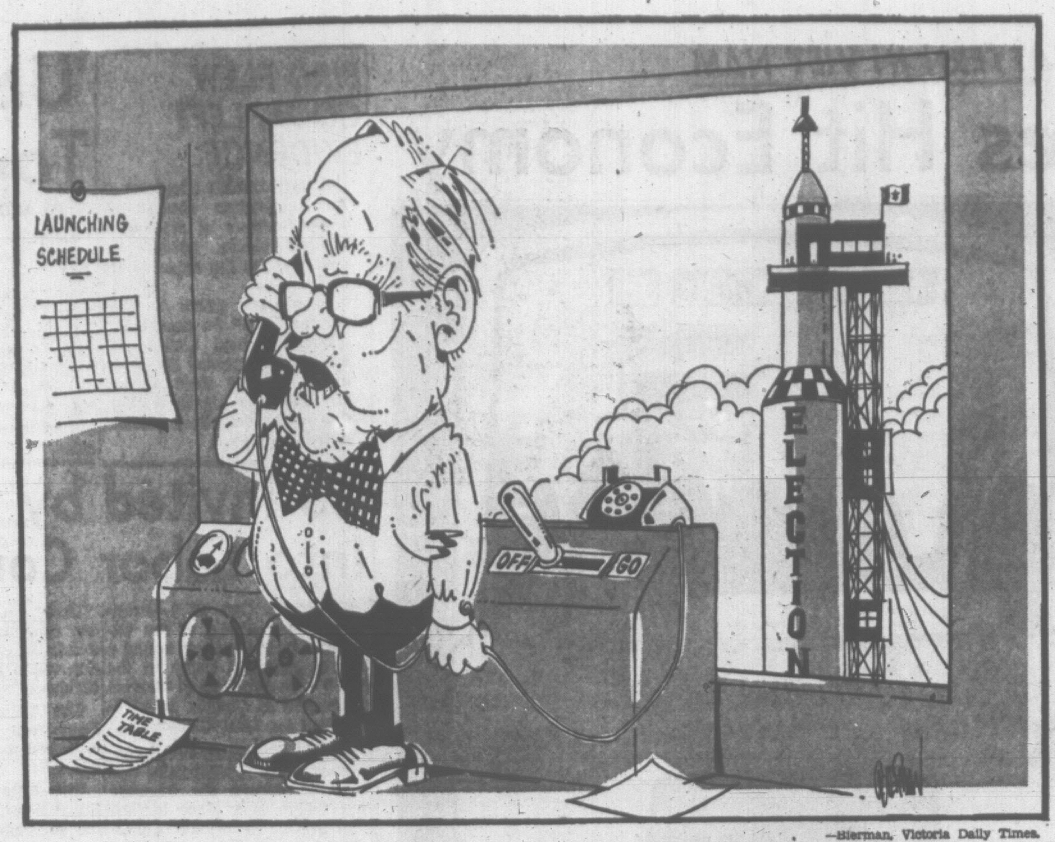
'Deeper Into the Jungle'

A VOICE OF CONSIDERABLE authority has been added to that of a large section of the public—usually the older members of it—deprecating some of today's "music".

Sir Malcolm Sargent, 70-year-old but still energetic and highly revered conductor-in-chief of London's famed Promenade Concerts, has spoken out against electronic amplification and the "beat" of some current entertainers.

The microphone, he says, has made some bad voices sound almost good — "and in some music halls today we have some pretty poor voices." He added the comment that beat groups "are going farther into the jungle."

It is traditional for those who are not so young to be sharply critical of the musical tastes of the young. It is comforting for many adults, nevertheless, to hear a man of impeccable reputation in music offer as candid comment an opinion which is shared by them.



—Sherman, Victoria Daily Times.

"What's that? . . . You say Dief has already gone into orbit from Quebec . . . ?"

By MAURICE WESTERN

Moving the Grain for Red Bread

AS Mr. Mitchell Sharp recognized in his recent comment on television, the combination of a record (or near-record) wheat crop and huge export commitments to the Soviet Union poses a major challenge to the two Canadian railways. They have assured the government of their ability to meet it. At first sight this may not appear particularly remarkable because the railways faced and mastered the same problem in 1963-64. Then as now it was necessary to move a huge quantity of wheat in a short time—the present estimate is that the railways will push 225,000,000 bushels through the Lakehead by mid-December if the wheat board's time table is to be met. Then as now the critical factor was not (as one might gather from parliamentary debates) the supply of box cars but the limited size of the diesel fleets.

Western

Short of Diesels

There have, however, been two important changes since 1963-64. At that time it was possible to lease diesel locomotives from American railways. Today traffic demands in the United States are so heavy that there are no diesels to spare.

The second difficulty is that as the railways of Canada have increased their hauling capacity so have the traffic demands increased. This is the result not merely of the general improvement in economic activity but particularly of the very rapid development of the potash and sulphur industries in Western Canada. The movement of these commodities, both heavy users of diesel power, has more than doubled in two years. Modernization has not, therefore, improved the relative position of the railways.

With a limited supply of locomotives, much depends on the use to which individual units are put. According to a CPR estimate, one diesel in grain service can haul the equivalent of 1,000,000 bushels from the heart of the grain belt to the Lakehead before freeze-up. This is a most arresting figure.

It is also a significant one when account is taken of the divergent policies of the two railways. A locomotive which is used for hauling passenger trains cannot be used for grain traffic. Each time one of the railway companies puts on a trans-continental service, such as the Canadian or the Super-continental, it ties up about 25 diesels, allowing for necessary reserve and maintenance.

Contrasting Policies

We have in this country the paradoxical situation that the privately-owned Canadian Pacific is attempting to conform to the recommendations of the Macpherson royal commission (at the risk of some unpopularity) while the state railway is pursuing a policy which is the very reverse of that urged by the commission.

The CPR, cutting back on passenger operations, has announced that the "Dominion" will go out of service on September 7, with the company concentrating thereafter on an improved version of the "Canadian." In contrast, the CNR is gambling on a bigger and more dazzling passenger service which it hopes to make profitable by 1968.

Elimination of the "Dominion" will release 25 diesel units for grain traffic. It will mean, according to company estimates, that "allowing for maintenance" the CPR will be able to move an additional volume of wheat totalling 20,000,000 bushels from Prairies to Lakehead before freeze-up. The same diesels will be available in winter months for the movement from Georgian Bay to Atlantic ports and for the renewed Prairie movement in spring. The total additional haul attributable to these units is placed at 55,000,000 bushels.

Plainly CPR policy was not planned in anticipation of the Soviet wheat sales of which the company could have no foreknowledge. It simply recognized, as did the commission, that the railways have competitive advantages in some fields which they lack in others. They are at their best in long haul movements of bulk commodities. But, as the commission reported, "There is little social justification, and less economic, for the permanent provision of railway passenger services as we know them today." This finding is certainly not vitiated by increased passenger traffic if that traffic is carried at a loss.

It is a happy result of this CPR policy that the CPR is today less burdened by passenger commitments than its state rival and thus much better placed to take on the big job of moving wheat outbound for Russia than it would have been if its management had accepted Mr. Donald Gordon's theories.

FROM SINGAPORE

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH

A Spreading Malaise

IN the North Borneo States of Sarawak and Sabah, Commonwealth and Gurkha troops are policing nearly 1,000 miles of frontier jungle against armed Indonesian intruders. They are also combatting the terrorists of Sarawak's own clandestine Communist organization.

When the Federation of Malaysia was formed nearly two years ago the bulk of the population in these territories accepted entry into it. This meant independence within an Asian federation, and adequate protection under the Anglo-Malaysian defence agreement based on Singapore.

The States were given a generous allocation of seats in the Federal Parliament in Kuala Lumpur on the Malayan mainland, and guarantees of considerable autonomy. Moreover without Malaysia they could not exist by themselves, and would be swallowed up by Indonesia.

Today, despite the secession of Singapore from the Federation, Malaysia's finance minister, Mr. Tan Siew Sin, has promised that the Central Government will still provide some £35 million for their development.

Willing Ears

Nevertheless, since the ejection of Singapore from Malaysia more and more people in Sarawak and Sabah, where Malays represent only a small minority, are lending willing ears to those who have condemned alleged "Kuala Lumpur interference" in local politics in the past, and argued bitterly and sometimes unfairly that entry into Malaysia meant exchanging British rule for a Malay hegemony.

Political leaders in North Borneo capitals were furious that federal ministers had engineered the secession of Singapore from Malaysia without consulting the governments of the North Borneo states, and had demanded ratification of the act by the federal parliament only after the event. They claimed that this casual attitude towards democratic principle and the constitution could mean that Sarawak and Sabah in turn might be stripped of their autonomous rights or thrown out of the Federation if it suited leaders in Kuala Lumpur.

Opposition politicians were quick to point out that with the ejection of Singapore, with its military bases and great commercial port, the linch-pin had been pulled out of Malaysia, and some suggested a new federation of Sabah, Sarawak and the tiny but rich oil Sultanate of Brunei, that lies almost between them.

Others dream quite impractically of independence under the umbrella of a frontier guarantee from Indonesia and a defence pact from Britain.

Tengku Abdul Rahman, the strongly anti-Communist premier of Malaya (and now of Malaysia), is going to North Borneo shortly to mend his fences, but in his heart he may well think them more trouble than they are worth, and sympathize with one opposition Assemblyman from the heavily "Malay first" Panmalayan Islamic Party in mainland Malaya, who has suggested that Sarawak "get out of Malaysia," as she has "cost the Central Government too much money already." In Kuching, the Sarawak capital, newspapers are speculating openly on secession from the "now lopsided Federation."

Dangerous Drift

This dangerous drift may slow down now that Singapore and the Federal Malaysian government have agreed formally to try to end their incipient trade war and to operate a joint committee for mutual defence. But even if the British need not at present fear that Eastern Malaysia is going to break away from the mainland while their troops are protecting its two backward, weak and gangling States from the neighboring Indonesians, mainland Malaya itself is giving them grey hairs.

The Tengku has told the world how careful he was to see that London knew nothing in advance about the break with Singapore, and it is known that when Lord Head, the British high commissioner in Kuala Lumpur, finally found out and entreated him to delay the secession for one day, he refused.

Anti-British

Although Britain has undertaken the donkey's share of the burden of defending Malaysia against Sukarno's terrorists, anti-British feeling is perceptibly mounting. Voices are raised against "British interference in Malaysia's internal affairs," and a federal minister coolly remarks that it is "now widely believed" that Britain put Lee Kuan Yew, Singapore's astute, Chinese-born, Cambridge-educated prime minister, up to opposing the Tengku because London thought the Alliance Government in Kuala Lumpur was "getting too big for its boots." He does not explain how Britain comes deliberately to destroy the unity of a Federation she helped to create and protect with British lives.

Meanwhile Dato Syed Jaafar Albar, the leader of the anti-Lee Kuan Yew "ultras" in the Tengku's party, who has now resigned his position as its secretary-general, may yet emerge as chief of a new, powerful group with a strong following of its own among the Malay masses. Singapore politicians say Albar earlier argued that in the interests of national security the federal government must take over power here in Singapore rather than leave the island in Lee's hands—at whatever cost.

Sell-Out Feared

Finally there is always the nagging fear that behind the anti-British froth in Kuala Lumpur are unidentified politicians who are ready to engineer a sell-out to Djakarta and order the British to leave.

In his National Day speech on August 17, President Sukarno made no further mention of forging links with Singapore and predicted that Malaysia would "fall apart."

It is going to demand all the patience and sagacity of Malaysia's best men from the Tengku down, to see that this does not come true—and that Britain is not left to defend, or abandon, the floating wreckage of yet another failure in federation.

Looking Back

From The Times of Aug. 25, 1890:

The ordinary semi-annual meeting of the shareholders of the Bank of British Columbia was held at the Cannon Street Hotel with Robert Gillespie, chairman, presiding. He said the position of the bank indicates progress of the most successful and substantial character. The six-month profits were greater than those for any corresponding period. They were reported as £36,750. It was agreed that a dividend be paid on the paid-up capital of the bank at the rate of 6 per cent a year and a bonus of 1 per cent.

AFRO-ASIAN WORRY

Who Will Go To the Party?

By COLIN LEGUM
from London

THE Algerian government has sent three diplomatic missions to visit Africa's main capitals in a determined effort to prevent anything happening to cause a further postponement of the Afro-Asian conference—the second Bandung—scheduled to meet in Algiers on November 5. The conference was to have been held last June, but was postponed at the last minute because of Colonel Boumedienne's coup against Ben Bella.

Colonel Boumedienne attaches supreme importance to the conference being held in Algiers this time. Apart from his own commitment to Afro-Asian co-operation, the conference would have two distinct advantages for his regime. First, it would give it the stamp of approval by the Afro-Asian leaders, which Colonel Boumedienne so badly needs to normalize foreign relations. Secondly, his leadership at home would be greatly strengthened if those leaders who were friends of Ben Bella in his heyday were to be seen in Algiers making their peace with Boumedienne.

Two Anxieties

But at the moment Boumedienne has two anxieties. There is President Nkrumah's proposal to postpone the opening of the Organization of African Unity conference in Accra from September 5 to October 21. With the Accra meeting due to last a week this would provide only a week's interval between its closing and the scheduled opening of the Algiers gathering.

Boumedienne is anxious lest the closeness of these two conferences may give a pretext to African heads of state to avoid coming to Algiers. His second anxiety is over the failure, so far, of a considerable number of prominent African leaders to confirm that they would attend an Algiers meeting whenever it is held. It would obviously harm his cause greatly if the conference were held and were boycotted by a significant number of African leaders.

The question is whether the reluctance of many African leaders to commit themselves to the Algiers meeting has anything really to do with the dates of the two conferences. A number of them—especially those from francophobe Africa—never did look with much favor on an Afro-Asian conference which would include the Chinese. Others are reluctant because they look with disfavor on the way Ben Bella was overthrown.

The former Algerian leader had established close comradeship with many of the leaders in the continent, and even those who did not feel friendly towards him nevertheless feel that Africa's future is threatened by military coups of the kind led by Colonel Boumedienne.

Ben Bella's Friends

Ben Bella's former friends strongly feel that it would be an act of disloyalty to him to visit Algiers as a guest of Boumedienne at a time when Ben Bella is in prison, untried and in disgrace. Some adopt the attitude that they will not be prepared to go to Algiers until Ben Bella has been given a chance to defend himself in an open trial against the charges that have been levelled against him.

Colonel Boumedienne is committed to giving Ben Bella public trial, but shows no signs of being in a hurry to arrange for it to be held. Whatever his reasons for delay, the effect will be to discourage Ben Bella's closest friends from attending an Algerian conference. Tanzania's President Nyerere and Guinea's President Sekou Toure are among those who have taken a strong line on this question. President Nasser has maintained a careful aloofness.

It seems likely that unless the doubt felt by Ben Bella's friends can be cleared up before the Algiers meeting is held that a considerable number of African leaders will refuse to go to Algiers, no matter what date is fixed for the Afro-Asian conference. For some of them the reason is what it has always been—their refusal to become involved in an international entanglement because of the elements of Sino-Russian rivalry which have been a continuing factor in the arrangements for the conference. For others it is simply a matter of keeping faith with their old comrade-in-arms, Ben Bella.

Domestic Affair

It is understandable that Colonel Boumedienne should resent especially the second objection. He rightly insists that the question of Algerian leadership is a domestic affair, but Ben Bella's friends—while accepting this point—insist that whether or not they choose to go to Algiers is very much their affair.

Apart, however, from these internal African matters, the Afro-Asian conference is still entangled in the rivalry between the Russians and the Chinese, with the Russians still pressing their claims to be invited, and the Chinese determined to resist them.

As things stand, it seems that the Algerian leadership is right to feel apprehensive about the chances of mustering a full turn-out if the conference is held as planned on November 5.

To the Editor

Country Detention

Regarding the juvenile detention home, I think a home like that should be in the country. Most of the trouble juveniles get into is caused because they do not know what to do. In the country there is always something to do. If the home would be in an uncleared part of the country, the boys would have all the work they could do. They could build their own loghouse, clear land for garden and field, build stables, have each one an animal of his own—goat or pig, chicken or turkey, perhaps even a horse later on. Then their lives would be filled, they would forget their boredom and vandalism.—Henry Schmidt, 765 Arden.

No "Fooling Around"

It is most encouraging to know that Dr. John Whitbread has been given authority to check into the smoke nuisance in our area. He is a very conscientious person, and knowing his views in respect to air pollution it is felt that this gentleman will not "fool around" with such a task.—H.G.

Grits Could Reach Edge Of That Magic Majority

By DOUGLAS FISHER
NDP MP for Port Arthur

All the anticipation of an early general election has put out of mind the four by-elections pending in Kenora-Rainy River, Victoria (Ont.), Digby-Annapolis-Kings and Dollard.

Fisher

Since two of these were held by Tories (the late George Nowlan and the late Charles Lamb) and the other two appear safe Liberal seats it would be possible for the government, if it swept all four, to be right on the edge—minus by one vote—of that magic majority. If such a majority really meant anything.

Mr. Pearson has an effective control of the House in the foreseeable future. Even unexpected losses in the byelections would not change this. Such seems impossible. Bill Benedickson had a 6,500 majority in '63 and he hadn't any great personal popularity or following.

In that election the New Democrats failed to get nomination papers filled in time.

This may have helped Benedickson slightly since it is the practice in this riding for the Liberal to run under the title of Liberal-Labor.

★ ★ ★

The New Democrats chose a railway man, Tom Moroz from Sioux Lookout, several months ago. This man happens to fly his own plane, a great advantage in a riding several hundred miles square with dozens of scattered communities. He may come on a bit, but it should be a fantastic upset if the Liberals didn't hold Kenora-Rainy River.

It would be unbelievable if the Liberals did not hold Dollard, Guy Rouleau's old seat. The New Democrats ran second in '63 but some 17,000 votes behind.

There is a likelihood that the Liberals will field a prestige candidate there in any by-election, someone like Jean Marchand, the conveniently ex-Labor leader, or Gerard Pelletier, the ex-editor of La Presse.

Dollard looks like the surest seat for the Liberals in Quebec; therefore, it will be like Kenora, a magnet for budding Grits.

★ ★ ★

Victoria riding is centred around the Haliburton country. It hasn't a large population and so is due for vast expansion in the redistribution plans. Until redistribution is effective it seems likely to remain Progressive Conservative. The Tories took the seat over in 1945 with Clayt Hodgson, and he held until retirement in '63, with tidy majorities. Charles Lamb succeeded him and the margin thinned to less than a thousand.

Much of the cut was due to waning of Diefenbaker popularity, but much of this has returned because of the flag issue and the Quebec troubles of the Liberals. One might call Victoria "rock-ribbed Ontario" or "prejudiced old Ontario." Whatever the name, two weeks I spent in the riding right after Mr. Lamb died, convinced me that a lot of voters are aching for the chance to vote against the Liberals. It is a fairer chance for the outsiders than Kenora or Dollard, but a change in party grip would be as shocking as an Argo winning streak.

The best bet for a byelection swing has to be Digby-Annapolis-Kings. The late George Nowlan used to say that no Nova Scotian riding was absolutely safe. Some weeks before his last victory, a narrow one by 416 votes, he told some of us it would be touch and go.

★ ★ ★

The New Democrat vote in '63 was miniscule but it was larger than Nowlan's margin. Both Liberals and Conservatives from the province have told me that Premier Stanfield is more likely to throw his weight on the Tory side in a byelection than in a general election.

Recently Nova Scotia Liberals chose Gerald Regan, the Catholic MP from Halifax's dual riding, as provincial leader. He is extremely aggressive, so much so that one gathers he is judged to be uncouth by old Nova Scotia standards.

If a byelection comes in the old Nowlan riding, Mr. Regan is certain to play a large part in it, thus drawing Mr. Stanfield in to knock down his new rival quickly. Mr. Regan intends to resign his seat shortly after the House re-convenes in September. If there isn't a general election.

★ ★ ★

Unfortunately, none of the four seats can give an indicator about political feeling in the west, the region that seems to be the major concern of the governing party. Last week Premier Thatcher was quoted as telling a Liberal gathering in Swift Current-Maple Creek that the federal Liberals had a fighting chance in three Saskatchewan seats. That doesn't seem like much, when the province has 17 in all.

Of course, all are presently Tory or better, Diefenbaker seats, so three may seem an attractive bundle to the Liberals. If such a ratio of progress was possible in the three oher western provinces, a dandy majority would be in sight for the Liberals in the election Premier Thatcher said was coming in October.

FRASER

PLEASE, NO BLUSHING VIOLETS!

BANFF — A Canadian journalist's suggestion that Canada should not try to mediate in world crises without being asked was challenged this week by several delegates at the Banff conference on world development.

Blair Fraser, Ottawa editor of Maclean's Magazine, told the 110 delegates to the third annual conference that Canada should make no effort to mediate in any world quarrel without first being asked and without also having a specific solution to propose.

Criticism of Mr. Fraser's statement came primarily from Prof. John Gange of the University of Oregon, a former executive secretary in the U.S. State Department, who said any country with a conscience about world affairs ought to exert initiative.

New Approach

"A mediator may be offering only a room for the two (opposing factions) to meet in, perhaps offering a new look, a new approach. It doesn't necessarily mean dictating a solution."

Mr. Fraser, during a discussion period following his conference-opening address, said no offers to mediate should be made unless Canada can do more than say "we are concerned."

Earlier, he said Canada should remember "mediation is something that has to be requested, not offered, much less thrust upon contenders who have not asked for it."

Expert Initiative

Professor Gange, of Eugene, Ore., countered: "No country can be . . . like the blushing violet sitting by the mossy stone waiting to be plucked. Any country with any conscience about world affairs ought to exert initiative."

The conference is sponsored by the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, the University of Alberta and the Edmonton branch of the United Nations Association.

Mr. Fraser said that since the Second World War, Canada's role as a mediator has "displaced our dear old undefended border as the good old standard Canadian cliche." Canada had scored several successes in international mediation and had the impression it had a "special talent" for it. But the country should not rush in if it was likely to be rebuffed.

Mr. Fraser said the U.S. reacted with "cold, contemptuous fury" to a 1961 comment by External Affairs Minister Howard Green that Canada would be willing to mediate between the U.S. and Cuba.

Canada likely would be asked again to play peace-keeping roles, he said, but it should remember that in some quarrels "the honorable role for us is not honest brokerage but equally honest and candid partisanship."

THE BIG SWITCH ON CYPRUS

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW—A year ago the Soviet government issued a statement that added an ominous new dimension to the crisis then brewing in the eastern Mediterranean.

Replying to an appeal from President Makarios, the Kremlin boldly declared that if Cyprus were invaded the Soviet Union would help the Republic of Cyprus defend "her freedom and independence."

The warning was clearly intended for Turkey. The world then was waiting anxiously for a possible Turkish invasion of the island, torn by strife between the Greek-Cypriot majority and the Turkish-Cypriot minority.

The Soviet press carried indignant articles about the "barbarous bombing" of Greek villages in Cyprus by Turkish aircraft.

★

A few days ago, Turkish Prime Minister S. H. Urguplu was in Moscow receiving a red-carpet welcome and Soviet newspapers were vying with one another in flowery platitudes about the growing warmth of Russian-Turkish relations.

Cyprus was not even mentioned by Soviet leaders in with the first visit by a Turkish prime minister in 33 years.

Urguplu showed no such restraint. In an outspoken speech at a Turkish embassy luncheon, he charged that law and order in Cyprus based on international agreements are "unceremoniously violated and attempts are made towards the actual and juridical annihilation of the Turkish community."

His Soviet guests, including Premier Alexei Kosygin, could only wince at this caustic reference to the latest Makarios manoeuvre—the stripping of certain constitutional guarantees from Turkish-Cypriots.

★

Even at the United Nations, the U.S.S.R. failed to take the side of the Makarios government. The Soviet delegate there said Russia stood for a solution protecting the rights of all Cypriots—significantly including those of Turkish blood.

Observers here see at least two primary factors in Russia's intriguing about-face on Cyprus:

1. Russia's stance of last year jeopardized its campaign to improve relations with Turkey, pursued in recent years. Designed partly to weaken NATO's southern flank politically, this campaign is also part of a wider effort to improve relations with all countries on the southern border of the Soviet Union, including Iran, Afghanistan and Pakistan in addition to Turkey.

All the countries except Afghanistan are members of Western-oriented defence pacts.

2. Russia may have come to fear it was getting in over its head with its support of the ambitious and determined Makarios; that it could be drawn into another Viet Nam dilemma, threatening a confrontation with the West in an area where Russia has no immediate power.

How the gains and losses of Russia's policy switch stack up makes for interesting speculation. There have been reports that the Greek government, for one, doesn't like it at all.

The Greeks are said to feel that Russia pulled the rug from under them in their dealings with Turkey and in their efforts to bring about unification of Cyprus with Greece.

Two Old Campaigners Bending the Facts

By PETER NEWMAN

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Lester Pearson has been proclaiming in the west this week that "it will not be possible to have an election on the new seat distribution until 1967—a year and four months from now." At the same time, Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker, campaigning in Quebec, has been insisting that "no amount of evasion, subtlety or equivocation can disguise the fact that an election could be held early in 1966, following redistribution." A careful analysis of the Electoral Boundaries Readjustment Act, for which these gentlemen voted on Nov. 20, 1965, reveals that both party leaders are bending the facts to suit their own political purposes. An election early in 1966 is not feasible under the redistribution procedure, but neither is it necessary to hold off a campaign until 1967.

Newman

Maps Completed

By now, all of the 10 provincial representation commissions have completed their preliminary task of preparing and publishing the new constituency maps. Public hearings appealing their decisions have already been completed in the four Maritime provinces and will end next week in the province of Quebec.

Ontario's public hearings begin in Port Arthur on Aug. 31 and end in Toronto on Sept. 30. The dates when hearings are due to end in the other provinces are: Manitoba Sept. 29, Saskatchewan Sept. 22, Alberta, Sept. 10, and British Columbia, Oct. 5.

Once this public phase of the procedure has been completed, the 10 commissions will submit two certified copies of their reports to Nelson Castonguay, the chief representation commissioner. The final deadline for all reports is Jan. 23, 1966, although most are expected before the end of the year. Castonguay then passes one copy along to Commons Speaker Alan Macnaughton who tables it immediately in Parliament. The parliamentary phase of the redistribution procedure then begins.

Within 30 days of the tabling of any one of the 10 reports, MPs can move objections providing they obtain the signatures of nine other members to back their claims. Debate on these motions must begin 15 days later. The motions, once they have been debated, are then passed back to the representation commissions which have a further 36 days to make their final, binding decisions. These then become law ten days later, with no chance of further amendment.

Theoretically, this process requires 85 days from Jan. 23—or until April 17, 1966. But there is one further built-in delay mechanism. The act specifies that debate on the MPs suggested amendments must begin within 45 days of the tabling of the reports—it makes no mention of when such debates must end.

This means that a government wishing to delay implementation of redistribution could plan the business of the House so that the MPs motions would not come up promptly for debate. At the same time, a determined opposition could filibuster the motions long past the 15-day limit. It is because of this loophole that no one can accurately predict how long the redistribution process will actually take.

Re-Allocation

Even if nothing impedes the speed of the parliamentary machinery, the passage of the new constituency maps only accomplishes the first part of the redistribution process. Fifty thousand polling divisions then have to be re-allocated according to the new electoral boundaries and new returning officers must be appointed and trained.

This procedure requires an irreducibel minimum of three months. (At that, this short interval doesn't include the usual six-month breather that the parties like to give themselves following a redistribution, so that there's time to reorganize the party machine in line with the new electoral geography.)

This takes the redistribution process well into the summer of 1966 and eliminates the feasibility of John Diefenbaker's claim that an election could be held early next year. It also makes nonsense of Lester Pearson's insistence that an election would be impossible until 1967. Providing the parties co-operate in Parliament, there is no reason why an election could not be held on the new constituency boundaries in the autumn of 1966.

Mexicans Parched

MEXICO CITY — Some 15,000,000 Mexicans are short of drinking water, says the Mexican minister of public health, Rafael Moreno Valle.

And things are going to get worse before they get better, he said.

To bring drinking water to all those at present without it would, he estimates, cost some 1,635,000,000 pesos—about $131,600,000. Even then, the population explosion would cause new problems again in a matter of years.

Nearly 500 water projects are already under way or being planned for the next six years.

These will benefit 5,000,000 of Mexico's 40,000,000 population and will cost 500,000,000 pesos—$39,000,000.

TANKERS USED

Attention has recently been drawn to the problem because the capital itself became startlingly short of water after only a few weeks of near-drought. The city authorities had to use water tankers to supply household needs.

The irony of it all is that when Cortez and Montezuma first met at Tenochtitlan in 1519, the city was a kind of Aztec Venice, lying on an island in a huge lake and connected by long causeways to the shores.

JACQUELINE
. . . near JFK

She Chose To Stay

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy regarded the 1962 Cuban missile crisis as serious enough to ask his wife if she wanted to leave Washington to be near a secret underground shelter.

Mrs. Kennedy chose to stay with the President at the White House, former Kennedy aide Theodore Sorensen reveals in the current issue of Look Magazine in an article taken from his book, "Kennedy," soon to be published.

Sorensen writes that President Kennedy "asked Jacqueline if she would not prefer to leave Washington, as some did, and stay nearer the underground shelter to which the first family was to be evacuated, if there was time, in case of attack.

"She told him no, that if an attack came, she preferred to come over to his office and share whatever happened to him."

Church Aisle Traffic Hasty, Heavy, Hazardous

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Study current newspapers and you'll soon come to the conclusion that the bridal path is more crowded than ever.

Woomen's pages are filled with pictures of the newly engaged, the newly married and their wedding stories.

Forbes

In the main, the girls are young and attractive and the boys equally young and handsome.

If this was all that is needed to ensure future happiness, then there would be no need to wonder about the continuous procession up church isles.

Social workers tell us, however, that the majority of young people have no idea of what lies ahead and that they are not even remotely concerned about it.

★ ★ ★

To all intents and purposes they are stepping into manhood and womanhood when they exchange marriage vows. In reality they are still children, playing at keeping house.

The words "for richer for poorer, for better for worse, in sickness and in health," are not understood nor recognized as an obligation to be kept "until death do us part."

Even young people from what we term "good families," have little sense of responsibility. Any standards they have acquired as to what is needed in making a home have been created by the impact of advertising, movies and television.

Credit financing, discovered when they received their first summer work cheques, is the rule book they expect to live by.

Social workers will tell you that these young things are not even clear as to what they are themselves. So, they are very unrealistic in what they expect of each other.

They have no intelligent idea of the word sex, and marriage to them takes on the nature of a dream quality.

Add to this the fact that relatively few young people who get married today have any real knowledge of the economics of maintaining a home and you have the explosive conditions that result in misunderstandigs, recriminations and, in many instances, in separation.

"Girls are better at planning than boys," one scial worker told me.

"That doesn't mean a great deal," she added, "for the majority of them have not been trained to make do or to economize. The attractive packages on big food store shelves are their daily source of supply, not the cook book and the kitchen range."

Boys are even worse, says this person who spends her days—and some nights, too—picking up the pieces when marriages flounder.

"Ask them to budget their known income for the first months of marriage and invariably they will put down the same rent and the same food money, they pay as single persons. What is even worse, they allow nothing for their wives' ordinary needs.

"In their thinking, what is left after rent and food, belongs to them, to spend as they like."

Some authorities say this is the parents fault.

However, they also point out that parents, in many instances, are not much better than the young. They live on credit and they eat out of the big food stores. So, how can they train their children to be thrifty and to save something for an emergency?

Some dedicated workers believe that what is needed is a good home making course in high schools, geared for training boys, as well as girls, to acknowledge there are responsibilities in marriage and that they must face up to them.

The course should touch all phases of married life, not merely the sex pattern.

"Let's reach our young people in a decisive way," one worker urges. "Let's impress upon them that home making is not all sex and having or not having babies.

"If parents cannot—or will not—do it, then we must find another way.

"If we don't, we will be faced with increased immorality, many more broken homes and emotionally disturbed children an' a way of life that once fully accepted, can result, within the conceivable future, in nothing less than moral degradation."

The Town Picasso Rebuilt—In His Own Image

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

VALLAURIS, France — Twenty years ago the once flourishing pottery industry of little Vallauris had dwindled to practically nothing—and so had the town.

Then, in 1947, came Pablo Picasso, who galvanized Vallauris into renewed vigor and the pottery industry into a rebuilt life—both mostly in the great artist's own image.

Today Vallauris is often spoken of as Picassoville and boasts a tourist traffic of approximately 500,000 a year. Some 80,000 visit the Municipal Museum to look at the master's famous work, "War and Peace."

●

Vallauris, located in the Alpes Maritimes on the Cote d'Azur, goes back to the early 16th Century. At that time, the ruling lord induced some Genoese families to rebuild a village that had been pillaged by the Moors 500 years earlier. The Genoese were mostly potters by trade and Vallauris soon became a centre for the manufacture of culinary vessels, which were shipped to Greece, the Near East and Africa.

After the First Word War earthen cooking utensils were displaced by aluminum and tin vessels and the centuries-old kilns grew cold. Residents of Vallauris faced hard times. Several efforts were made to revive the moribund pottery business, but they failed.

●

When Picasso came, it was just the shot in the arm the village needed. From a rather squalid, unsanitary settlement it has grown into a town with wide avenues, fluorescent lighting, modern housing and a large school. The population has grown from 1,140 in 1696—and little more than that B.P. (Before Picasso)—to just over 12,500 today.

While Picasso was awakening Vallauris, the town was stimulating a new interest in the artist. He became fascinated by the art of the ceramist. On his first visit to a pottery exhibit, Picasso moulded a piece of clay into the shape of a small bull and left it to be fired.

PICASSO
. . . old master stepped in

Six months later Picasso called for the finished product and was fascinated. He bought a house and married a girl from Vallauris. Today collectors come to buy signed ceramics by Picasso, which sell from $20 to $500 and up.

●

Now there are 300 potters at work. The main street is lined on both sides with shops selling pottery. Most of it is in shockingly bad taste, but even the monstrosities find buyers during the tourist season. Off the main thoroughfare it is possible to find some better examples of the art.

Strangely enough, Picasso's presence did not start a "school."

"Large numbers of artists—good, bad and indifferent—who have flocked here to try for a place in the sun all seem to have followed their individual inspiration," pointed out Auguste Bay, a Vallauris citizen. "The dedicated artists have tried to stop the production of atrocious objects—but without much success, it must be admitted."

●

In the little plaza of Vallauris stands Picasso's "Man and Sheep," cast in bronze and presented to the town by the master when he was made an honorary citizen.

Four years ago the Vallauris municipality decided to give Picasso a really big party on his 80th birthday. The jollification lasted for three days, winding up with fireworks and a bullfight.

The entire town was decorated with flowers and school children were given a holiday.

It was little enough to do for a man who gave new life to a dying town.

Farmers Hear Dief Promises

ST. GUILLAUME, Que. (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker gave farmers of this region an advance outline Tuesday of the planks in the Progressive Conservatives' agriculture platform for the next federal election.

During a day spent chatting with or addressing groups of farmers in this part of Quebec's Eastern Townships, the Progressive Conservative leader promised:

- Removal of the 11 per cent federal sales tax on building materials and farm and production machinery.
- Prices for dairy farmers as close as possible to $4 per hundredweight for milk.
- An eastern feed grain agency to buy feed from the western producer and sell it at reasonable prices to eastern farmers.
- A program of federal grants to build agricultural schools, similar to the grants towards construction of industrial technical schools launched by his administration.
- Acreage payments to Ontario and Quebec farmers similar to those paid western grain producers who sufffer crop losses.

ELIMINATE POVERTY

Speaking to between 350 and 400 farmers and their families at the municipal hall here, Mr. Diefenbaker said the Conservative party's program is aimed at eliminating rural poverty.

He declined to go into detail about the points he made.

The former prime minister was applauded, even when speaking English, when he promised acreage payments and in his references to national unity.

"I like you one and all for your attitude and your interest in public affairs," he said.

"We're going to understand each other. You are going to meet me and I am going to meet you and together we are going to do something in behalf of a united Canada and to raise the standard of agriculture in Ontario and Quebec."

DIEF GOES BILINGUAL

ST. PERPETUE, Que. (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker unveiled a new campaigning talent Tuesday night, speaking almost entirely in French with an improved command of pronounciation.

Except for one sentence in English, the Progressive Conservative leader spoke entirely in French, outlining points of his party's agricultural platform for the next election, as he has done in other stops in his tour of Quebec's eastern townships.

He drew a laugh for a remark in French that the standees outside the hall were lucky because it was cooler out there.

Uvic Sewage Double Estimate

Sewage flow from the University of Victoria will double earlier estimates, Oak Bay works committee found out Tuesday night.

The effluent will flow to the western pumped area of the municipality.

A university consulting engineer and municipal engineer G. O. White agreed it would cost $50,000 for a new pumphouse to take on the extra load.

PAY 10 PER CENT

Committee agreed to pay 10 per cent of the cost because the new sewer facilities would also service a new subdivision in an area south of Cedar Hill Cross Road.

The sewer system is expected to be completed by September, 1966. A survey will be made this winter on existing sanitary sewer load in the area.

Present flow plus estimates of the added effluent indicates about 1,000 feet of 12-inch pipe will need duplicating at a cost of $9,000, Mr. White said.

Annual cost of pumphouse maintenance has been estimated at $2,000 which the university will be charged when the system reaches full operation.

Reeve Allan Cox and Councillor Douglas Watts will take the recommendations to a meeting with university officials.

WCB Overruled

VANCOUVER (CP)—The B.C. Supreme Court ruled Tuesday that the Workmen's Compensation Board denied natural justice in rejecting a restaurant worker's claim. Mr. Justice Branca quashed a board decision turning down a compensation claim by Mrs. Dolly Seuriel who hurt her back in a cafe accident. He ordered the board to investigate the case again.

Guevara Loses Post As Mystery Grows

HAVANA (Reuters) — The Cuban press for the first time has referred to Arturo Guzman as industries minister, the post previously held by Ernesto (Che) Guevara.

Usually reliable sources reported more than two months ago that Guzman, till then vice-minister, had succeeded Guevara. But no official announcement was made and the press continued to refer to Guzman either as vice-minister or acting minister.

Argentine-born Guevara, a top Cuban revolutionary leader, has not been seen in public for more than five months.

The radio of the right-wing civilian-military junta in the Dominican Republic claimed Friday night that Guevara died in the rebel sector of Santo Domingo in the early days of the revolution.

VARIOUS REPORTS

The junta's interior secretary, Victor Gomez Berges, said there have been "various reports" to that effect, but that there is no proof that they are true.

Some reports said he is abroad and others that he is engaged in a project aimed at reorganizing and unifying the country's various economic agencies.

Premier Fidel Castro has frequently referred to Guevara in recent speeches, indicating that he is not in disgrace.

The reference to Guzman as minister came in a report by President Osvaldo Dorticos.

OTTAWA RECLASSIFICATION

Salary Protection Pledged

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Work on reclassifying civil service jobs—a project affecting 200,000 government employees — should be completed by 1967, J. D Love, assistant secretary of the treasury board, said Tuesday.

He told the 24th triennial conference of the Civil Service Federation of Canada the reclassification, first major reform of its kind since 1919, should lead to greater administrative efficiency and equitable treatment of employees.

Steps have been taken to ensure that adverse effects of employees during the dislocation caused by the reclassification will be kept to a minimum.

"Some employees will find that their positions have been assigned to a somewhat higher rate of pay or to a range with a somewhat higher maximum. For them there will be a small windfall.

"Others will find that their positions have been assigned to a range with a lower maximum."

WOULD RETAIN SALARY

These workers would be placed in a special classification and retain the salary expectations of his old grouping.

Sylvain Cloutier, a civil service commissioner, said that under changes coming up within the civil service the commission's traditional responsibility as the protector of terms and conditions of employment will shift to employee association.

The commission, however, would retain a vital interest in these matters since they had an important bearing on the recruitment and retention of personnel.

George F. Davidson, secretary of the treasury board, said expected changes, including the introduction of collective bargaining rights for civil servants, will give government employees a much stronger voice in determining their own pay and working conditions.

BOARD MAY BLOCK BID TO CUT CPR SERVICE

OTTAWA (CP)—The CPR's plan to drop one of its two transcontinental passenger train services next month may be blocked by the board of transport commissioners, an informant said today.

The CPR announced earlier this month that it will cease operations of the Dominion, its secondary transcontinental train on Sept. 7.

Aircraft Walkout Jumps Gun

TORONTO (CP) — Manufacturing stopped at de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd. plants in suburban Malton and Downsview shortly after 4,800 hourly-rated workers walked off their jobs Tuesday protesting what they called company strike preparation.

A company spokesman said the union announced the strike had officially started at 5 p.m. Tuesday, three days before a scheduled deadline Friday.

"This has brought all manufacturing to a halt," the company spokesman said.

The workers, members of Local 112 of the United Auto Workers (CLC), started a walkout without union sanction Tuesday afternoon at the Malton plant. The walkout spread but union officials declined to sanction it until they had examined the workers' complaints.

However, Leonard Woodcock, union vice-president, later issued a statement declaring the walkout official.

What Does Index Say About Yellow Daubs?

By JIM HUME

Victorians who like their investments to have a different flavor can have a field day this week with the Vincent Price art collection in town.

The 550 exhibits on display are price tagged and up for sale at prices ranging from $40 to $3,000. Some of them look worth the price being asked, others, to this untrained eye, look positively insulting.

Hume

Harold Patton, an artist in his own right, is on hand to explain the intricacies of form and a sales staff recruited from Greater Victoria teaching ranks stands at the ready to fill out forms and accept cheques or cash.

Mr. Patton insists that there is no better investment for cash than a fine piece of art. His argument makes sense — for some of the work on display.

"A work of art does not deteriorate in price," says Mr. Patton. "As the years go by the price can only increase, your money is safe and in addition you bring great beauty to your home."

There is no doubt that some of the paintings could bring joy to the eye of the beholder. Others, even with Mr. Patton's patient explanations, must surely be part of a gigantic hoax.

He, naturally, insists that this is not so.

LOOK AWFUL

"Some paintings appeal to one person but look awful to another," he says. The logic is hard to escape, but so are the insane daubs called the "Unknown Flag" priced at more than $400.

Taken all round, though, Simpson-Sears have done a fine job in bringing the Price collection to Victoria. There's a little of everything for every taste and the people who like to invest their money where they can watch it every day should have a fine time prowling the Georgian Room at the Empress.

"Ichabod," who stands malevolently just inside the entrance would never be permitted in my home, except possibly on Halloween night, but there are more than a few paintings that could work wonders to an office-jaded spirit simply by hanging over the fireplace.

Heading the entourage of Simpson-Sears executives in Victoria to give the trans-Canada art collection a fitting send-off is general manager C. W. Jaggs.

ORDINARY MAN

He professes little knowledge of art, but says he is proud of the part his company played in bringing together such a fine collection and giving the ordinary man a chance to see the world's finest and to buy it if he so desires.

Mr. Jaggs is more at home when talking retailing.

Puffing steadily on a cigar he told me how close Simpson-Sears came to building a department store in Victoria some years ago.

"We flew in, did surveys, selected a site along Hillside (where the Hillside shopping centre now stands) and actually bought some land. I forget just what happened but we had difficulty in getting together the parcel of land we required and finally abandoned the project. At that time we had every intention of going ahead and building."

And now or in the near future?

"Well, you never can tell what the future holds but I think Victoria is pretty well serviced now. We have no immediate plans for building a full-size department store here. But you can never tell. Victoria has grown fantastically since I was here last."

OWNERS SWEETEN POT AS DEADLINE NEARS

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The U.S. steel industry sweetened its contract offer to the United Steelworkers Union Tuesday on the eve of a meeting of union directors—eight days before a scheduled steel strike throughout the U.S.

A union source said the offer was more than the nine cents the industry had said was its ceiling, but "nowhere near" the 13 cents union negotiators had expected.

The union has been demanding wage and benefit increases of 17.9 cents an hour for its 450,000 members in basic steel who now earn an average $4.40 an hour.

JOHNSON SAYS

'Steel Stability Vital For Our Boys in War'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson today told steel management and labor that he expects "continuing stability in steel prices" from the new contract they are now negotiating.

The president told a news conference that with "American boys still fighting in South Viet Nam," the steel negotiators must take into account "the overall greater national interest" involved in their decisions.

"The eyes of the country are on the leaders of both management and labor," Johnson told newsmen assembled in the east room of the White House.

Steelworkers are due to walk off the job Sept. 1 unless agreement is reached on a new contract before then.

The 33-man executive board of the United Steel Workers was scheduled to meet in Pittsburgh today to consider the companies' latest offer, said by management to amount to more than 13 cents an hour.

VITAL ISSUE

Underscoring his concern, Johnson said the final steel settlement was "of vital importance to every person in this country and to people in other parts of the world."

"There must be continuing cost and price stability in the country," Johnson said, and the American economy must remain "the strong keystone of free world peace."

The president, whose news conference was carried to the nation by radio and television, also made these other major points:

North Viet Nam should not entertain for a moment any "illusion" that the American people are less than united on Viet Nam policy.

Discussing a highly critical Republican "white paper" issued Tuesday, Johnson said that with American troops fighting and dying in Viet Nam, "I'm going to do everything to support and unite the country behind them . . . generally speaking, the country is united behind them."

He has ordered the defence department to build a $1.5 billion orbiting space laboratory to be launched in 1968 with two men aboard. Johnson said the Manned Orbiting Laboratory "will bring us new knowledge about what man is able to do in space" and "will enable us to relate that ability to the defense of the nation." As presently conceived, the MOL will be a big cylinder about the size of a house trailer in which two men will live and perform experiments in space for two weeks to a month.

SPORTS DIARY

By SHIRLEY POVICH
(The Washington Post)

WASHINGTON—For Spain, it was the biggest victory over the United States at anything since the sinking of the battleship Main. But in 1898, it was only an initial success that was followed by disaster. At Barcelona last week, Spain sank the U.S. Davis Cup team in the first three matches and won the whole war.

Tennis, I understand, is a wonderful sport but it is not quite my milieu. The town boys at Bar Harbor, Maine, couldn't set foot on the court of the Bar Harbor Swimming Club, where only the club members played the game. We could snitch balls that were knocked over the fences and easily outrun the uniformed custodians of the place, but otherwise tennis was not for us.

Nor was it ever in our imagination that tennis could be played by common people, or that public courts would some day be erected. Membership in the Bar Harbor Swimming Club, of course, was unthinkable because of three requisite—1) A million-dollar Dun and Bradstreet rating; 2) A copy of the Mayflower Pact attesting lineage and; 3) Ownership of a pair of long white flannel pants, the tennis dress of the day.

But tennis has now become important to lots of people and the Davis Cup is an exciting kind of world series in that league. Spain has never won one of these things or even gotten into the challenge round and there seems to be a kind of shock that the Spaniards have ousted the U.S. even before the interzone finals.

Santana Revels on Slow Courts

The tennis cognoscenti are not nearly so startled, however. That the Americans could blow the whole thing in Barcelona was not only considered, but the U.S. team was a bit of an underdog. Either Dennis Ralston or Frank Froehling, or both, could get licked by Spain's Manuel Santana, who revels on the slow clay courts of his native country.

It was a shocker, though, that Ralston was beaten in the opening day's singles by Juan Gisbert, the No. 2 man on the Spanish team, not by Santana. Ralston has been an unreliable tennis player, one of the world's finest on his good days, but never was he so unpredictable. All accounts reported that he froze against Gisbert, played as if in a daze, and was walloped in four sets.

After Ralston's defeat in the singles, it was a romp for Spain. Santana dispatched Froehling on schedule in the second singles match, reducing the U.S. to the dim hope that it could win the doubles and pull out both final singles matches. The tension was too much, and the rollicking Spaniards swept from a two-set deficit to clinch matters in the doubles.

Ralston Naughty Boy of Tennis

Indications are that the U.S. Davis Cup teams have seen the last of young Ralston, whose trigger temper has handicapped his play since he first moved into prominence. Still rated the finest natural tennis player in the U.S., Ralston's career has been marked by his haranguing of officials and running arguments with galleries, who did not appreciate his racket-throwing outbursts.

He won appointment as the No. 1 Davis Cup player despite these tantrums, however, a tribute to his potential. But it was not a popular choice, particularly with Forest Hills fans who on one occasion after a ruling went against him, watched naughty boy Ralston deliberately hit every ball in play over the fence in contempt of everybody.

Ralston himself has said that he doubts he will try another Davis Cup campaign. "I don't like tennis that well," said the young Californian. "I enjoy playing, but I don't intend to let it take up my whole life. I don't want to be another Pancho Gonzales who thinks, lives and breathes tennis."

Fuss By Captain Wasn't Necessary

Somehow, though, Ralston's attitude is unacceptable if it was intended to explain his defeat by Spain's No. 2 player. The United States was not asking him to think, live and breathe tennis for the rest of his life, merely for the one hour and 58 minutes in which he found himself on the court against Gisbert.

George MacCall, the non-playing captain of the U.S. team, left himself open to the second guess with his failure to name Arthur Ashe for the matches against Spain, but this is strictly hindsight. Ashe was the hero of the victory over Mexico but MacCall was probably proper in feeling that Ashe was not the solid man on the slow courts in Barcelona.

The U.S. non-playing captain did not distinguish himself at the finish, however when he raised a fuss and threatened to call off the final singles match because Santana pleaded a bruised hand and refused to play. Traditionally, the final match is meaningless when the cup play has already been decided and substitutes are thrown in freely.

MacCall finally consented, but it all seemed sort of grudging.

THAT'S MY DAD!

Proud youngster at Esquimalt Sports Centre Tuesday was four-year-old Gregory Harper, who got out on ice with famous father — defenceman Terry Harper of Stanley Cup hockey champion Montreal Canadiens. Terry was putting in day as guest instructor at summer hockey school. Gregory was trying to learn enough to follow in pop's skateprints.

Right Spot Jinxed One And Only Butler's Left

WINNIPEG (CP)—If Saskatchewan Roughriders fail to shake the injury jinx when they meet Winnipeg Blue Bombers tonight, Bill Butler could find his Western Football Conference career halted abruptly.

Butler, a seven-year National Football League veteran, will make his first Canadian start from the right halfback slot—a position in which four Roughriders have already been cut down by injuries in four games this year.

Butler is part of a brigade of Americans the Roughriders have been importing to bolster their injury-riddled ranks.

Saskatchewan coach Eagle Keys will use three injured players — corner linebacker Henry Dorsch (broken knuckle bone), halfback Bill Gray and defensive standout Dale West (leg injuries).

'SCARE YOU'

For all the Roughrider hurts, Winnipeg coach Bud Grant is not expecting a fifth straight win without a struggle.

He said after watching films of Saskatchewan's 10-10 draw with British Columbia Lions last week: "They scare you—this is the best club we've faced this far."

The Bombers have a 4-0 record this year, mainly on the work of their pass defence which has twice throttled B.C.'S Joe Kapp.

A complicating factor tonight could be the work of Hal Ledyard, former Bomber backup quarterback traded to the Roughriders last week.

Ledyard has been through many workouts in the Bomber backfield through the years and could have the tools to give the Winnipeg defence its first tough ground test. Keys indicated Ledyard will see action but didn't say how much.

The Roughriders have a 2-1-1 record as they head into the non-televised match. Saskatchewan hasn't lost to Winnipeg since Aug. 19, 1963.

In a Tuesday press conference Keys indicated the game could be a battle of defensive backfields because of injured offensive personnel.

The Bombers are in fairly good shape for tonight. Roger Savoie will return to action after missing two games, but defensive signal - caller Barrie Hansen will be on the sidelines with pulled knee ligaments.

A Winnipeg win would give the Bombers their longest winning streak since 1960 when they won 10 in a row. It would also put them four points up on Calgary Stampeders, who have played an extra game, and five ahead of Saskatchewan.

CAHA Accused Of 'Tampering' With Great Huck

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League is seeking legal advice about conversations between fabulous Fran Huck and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Del Wilson, general manager of Regina Pats, said the action was taken because the CAHA talked to Huck about joining Canada's national team without consulting Pats.

"The CAHA went behind our back. We're going to demand X number of dollars for the release," Wilson said.

Wilson thinks Huck, who has scored a phenomenal 200-plus goals for Pats in the last two SJHL seasons, is worth about $10,000.

Huck's reaction was: "Nothing will stop me from going to Winnipeg (the national team's home base). In fact, I've already enrolled at St. Paul's College in Winnipeg."

SOCCER WORKOUT

Esquimalt's second - division soccer team will work out at Bullen Park tonight, starting at 7.

ANDERSON, Ind. (AP) — A team from Manchester, N.H., set two stolen base records in handing North Vancouver its first defeat, 10-2, at the Babe Ruth League baseball world series.

New Orleans, La., powered by three home runs, scored a 9-3 victory over Mobile, Ala., in Tuesday's other game.

Manchester and New Orleans, the only undefeated teams left in the double-elimination tourney, will play Thursday night. The other four remaining teams play Wednesday. Brookfield, Ill., against Vancouver and Phoenixville, Pa., against Mobile.

Lee Moulton of Manchester stole five bases to set a series one-game record. His team totalled 12 stolen bases for a one-game mark.

New Credentials For Met Reserve

Railroad Regular Topples Dodgers With Key Double

By UP International

He's the New York Mets' second-string catcher, third-string outfielder and fourth-string third baseman.

He's been back and forth between Buffalo and New York so often he knows the route better than most New York Central Railroad conductors.

The most famous thing he ever did with a bat was strike out for the final putout of Jim Bunning's perfect game.

But .203-hitting Johnny Stephenson has another quality that makes him a perfect, loveable Met. he never stops trying.

TIME TO WORK

And so he grabbed a bat out of the rack when manager Wes Westrum called Tuesday night and strode up to the plate with three Mets on base, none out and the Los Angeles Dodgers in front 3-1.

Some of the Dodgers or their fans may have snickered but they aren't laughing now—not after Stephenson's three-run ninth-inning double produced an astonishing 4-3 Met victory.

Now he's a first-string hero.

The blow prevented the Dodgers from gaining a full game on the second-place Milwaukee Braves, who lost to the Cincinnati Reds 3-2, and the third-place San Francisco Giants, who bowed to the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-2. The Braves trail the Dodgers by a half game and the Giants trail by 1½.

CARDS CLICK

Houston Astros shaded Philadelphia Phillies 4-3 and the St. Louis Cardinals beat Chicago Cubs 7-6 in other National League games.

In the American League, New York Yankees defeated front-running Minnesota 2-1, Chicago edged Baltimore 6-5, Detroit topped Kansas City 8-2, Los Angeles Angels downed Cleveland 7-1, and Washington beat Boston 8-5 after a 9-4 setback.

A 5-foot 11-inch native of Hattiesburg, Ala., Stephenson hit only .158 for the Mets but had a .298 mark for Buffalo last season. Tuesday night's game-winning hit as a pinch-hitter was his third of the season, however, Johnny having delivered game-winning pinch-hits against the Phillies twice.

MILLER TAGGED

Stephenson's blow was off former Met Bob Miller and came after the Mets filled the bases on Jim Lefebvre's error and singles by Ed Kanepool and Joe Christopher. Lou Johnson had paced the Dodgers to a 3-1 lead with a run-producing single in the sixth and a two-run double in the eighth.

The Braves were just one put-out away from a 2-1 victory when Tommy Harper hit a two-run homer off relief ace Billy O'Dell to give Cincinnati's Jim Maloney his 15th victory. Maloney, in his first start since pitching a no-hitter last week, yielded four hits and struck out five in eight innings, and Ed Mathews hit his 29th homer for the Braves.

Don Cardwell pitched a five-hitter and Don Clendenon had two doubles for the Pirates, who handed 14-game winner Bob Shaw his seventh loss for the Giants. Cardwell scored the tie-breaking run in the sixth when he singled and tallied on Bob Bailey's triple.

Willie McCovey had two hits but Willie Mays went 0-for-3.

TRACK COACH CLAIMS:

Amateur Bagged Bag of Money For Irish Outing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Track coach William J. (Bill) Bowerman of the University of Oregon told investigating senators one United States amateur athlete secretly received an "airplane bag full" of money to compete in a track meet in Ireland. He did not estimate how much the money totalled.

Bowerman said "one of our own Oregon athletes" was offered an automobile as an inducement to compete in a meet sponsored by the Amateur Athletic Union but turned down the gift.

Such payments and gifts are strictly forbidden by amateur rules.

NAMES WITHHELD

At the committee's request, Bowerman gave no names in this or later testimony. But he agreed to give the committee in confidence names, dates and other data.

He made the allegations to bolster his assertion the National Collegiate Athletic Association is justified in demanding the right to give or withhold its sanction for college athletes to compete in AAU meets.

The NCAA has been boycotting AAU competitionas a device to force agreement to its demands for co-sanctioning rights for meets in which college and non-college stars compete.

BACKED BY THREATS

The AAU, on the other hand, reportedly is boycotting meets staged by NCAA's U.S. Track and Field Federation.

The rival boycotts are backed by threats to bar from competition athletes who defy the orders.

Bowerman testified in the second week of hearings in which the Senate commerce committee is trying to determine whether the careers of young amateurs may be hurt by the jurisdictional battle, whether it impairs U.S. hopes in the 1968 Olympic games, and whether legislation is needed to restore the peace.

Jim Beatty, a famed distance runner, pictured the AAU as a group which protects young Americans from under-the-table offers of payment.

Of testimony that college athletes are threatened with loss of athletic scholarships for defying NCAA boycotts, Beatty said, "I don't think a college should hold a scholarship as a weapon over the head of an athlete to prevent him from the type of competition that can help him develop his full potential."

Victoria Bowlers Threaten

VANCOUVER (CP)—Three Victoria bowlers climbed into contending spots in the B.C. fivepin championships here Tuesday.

He is followed by John Broste (1,384), Norm Goldie (1,374) and Doug Rowse (1,373), all of Victoria.

Finals will be played Saturday.

SEATTLE SPEEDSTER

That Go-Go's No Gag When Gerry in Drag

If you are having trouble getting quick acceleration from the family gas-buggy, perhaps you should talk to Gerry Ruth.

Ruth, a young Seattle man who likes to go places in a hurry, is an expert at getting an automobile to get up and go.

In fact, he once had one that zipped from a standing start to 208 miles per hour in just 7:43 seconds. It didn't look much like the machines you see pulling away from stop signs. It was a drag-racer and it seemed mostly motor and wheels. But it was a car.

At least it was until Ruth tried too rich a fuel mixture and flipped it six times at 203 mph on Sunday afternoon. Gerry survived but the car didn't and the speed addict set about building another AA fuel dragster.

It looks almost exactly like the old one but so far it won't go as fast. Ruth has only wheeled it up to 206 mph in a quarter mile.

Naturally, he's not satisfied. He's still tinkering with the motor and the mixture and he hopes to coax a bit more speed out of the mechanical monster Sunday at Cobble Hill.

Ruth and his dragster will be the featured attractions in a day of drag racing staged by Victoria Quarter Milers at San Cobble Dragways.

About 50 other drivers will also be trying to beat the clock when time trials start at 9 a.m. Finals begin at 1 p.m.

Leafs to Try Sunday Night Hockey Game

TORONTO (UPI) — The National Hockey League Toronto Maple Leafs have scheduled 14 exhibition games, beginning on Sept. 25 and ending Oct. 17, in preparation for the 1965-66 season.

The Leafs, Stanley Cup champions for three consecutive seasons before being bounced out of the playoffs last season by the Montreal Canadiens in the semi-finals, will play three games on home ice at Maple Leaf Gardens.

An Oct. 17 game with the Wings will be the first Sunday night NHL game ever played at the Gardens. Saturday night traditionally has been hockey night in Toronto.

Guys Battle Gals at Gorge

They say you shouldn't beat a woman, but some Gorge Vale Golf Club members will be trying to do just that Sunday morning. The occasion will be the annual women - vs. - men match, in which players will start at the following times:

9:30—S. Naysmith vs. G. Murphy; E. Saunders vs. J. Carlow.
9:37—G. Pumfrey vs. M. Ott; V. Sinclair vs. H. Panteluk.

AT MEMORIAL ARENA . . . . . . YANKS, TOO!

Russian Volleyballers to Visit

Volleyball, Russian style, will be served up Oct. 15 at Memorial Arena.

Also on display will be the best American version of the sport because the occasion will be a match between Olympic teams from the Soviet Union and the U.S.

The clash between the two international-class teams will climax a one-day volleyball clinic in the city. The visit will be part of a 10-city tour of Canada and it should give local volleyball a big boost, says Victoria's Don Smith, president of the Canadian Volleyball Association.

No decision has yet been made on the site of the clinic here. Courts being considered are at HMCS Naden, University of Victoria and the YMCA.

The touring teams are also scheduled to visit Vancouver, Kelowna, Calgary, Regina, Winnipeg, Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal and Halifax.

Canuck Pilot Happy; Phil Maloney Returns

VANCOUVER — Bert Olmstead, new coach of Vancouver Canucks, had some good news today for Vancouver's Western Hockey League fans.

Olmstead announced that veteran centre Phil Maloney has decided to play his 18th professional season. One of the most popular and talented players ever to perform with the Canucks, Maloney will celebrate his 39th birthday on Oct. 6, four days before the club opens its season against Victoria Maple Leafs.

"I feel I can help the club," said Maloney. "I've already started running in the mornings to get into condition."

"I watched Maloney play a few games last season," said Olmstead. "He was hampered by knee injuries but he was still in a class by himself. Phil has lost some of his speed but he can do things with the puck that nobody else can. He'll certainly help us."

Maloney, only player to win scoring championships in both the Western and American Leagues, came back from a knee operation last season to tie Billy McNeill as Vancouver's top goal-scorer. He had 29 goals and finished fifth in WHL scoring with 81 points.

Maloney's return gives Vancouver solid strength at centre. He will join holdovers McNeill, Larry Popein, Bob Kabel and newcomer Bryan Hextall.

Howard Wilson, the easy-going Colwood southpaw, has come up with his own system for repairing his game of golf . . . Until last week, Howard insisted, he could do no right on putting greens . . . Exasperated after looking at almost every putter in town, Wilson decided to make his own putter . . . A machinist by trade, Wilson came up with a novel new design, after laying awake most of one night and part of the next. . . .

After finishing the putter in his machine shop, he went out to try it in a nine-hole game . . . He one-putted seven greens and two-putted the other two . . . Needless to say, Howard is still flying on cloud nine . . . Wilson, incidentally, has taken out an improvement patent on the putter. . . .

Lister Stops Workers In First Playoff Start

Jerry Lister is a lad who throws a baseball as if pitching was the most important thing in the world. As far as Transport Workers are concerned, he throws much too well.

Getting his first chance as a starter in the Senior Amateur League pjlayoffs, the 17-year-old Lister went to work for Greaves Moving and Storage Tuesday night at Royal Athletic Park.

Showing remarkable poise, Jerry baffled the powerful Transports with his whistling fastball and well-controlled curve. When the firing was over he had blanked Transports 4-0.

Victory for the Movers deadlocked the best-of-five final at two games each and set the stage for a deciding tussle Thursday at 6:15.

Getting added speed on his pitches with a high-kicking delivery, the lean Lister yielded only three hits, none to Transports' four leading hitters, while striking out nine men and walking three.

HITLESS AFTER FOURTH

Showing the ability to fire his best pitches in tight situations, Lister was at his best in the late innings and held Transports hitless after the fourth frame.

Catcher Bob Lumley and Dave Rivers slammed successive doubles in the first inning to give Lister a one-run lead. Rivers and Bob Moysey each stroked a run-scoring single in the next frame.

Lumley accounted for the final run in the seventh, chasing home Tom Moore with a double off the fence.

Veteran southpaw pitcher Art Worth, who has appeared in all four games of the series, went the distance for Transports. He was touched for seven hits as he suffered his first loss in nine decisions.

Milwaukee Club Seeks Franchise

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Milwaukee Brewers Baseball Club, inc., formed a few weeks ago with some of Wisconsin's wealthiest men among its shareholders, announced it has applied for a franchise to operate a National League team here next year.

Granting of a franchise to the group, or sale of Milwaukee Braves to it, are the two forms of relief listed by Wisconsin Attorney-General Bronson La Follette in the state's pending anti-trust action against the National League and its members.

Coleman, Reed Top Rushers

REGINA (CP)—Two of the most respected fullbacks in the Western Football Conference, Lovell Coleman of Calgary Stampeders and George Reed of Saskatchewan Roughriders, are setting the pace in the conference individual rushing race.

Coleman, who paced the Stampeder attack in Monday night's victory over Edmonton Eskimos, has picked up 359 yards on 54 carries for a 6.6-yard average, according to statistics released Tuesday. Reed is close behind with 308 yards on 58 carries, good for a 5.3 average.

FLEMING FOURTH

Dave Raimey of the undefeated Winnipeg Blue Bombers is next in line with 270 yards, three more than Willie Fleming of the defending Grey Cup champion B.C. Lions. Raimey has carried 32 times and Fleming has toted the ball on 27 occasions. Raimey has an impressive 8.4 average while Fleming leads in that department with a 9.9 mark.

Statistics do not include Monday's game between Calgary and Edmonton.

Quarterback Joe Kapp of B.C. leads in passing with 51 completions on 107 tries for 750 yards. Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan is close behind with 648 yards on 38 completions in 88 tries.

MANITOBA BOWLERS . . . . . WIN PAIRS TITLE

B.C. Ace Leads Singles

EDMONTON (CP) — Three hours after Manitoba earned the pairs title, officials of the 1965 Canadian lawn bowling championship began to prepare for a possible three-way playoff in the fours.

Skip Ed Brown and Tom Griffith of St. Boniface, Man., captured their pairs honor with an extra-end 20-19 triumph over Quebec in the fifth round.

In the next draw, Manitoba lost its perfect doubles record when Brown and Griffith took a 13-10 whipping from the Alberta rink skipped by Jim Anderson of Edmonton.

The loss was meaningless because Alberta and the Nova Scotia entry skipped by Fred Hollett of Halifax trailed by four points with only one draw remaining.

CREATE TRAFFIC JAM

Victories by B.C. skip Dickie Williams of Vancouver and Ontario leader Don Beaupit of Niagara Falls in the sixth round created a three-way traffic jam with Alberta in the fours.

Joe Church of Alberta has completed his sixth game, while Williams and Beauprit each had one game today.

B.C. representative Alex (Sandy) Houston of Vancouver, favored to capture singles honors for the second time in three years, extended his winning streak to five games with a 21-10 triumph over Ontario ace John Sciamonte of St. Catharines, Ont.

Houston failed to clinch the title however, as Quebec champ Bill Groves of Verdun battled from behind to earn a 21-18 margin over Alberta standout Jim Huie of Edmonton.

With one draw remaning, Groves had eight points, two behind Houston, who was scheduled to meet Manitoba champ Stan Townsend of Winnipeg in his final game. Groves was drawn against winless Dave Davis of Saskatchewan.

CHAMPS QUIT

Soccer Woes In Okanagan

KAMLOOPS (CP) — North Kamloops United, a youthful team that surprised everyone by winning the Okanagan Valley Soccer League's Royal Cup this season, has withdrawn from the league.

Bernard Mourier, manager of the team, listed a number of reasons for withdrawal, charging that managers of other teams are incompetent and that his team is becoming "increasingly unpopular" with other teams.

He said no person with soccer experience can "be persuaded to operate a team under the conditions now existing in the league."

North Kamloops will play only exhibition games next season, said Mourier.

ARSON SUSPECTED

Five Horses Perish In Racetrack Blaze

SALEM, N.H. (UPI)—Five thoroughbreds, including a top race horse valued at $50,000, perished in a general alarm fire at the Rockingham Park racetrack stables late Tuesday night.

Authorities today began investigating the fire—the second major one at the track in nine days—for possible arson. The owner of the multi-million dollar park said he was sure the blaze was the work of an arsonist.

"I'll guarantee you this damn thing was set," said Lou Smith. He estimated damage to the stables at about $250,000.

FIRE ON AUG. 15

A half million dollar fire Aug. 15 killed 19 thoroughbreds, but authorities feel it began accidentally in a trailer outside a large stable.

Track officials identified four of the five horses killed as War Lance, winner of the $15,000 Granite State stakes last Saturday, Check War, Gay Delusions and Lawyer Lee. War Lance was valued at $50,000.

More than 50 horses were stabled in the large barn. Most were freed by grooms. None, however, was scheduled to run in the $250,000 added New Hampshire Sweepstakes classic Sept. 4th.

HAIL TO ALL HERE

One of the horses on hand for the sweepstakes race, Belmont Stakes winner Hail To All, was quartered in a stable about half a mile from the fire. He has been under constant police supervision since arriving at the park and was in no danger.

The five dead horses had been trained by Robert Reeves. Authorities said they were owned by the L. K. Haggan Stable of Lexington, Ky., and the Graffiano Stable of New Orleans, La.

A groom identified as John Rochforde of Pawtucket, R.I., was knocked down and trampled by a fire-crazed horse. He was treated and released from hospital. A Salem fireman and another track employee were also treated for minor injuries.

VIRUS ATTACK SENDS BLANCAS TO HOSPITAL

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP)—Homero Blancas, whose bid for leadership in the World $200,000 golf tournament was hampered by illness, entered St. Vincent's Hospital Tuesday.

A hospital spokesman said Blancas, who finished the tournament in a tie for fifth place, was in fair condition and comfortable with a high fever and a virus illness.

The 27-year-old Blancas was co-leader with Tony Lema after 54 holes of the event. But Blancas ballooned to a four-over-par 75 Monday and wound up with a 284 for $5,500 prize money. Lema won with a final-day 70 for 279.

BRIBE CASE

Promised Payoff Was Never Made

SEATTLE (AP) — Former Seattle University basketball captain Charlie Williams testified in U.S. district court Tuesday that he did nothing to shave the point spread of a game last January between Seattle and the University of Idaho.

The testimony disrupted the first day of trial of Leo Enrico Casale, 24, on charges of attempting to influence the game's outcome by bribery.

Williams' denial came as a surprise to the government, which moved at once to impeach Williams on the basis of a signed statement made to the FBI last Feb. 17.

In other testimony Tuesday, Peller Phillips, former guard on the team, said Casale, a Chicago night club operator, called him Jan. 22 and told him a man named Mike would give Williams $500 if he could keep the point spread in the game under 17. The $500 was never paid.

The point spread is the basis for most gambling on basketball games. Seattle won the game 89-72.

Hewlett Places Third In Blind Golf Tourney

CALGARY (CP)—Phil Lederhouse of Prince Albert, Sask., captured top honors in the Western Canadian Blind Golfers' Association tournament Tuesday with a 36-hole score of 209.

Lederhouse topped a field of 11 competitors in the two-day tournament at the Earl Grey Golf and Country Club.

He scored a 103 in the opening round Monday and added a 106 in the final round Tuesday.

Fred Small of Saskatoon was second with 243 and Ron Hewlett of Victoria was third with 248. Bill Cranford of Calgary had a 291 for fourth spot.

Tribal Hate May Spark New Violence in Yemen

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Some diplomats at the United Nations doubt that the Yemen peace pact signed Tuesday by President Nasser and King Faisal of Saudi Arabia will end the civil war in the Arabian Peninsula country.

One diplomat recalled the 1963 agreement between the president of the United Arab Republic and Faisal which was supposed to end the Yemeni war but didn't. He predicted new quarrels between the rival Arab leaders.

Another diplomat questioned the ability of Nasser and Faisal to bring peace between the Egyptian - backed Republicans and the Saudi-backed Royalists. He said the three years of fighting has turned into tribal warfare and the Republicans are split into pro-Egyptian, pro-Syrian and religious factions.

Neither the Royalists nor the Republicans were represented at the talks between Nasser and Faisal in the Saudi Arabian port of Jidda. Observers in Cairo believed that the Republican government would go along with Nasser, but there was no clue to the reaction of the ousted ruler of Yemen, Imam (King) Mohammed Al-Badr, who is holed up in the Yemeni mountains with tribesmen loyal to his cause.

FAISAL
. . . can pact stop war?

DENOUNCED THE PACT

Syria denounced the pact shortly after it was announced, charging that it "endangered the Yemeni Republican regime and placed Yemen under joint trusteeship of the U.A.R. and Saudi Arabia." This reversed Syrian President Amin Hafez's earlier approval of such a peace arrangement.

The Nasser-Faisal pact calls for:

—Withdrawal of the 50,000 Egyptian troops in Yemen, beginning Nov. 23 and continuing for 10 months

—Free elections in Yemen by November, 1966, to decide between the traditional monarchy and the Republican regime which overthrew the monarchy in 1962

—Creation of an interim council of 50 members representing all factions to prepare for a transitional government

—Joint Egyptian-Saudi border patrols "to ensure that no military aid is furnished either to the Monarchist or Republican forces in Yemen"

—An end to Saudi Arabian support of the Royalist and their use of Saudi territory to launch attacks on the Republicans

—Financial and cultural aid to Yemen from the U.A.R. and Saudi Arabia

In Washington, a state department spokesman said the United States would "look with great pleasure on the settlement of the dispute."

The war in Yemen is estimated to have cost 250,000 lives. United Nations efforts to bring peace to the country of 5,000,000 in the southwest corner of the Arabian Peninsula ended last September.

PARKS PETITION

Confusion Bothers Esquimalt

Esquimalt council wants the "confusion" cleared before it signs an agreement for the formation of a Regional Parks District.

Esquimalt reeve A. C. Wurtele said today he is satisfied with the present terms of the proposal by deputy minister of recreation and conservation Dr. David Turner, "but council wants to know exactly what it will be committed for."

A petition sponsored by Victoria Mayor R. B. Wilson, seeking immediate establishment of a board, has been referred by council to its solicitor.

'BLANK CHEQUE'

Esquimalt municipal clerk John Allan termed the document "a petition for a blank cheque."

He said the petition specifies neither the exact aim of the planned board nor the cost to the municipalities.

Promoted by Dr. Turner, the petition proposes the appointment of a board with the power to purchase lands for parks before prices get too high.

"While it would be all right to acquire park lands, council is questioning the responsibility which would be put on the municipalities for their upkeep and development," Reeve Wurtele said.

The reeve said he recently expressed this view to Dr. Turner.

"The deputy has now left out of the petition the sections dealing with upkeep and development and this suits me," the reeve says.

Meanwhile, Oak Bay and Saanich have signed the petition. The city has approved it and a decision is pending from Central Saanich.

Under the provincial Parks Act only two signatures are necessary to validate a petition from the municipalities.

Union Merge Talk Denied By Official

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Claude A. Edwards, president of the Civil Service Federation of Canada, said Monday there is no thought of a merger between the federation and the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CLC).

He told the federation convention it appeared fraternal greetings were being misinterpreted.

A report from Ottawa earlier Monday said a telegram—from Stanley Little, president of WPE — inviting merger had been sent to the convention.

Mr. Edwards said that while the federation is concerned with unity, it has for the time being "projected its thinking only in terms of civil servants."

The CUPE is an organization of municipal employees with a membership of about 90,000. The CSE has a membership of 80,000.

VICTORIAN IN GAZA

Refugees Find Life Is a Grim Struggle

Don Peden, a 19-year-old University of Victoria student, is one of six Canadian youths stationed in the Gaza Strip as summer volunteers in an international aid project for Palestine Refugees. They receive free room, board and transportation but no pay for their work, sponsored by the World Alliance of YMCAs and the UN Relief and Works Agency. Don, who lives at 3205 Cadboro Bay, will return to third year science studies at Uvic in mid-September. This is his first dispatch.

By DON PEDEN

GAZA — Over 400,000 persons live in the Gaza Strip, in war-torn wedge of land bordered by Israel, the United Arab Republic and the Mediterranean Sea.

Of these, 120,000 are residents; the rest are refugees.

The Strip is 25 miles long and three to five miles wide, nearly 65 per cent of it useless sand dunes, and it is the setting for a most tragic problem.

The resident citizens, found in the town of Gaza, are by far the wealthiest. This concentration gives a false picture to the foreigner, who sees only the best of conditions. Yet these conditions by our standards are by no means good.

The gravest hardships, however, have settled on the refugees who had fled from what is now Israel. They are of two types.

First, there are the homeless nomadic Bedouins, who roamed with their sheep and goats to suitable pastures. The 1948 conflict deprived these wandering people of their lands.

The second group has lost homes and jobs, and they account for the great majority of displaced persons in Gaza. After 16 years, these people still face day-to-day hardships.

The UN Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA) has replaced tents with small stone dwellings, provides medical care, minimum nutritional needs and limited educational facilities.

DON PEDEN
. . . summer volunteer

We have visited the eight refugee camps in Gaza and have spent considerable time talking to the people—especially the young men—and it is clear that these improved conditions are still not satisfactory.

Typical Home

In Bureij refugee camp we visited the home of a typical family. Approximately 100 families live in the same crowded building which used to be an army barrack block.

It is now divided into small cubicles, one to a family, each surrounded by a seven foot wall with one small door.

There are no windows. The ceiling is common to all cubicles, six feet above the walls. These cell-like rooms are nine feet square, have no facilities such as electricity and plumbing, but are kept clean.

In this tiny space six refugees must eat and sleep.

Inside is one broken bench serving as the family furniture. There is no clothing, only two very worn blankets in one corner.

No Meat

In another is the food — a bucket of flour and a little rice—rations for 15 days, providing 1,500 calories per person per day.

After years of refugee life, these people have gained little. They are in a state of bitter despair. Their pride has been injured and they have no future.

They have one obsession: to return to Israel which they still regard as their own homeland.

Close Look Taken At U.S. Adoptions

A proposal that Alberta step up placement of children for adoption by U.S. families will be watched closely here.

T. D. Bingham, superintendent of child welfare, Tuesday said only about 10 or 15 cross-border adoptions are made from B.C. in the course of a normal year but the situation is under constant review.

He said B.C. policy at present neither actively discourages nor encourages cross-border adoptions but the number of U.S. families willing to adopt children has been helpful with special cases, such as youngsters of mixed racial origin.

Mr. Bingham said he supported the basic philosophy that the child's needs must be given first consideration that underlay a special Alberta committee's recommendation to its government recently.

This reversed the policy established since a 1948 Alberta royal commission said adoptions by U.S. families should be discouraged as a matter of national interest.

Prior to the 1948 commission, about 60 Alberta children were adopted into U.S. families annually but since then the number has been cut to about 15 a year.

The current committee, headed by Judge H. S. Patterson of Calgary, surveyed more than 2,000 adoptions and held numerous public hearings before concluding that, among other things, the welfare department should "follow a vigorous policy of cross-border placements."

This was needed to help reduce the number of public wards, especially among Metis children and others of mixed racial background.

The last annual report of the B.C. welfare department indicates there is a growing problem here. Last year, of 6,542 wards in the care of the provincial government and the three voluntary children's aid societies, 964 children were placed for adoption but homes for another 110 needing them could not be found.

SPECIAL WEEK

The provincial cabinet last week, in an effort to promote more adoptions, signed an order proclaiming Oct. 24-30 as "Jeff week"—the initials for a committee known as joint effort for fostering.

The committee includes representatives from the Protestant, Catholic, Jewish and non-sectarian children's welfare agencies in the province.

The proclamation says it was formed "for the purpose of promoting interest in foster care homes and the selection of suitable homes in which to raise these children with basic security to become healthy and happy citizens."

Canadian Help Urged In Apple Harvest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pleas for Canadian and other help in harvesting New England's apple crop were made Tuesday.

Representatives F. Bradford F. Morse (Rep. Mass.) and Stanley R. Tupper (Rep. Me.) asked presidential intervention to permit the importation of Canadian labor.

Buffaloes Honor Lodge Brothers At Friday Rites

Members of the R.A.O. Buffaloes will honor two lodge brothers at a degree-conferring ceremony Friday at 8 p.m. in the Buffalo Hall, 1011 Goldstream.

A second degree-raising will be conferred upon Brother Sydney Spooner by the provincial Grand Primo Bro. Thomas Shields, K.O.M. and his officers.

Primo George Ayotte will also be presented with the third degree Knight Order of Merit by Knights president Rt. Hon. Sir Leonard Sweet and officers of the Knights Chapter.

Officers of the Buffalo Lodge from Vancouver and other parts of the island will attend.

Union of Churches 'May Take Longer'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The primate of the Anglican Church of Canada said Tuesday union between his church and the United Church of Canada may take longer than expected.

Most Reverend Howard Clark said earlier estimates that the proposed union would take five to 10 years "are a little optimistic."

He said it may be possible for the churches to come to the basic decisions on church union in that time, "but it could take many more years to implement the decisions."

Archbishop Clark is president of the General Synod of the Anglican Church, which began week-long sessions at the University of British Columbia today.

It is the first time the synod has met west of the Rockies.

Nearly 400 delegates are attending the synod, which meets every three years.

Kidnap, Robbery Charged

FERNLEY, Nev. (AP)—Two gunmen have been charged with robbing a California tavern at bayonet point, kidnapping a couple on a 250-mile chase and holding 11 hostages before 100 officers surrounded them in a lonely Nevada farmhouse.

Mrs. Alice Clements, 40, one of the hostages, said after the 13-hour drama ended Tuesday that the two men were "just a couple of scared kids."

Charged with kidnapping and robbery were James R. Gourlay, 21, of Detroit, and John D. Colvan, 20, Hudson Falls, N.Y. Both told officers they are army enlisted men.

The two had planned to try to escape across the Nevada desert on horseback, but apparently changed their mind after saddled horses were brought to the farmhouse for them by a Lyon County deputy sheriff.

THREAT MADE

The men had threatened to harm the hostages if the horses weren't made ready.

Some shots were fired by officers during the three hours Gourlay and Colvan held off 100 men of the FBI, Nevada highway patrol and sheriff's office from inside the Fernley farmhouse of Gill Clements.

No one was hurt. The men threatened at one point to kill one of the Clements' children unless officers withdrew.

Held in the home were the Clements, their six children, Deputy Sheriff Austin Lucas of Lyon County and Mr. and Mrs. Omar D. Ponders, a San Jose, Calif., couple kidnapped at the start of the episode.

HOSTS KIDNAPPED

The Ponders were taken late Monday night when Gourlay and Colvan robbed the Guys and Dolls tavern in San Jose with a bayonet and a .32 calibre pistol.

Gourlay and Colvan had been house guests of the Ponders.

Police said the pair kidnapped their hosts at gunpoint, apparently after Ponders, a 19-year-old private, accused them of using their home as a cover for a series of San Jose robberies.

A highway chase began early Tuesday after one of the Ponders scribbled a note on toilet paper and left it at a Sparks, Nev., restaurant, just east of Reno. A waitress found the note for help and told authorities.

Postal 'Farce' Leaders To Go, Says Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — The recent referendum of Canada's postal workers was termed a "vast farce" Tuesday night by William Houle, Montreal president of the Canadian Postal Employees' Association.

He was referring to a referendum distributed by the Postal Workers' Brotherhood in which 11,000 of the 19,000 postal employees voted. They accepted government pay increases and rejected strike action.

The Montreal union leader said: "You don't hold a strike vote after having had a strike and won your point, yet these imbeciles come out with a strike vote."

A wildcat postal strike which began July 22 at Montreal and Vancouver and spread to centres in Ontario and Quebec was settled some two weeks later when the federal government upped a pay increase to $510 and $550 from a previously proposed $300 and $360.

Montreal postal workers refused to participate in the referendum which Mr. Houle said was a farcical gesture "by those who played a pitiful role in the strike and tried by all means to smash it."

Mr. Houle said that at the next annual meeting of the association there will be a strong move to replace the present heads of the association at Ottawa. The meeting will be held Sept. 22-24 in Toronto.

'WERE BETRAYED'

The Montrealer said postal workers were betrayed by their leaders during the recent strike which, he added, would have ended in six days if it had been supported by the national executive.

Because they did not receive this support, the separate locals had to carry on the fight alone and thus caused more harm to the postal system than they would have if it had been a short, decisive national strike.

Another feature of the annual meeting in September, Mr. Houle said, will be an attempt to decentralize the leadership.

Rather than let the executive remain at Ottawa, where "they pick up the city's typical fearful attitude," there will be an attempt to set up a system featuring regional directors who will work full time and represent the regions of Quebec, Ontario, the Maritimes, the Prairies and British Columbia.

HUMAN RIGHTS VIOLATED?

Foreign Doctors Protest Ban

TORONTO (CP) — About 70 foreign - trained doctors who learned Saturday the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons has refused to lift its ban against their going into private practice said Monday they will take their case to the Ontario human rights commission.

Dr. Suresh Anand, a graduate of an Indian medical school and a spokesman for the group, said they are collecting data on their qualifications and the college's regulations to be presented to the commission within two weeks.

He said the latest issue of the college's semi - annual report stated the ban would apply to medical graduates from India, Pakistan, Turkey, Egypt, Japan and the Philippines. The majority of the Toronto group are from India and Pakistan.

Dr. D. Laurence Wilson, president of the college, in reply to charges that the foreign-trained doctors were being discriminated against said a month ago that the basis for refusing to allow them to practise was inadequate undergraduate training.

The college does not grant licences for private practice itself, but applicants who wish to write the Medical Council of Canada exam to get a licence must be approved by the provincial college.

Dr. Anand said Saturday the Toronto doctors' earlier protest against the college licensing regulations might be responsible for the continued ban against them.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 25, 1965 —PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

A few minutes ago, I was led unerringly back to this office by William D. Small, an American tourist from St. Louis, Mo., who took time off from his holiday with wife and son to show me my home city.

If you think there's something wrong with that statement, I agree. It's us residents who are supposed to take the pilgrim from the United States in hand, straighten him out if he's lost, and direct him to various points of interest.

To have the situation reversed is more than a little confusing. It is also humbling, because I have more than a suspicion that industrial psychologist Bill Small from Missouri knows Victoria better than I do after full 14 years of living in Canada's fairest town.

What put us in touch was a piece I wrote last week about the Rolls-Royce. Bill Small, it turned out, numbers five Silver Ladies among his 15 vintage cars.

We talked about these a while; then Bill amiably undertook to show me around Victoria, a city with which he has been deep in love since he first visited here as a U.S. navy ensign in 1943.

★ ★ ★

As we headed out along Hillside in my car, visitor Small confided that he hopes one day to become a permanent resident, thereby doing away with the need for a yearly 2,600-mile trek to his land of heart's desire.

A sound idea, I agreed, then asked directions like any tourist.

"You mentioned coffee," said Bill, "so I thought we'd put in at Oak Bay." He added casually, "along Lansdowne, if you don't mind, and through on Rutland to Beach. It's the long way around, but I like that area."

Convinced that the guy knew more than any tourist from St. Louis should, I followed orders meekly, with a pause at Cattle Point to learn how livestock from San Juan Island was once put ashore there.

Over coffee for me and a soft drink for him, Bill Small filled me in on several other obscure items of local history.

"You ever see a wattle fence?" I asked.

"No," Bill said, "but I'll bet you can't take me to Willie Newcombe's old place."

So I drove him out for a look at Victoria's original ash-splint fence on Arbutus Road, then scored again, unfairly, by hitting him with the new university buildings under construction off Finnerty.

★ ★ ★

As we cut across the city, the psychologist lulled me with casual directions. "Right at the next," he would say, or "left," and his bearings were unfailingly sound.

We fooled around for awhile among the little old streets near Ogden Point.

"Right," my pilot directed—and seconds later I was backing out of a one-way street I'd never known existed.

"I guess we missed the sign," Bill said, with a bland smile that emphasized his physical resemblance to Premier Bennett. "If you're lost, call on me."

Presently we peered through the tangled shrubs at the fine old Victorian brick house where a kindly recluse lived out his life.

"Willie Newcombe used to cut old ladies' grass free," Bill informed me, "and when he died, that place was found to be stacked with about $70,000 in Indian artifacts."

Half an hour or so later, after we had attempted vainly to call on Louis the endowed parrot in his Courtney Street abode, the too-knowing tourist scored again.

"Where," he demanded, "is the drinking fountain in Centennial Square?"

"Near the big fountain," I ventured.

"Not so," came the correction. "You look at all that spouting water, and it makes you thirsty. But there's no drinking fountain, and while a visitor may be out of line in suggesting this, I think they should have one."

At this point I quit trying and let myself be guided back to the Times by a route of Victoriaphile Small's choosing. It saved us a traffic light and two blocks.

MOTHER CECILIA
. . . "no changes here"

NEW ORDER WOULD BE 'IN SPIRIT OF ECUMENICAL COUNCIL'

Defiant Nuns May Break Away From Priory

By ROGER STONEBANKS

The six nuns who run the Good Shepherd Shelter for abandoned animals may reconstitute themselves as a separate house from the priory.

Mother Cecilia Mary said this morning she cannot say whether they will separate from St. Mary's Priory in Colwood, but such a move is being considered.

At present, sisters at the shelter and the priory are members of the Order of the Love of Jesus, a group which Mother Cecilia brought into the Roman Catholic Church many years ago.

Such a separation might involve establishing a new order, but Mother Cecilia said this takes much time and in any event it is only being discussed at the moment.

The move was being contemplated following a fresh order from the Roman Catholic Church for the nuns to leave the shelter and return to the priory, or become lay persons and run the shelter.

Mother Cecilia said members of different religions have joined together to form new orders, and this might happen at the shelter.

Such a move would be in the spirit of the Ecumenical Council and is "a marvelous idea."

The church has stated it does not consider the nuns at the Metchosin shelter are leading an "accepted religious life."

"Those sisters presently working at the animal shelter cannot continue in this work," said Archbishop Sergio Pignedoli of Ottawa, the Vatican's apostolic delegate to Canada.

The nuns "must live their life in community and dedicate themselves to the work given to them by their superiors."

Mother Cecilia said the latest order—a repeat of one issued last April—will make no difference.

"We shall just go right on," declared the 76-year-old nun, a distant relative of nursing pioneer Florence Nightingale.

"There will be no changes here. This fight just increases my determination."

She said it is a matter of interpretation whether the order's general aims exclude full-time care for animals, as maintained by church leaders.

"Our order says 'any work of mercy,'" she said. "We consider this a work of mercy."

Asked why she wants to remain a nun and run the shelter, she said:

"I have been a sister since I was 19 and at 76 I see no reason to change my status.

"I intend to stay a sister the rest of my life in this world."

Mother Cecilia also disclosed these developments:

- A lawyer is putting final touches to formation of a society with her as president to run the shelter. A board of directors would take some of the work load off her and ensure continuation of the shelter "if anything happens to myself."
- She would "not be surprised" if the $500 a month allowance from the priory for the sisters at the shelter is cut off at the end of the month.

But she is not worried about this possible development because financial support has been promised by others if this happens.

- The church cannot strip the nuns of their vows unless they themselves sign papers, which they won't.

Mother Cecilia started her animal care five years ago with approval from the sisters at St. Mary's Priory and the blessing of the late Bishop James Hill of Victoria.

A place was established in Saanich and two years ago the nuns moved to a 24-acre property at 3842 Duke Road near Albert Head.

Funds for the $75,000 shelter came from an inheritance of Mother Cecilia's and donations from animal lovers.

The church's latest order expressed the hope the nuns will follow the directive. If not, then ecclesiastical authority will reconsider their official status within the church as sisters.

Bishop Remi De Roo of the Victoria diocese said this leaves the next move up to Rome.

Escapee Charged At Campbell R.

Police Find Teen-Ager Hiding Under Log After Chase, Crash

The second escapee from Colquitz Jail was recaptured Tuesday after a wild car chase through Campbell River.

Rubin Wallace, 19, was re-arrested after being at large for 22 hours. He was driving a stolen car when caught, police said.

Wallace and another prisoner got away from the jail at 1:30 Monday afternoon. The other escapee gave himself up after wandering in the rain for 12 hours without leaving the jail property.

Campbell River RCMP spotted Wallace in a car shortly before noon Tuesday. They gave chase and Wallace raced through the village in an attempt to get away.

RAN AWAY

Police said speeds in the chase reached 90 m.p.h. at some points. Wallace's vehicle went off the road into swampy bush and Wallace jumped out and ran away.

He was found by police hiding under a log some distance off the road. Police said he had a change of clothes from those he was wearing when he escaped.

Saanich police are investigating Wallace as a suspect in two break-ins overnight Monday when a car was stolen from Suburban Motors and cash was taken from a service station.

Wallace may also face charges in Campbell River in connection with his driving.

Beer Stocks Good for Few More Days

Home deliveries of beer have ended except for those with advance orders.

But liquor stores and beer parlors in Victoria reported today they still have stocks on hand.

Beer drinkers here found themselves in a better situation than those in Vancouver, where 30 taverns closed Tuesday when beer ran out.

Closure of another 92 pubs in the Vancouver area is threatened by the end of the week, which would leave more than 1,000 beer parlor employees jobless.

NO TALKS

No talks were contemplated between the 500 striking members of the United Brewery Workers of America and seven breweries and warehouses in Victoria and Vancouver.

A spokesman for Local 513 of the Beverage Dispensers Union said the strike hasn't affected Victoria's 20-odd taverns yet.

He added that about 100 men will be affected when stocks run out, but some of them may find work if cocktail bars experience an upsurge of business.

WEEK'S SUPPLY

Beer parlors indicated they have as much as a week's supply on hand.

Liquor stores reported a steady demand for beer, but have sufficient stocks for at least a few days.

Pacific Brewers Warehousing, which makes the home deliveries, said it only has enough beer to meet advance orders.

The company is involved in the strike, but the union agreed to continue home deliveries until supplies ran out.

Other companies hit by the strike are Lucky Lager in Victoria and New Westminster; Carling's, Molson's, O'Keefe and Pacific Delivery Service.

VANCOUVER ISLAND'S representation at the Pacific National Exhibition increased by one right after the opening on the weekend, with a blessed event in the Holstein show string of Saanichton dairyman Bill Taylor. The new arrival is shown being bottle-fed by farmer Taylor's daughter, Clara, a student nurse at St. Joseph's Hospital. Little one was named "Miss PNE." The birth was premature and switch had to be made in the show for the mother, Saanwood Centurion Champ, who had been entered in dry heifer class. She went on to stand high in large class of milking cows.

'NDP RIGHT'

Medicare Subsidies Going Up

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan today said a statement by Premier Bennett proved the B.C. Medical Plan is inadequate.

He was referring to the premier's announcement Tuesday night in Powell River that the government intends to increase subsidies on premiums paid by persons with low incomes.

The premier did not disclose how much would be added to the present subsidies of 50 per cent for subscribers with no taxable income and 25 per cent for those with less than $1,000 taxable income.

'WE WERE RIGHT'

"He's finding out we were right when we said the plan as he proposed it at the last session would not work," commented the New Democratic Party leader.

"People on low incomes would have to take the bread out of their children's mouths to pay their share of the premiums and they're just not doing it," Mr. Strachan said.

"We said it would happen and I'm not a bit surprised. I'm of the opinion that there should be no premiums of any kind.

"Medicare is a necessity for every citizen and we have so much money in this province now that low income groups should not have to pay for it.

'NO BARRIERS'

"There should be no financial barriers between a patient and his doctor."

Mr. Bennett's prediction of higher subsidies follows recent disclosure that about 100,000 persons are expected to be covered by the government-medical insurance plan.

This is far short of the 450,000 the premier told the legislature needed coverage which would be provided by the government insurance plan with the help of premium subsidies.

Government officials have declined to reveal how many of the BCMP subscriptions involve subsidies.

Long Trip To Protest Weed-Killer

A Burns Lake couple arrived in Victoria today to protest the use of weed-killer in their neighborhood by the B.C. Telephone Company and the B.C. Highways Department.

They claim this is a breach of the Pharmacy Act and will take their complaint to the provincial health department.

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Sisson, who own 65 acres of woodland at Burns Lake, claim that their trees have already suffered from the spraying of weed-killer by the telephone company.

"This indiscriminate spraying has also damaged roses and plants in the area," Mr. Sisson said, "and some of the drinking water has been spoiled.

ARSON BLAMED IN BUSH FIRE

British Columbia's forest fire situation continued to improve today with hazard ratings listed as low throughout the province except on the northern coast where it ranged from medium to high.

One of the seven new fires reported overnight to the B.C. forest service was blamed on arson. The blaze at Lake Cowichan was quickly put out.

Ottawa May Buy Nematode Farms Here

Saanich potato farms infested with golden nematode may be bought by the federal government.

The proposal is being discussed in Ottawa to compensate growers who can't economically grow crops other than potatoes on their lands, a government spokesman said today.

The pest which attacks potato and tomato plants has been found here and in the McHugh Valley on the east side of the Patricia Bay Highway—a major potato growing area.

Nine properties have been found to be infested.

Meanwhile, plant experts are confident that nematodes exist nowhere else in B.C.

Dr. Phillip Campbell in charge of the nematode program, said there is no evidence of infestation on Vancouver Island north of the Malahat or on the mainland.

"We have taken thousands of soil samples," he said. These areas outside Saanich have been found free of nematodes."

Holstein Breeders In the Black

Lower island Holstein breeders won't be in the red when they return from the Pacific National Exhibition at the end of the week with their black and white beasts.

Four district farms are exhibiting in the Holstein dairy section at the big mainland fair this week (beef breed are featured next week) and all have come up with ribbons.

What is considered the top award has been won by William Taylor of Saanwood Farm, McIntyre Road, Saanichton. His four-year-old bull, Acme Snowden Baron, purchased two years ago in Alberta, was named grand champion Holstein male. And his Saanwood Pacemaker Prince won the reserve junior bull championship.

The Saanwood Farm also has collected numerous other awards along with Gordon Rendle and Bert Youle, also of Saanichton, and J. S. Judge and Sons Jagar Farm on outer Burnside Road.

Pearson Lands Three, Bobbles Three More

Prime Minister Pearson caught three salmon on a three-hour fishing trip this morning at Brentwood Bay before leaving by air for Vancouver and a Liberal party rally in the evening.

One weighed four pounds and the other two were three pounds. He hooked three bigger fish but they got away.

The prime minister and Mrs. Pearson were the guests for two days of Mrs. W. C. Woodward at Woodwynn Farm overlooking Saanich Inlet.

"These have been two of the happiest and most restful days in my life and I am overjoyed by the beauty of the inlet," he said.

Tuesday, he visited Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes at Government House for lunch. An aide said it was a time for the two couples to get together.

NEW PROGRAM

Meanwhile, a federal program of capital assistance to develop pleasure-craft harbors was announced in a Vancouver release from Mr. Pearson.

The announcement said marine facilities for commercial navigation are often crowded and unsuitable for the growing numbers of small craft on coasts and inland lakes.

The program will concentrate on such navigation facilities as breakwaters, protection works and dredging.

Federal help will depend on a commitment by local interests to develop wharves, roads, services, marinas and living accommodation as necessary.

"Harbors of refuge" would be established to help boats along unprotected sections of coastal waters.

Murder Trial Goes To Assizes

Janitor Dozes As Hearing On Freschi Killing Nears End

David Robinson will stand trial at the Fall Assizes for the capital murder of Susan Freschi.

The 24-year-old janitor was formally committed this morning for trial after a preliminary hearing of the charge before Magistrate William Ostler.

Susan Freschi was a 14-year-old California girl who came here last fall to attend school in Victoria. She was the victim of a sex-slaying near her home May 11.

Robinson apparently dozed for 45 minutes Tuesday when the preliminary hearing of the charge resumed in Colwood court.

HEAD IN HANDS

The accused man sat in the dock between two policemen. Most of the time he sat with his head in his hands.

But after a while he appeared to have fallen asleep. His head was down on his chest and he was breathing heavily. This went on for 45 minutes when he again looked up and opened his eyes.

The Crown closed its case Tuesday and the case was adjourned overnight for further legal argument. Crown prosecutor is W. R. McIntyre, assisted by David Wilson. Defence counsel is Alan Bigelow.

SAYS NOTHING

When Magistrate Ostler summed up on the legal points today he asked Robinson, "Do you want to say anything?"

Mr. Bigelow replied that his client did not. He also said the defence did not want to call witnesses at this stage.

The fall assizes open Nov. 8. At that time the date for Robinson's trial will be set.

Susan Freschi's body was found in a clearing in woods near her home in View Royal May 12, the day after she was reported missing.

Robinson was charged with the murder two weeks later. The preliminary hearing was adjourned several times to allow the Crown to prepare technical evidence in the case.

Then, when the hearing finally got under way, it took up four days which was longer than anticipated and all the evidence had still not been heard.

It was adjourned again but when time came to resume Mr. Bigelow was unable to attend because he had gone into hospital for a back ailment.

The hearing was adjourned once more and finally resumed Tuesday.

Police Planning Crackdown On Labor Day Drivers

In preparation for the three-day holiday weekend coming up with Labor Day, RCMP highway patrols will be out in force this coming weekend.

The idea is to emphasize the hazards of holiday highway travel and to curb the accident rate.

All available manpower and equipment including radar will be in use on main highways in RCMP jurisdiction.

The concentration of men and equipment is aimed at speeders, drivers who pass where unsafe, follow other autos too closely and commit other accident-causing violations.

Police suggest drivers allow themselves plenty of time to reach destinations, under-drive their physical capabilities and their cars' "roadabilities."

Private Meeting On Suspension Of Etchells

A special private meeting of Victoria city council is set for Thursday afternoon to discuss issues revolving around dismissal of Greater Victoria juvenile detention home superintendent Charles Etchells.

The move follows similar action by Saanich council, which recommends the matter for early consideration by Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee.

Meanwhile, lawyers for Mr. Etchells and his wife in a letter delivered to the mayor and city council Tuesday afternoon—with copies to councils of Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt—ask for reinstatement or full public hearing into the reasons for dismissal.

"The only other alternative is immediate legal action," declares the letter signed by Hummel and Owen-Flood.

Thieves Steal Whisky, Cash From Restaurant

City police reported this morning that two restaurants were broken into in the city overnight.

Prowlers forced a door to enter the Net Loft Restaurant where they stole a couple of bottles of whisky and about $45 in loose change.

At the Aurora Bowling Alley the thieves rifled a cigarette-vending machine and stole an undetermined amount of cash.

Ask The Times

WHY GROW OLD?

Can Husbands and Wives Use Same Reducing Diet?

More and more women write to ask if their husband can use the same reducing diet they do. Dieting together seems to be a fad today. It's a wonderful idea if both the husband and wife need to lose weight. It is fun to see who can lose most successfully, and the competition involved puts the pressure on.

Lowman

A man requires more calories than a woman when reducing because of his greater stature. My masculine slimming diets have about 1600 calories a day while my Nine-Day Diet for Women gives you only about 1,000 calories per day.

Although many people succeed in doing so, it is very difficult to follow an exercise program alone. Usually when overweight is present the figure defects are much the same for both men and women. For instance, the protruding abdomen is one of the most usual feminine figure faults while the bay window is man's most prevalent one. The following exercise is an abdominal slimmer.

One partner lies on the floor on her back with arms resting on the floor overhead. Her husband holds her feet down to the floor while she raises her trunk and touches her fingertips to her toes. She then slowly lowers trunk to floor and stretches out. After 10 of these motions, change places and get even with your brawnier half. The husband lies on the floor and raises his trunk while his wife holds his feet down to the floor.

After a few weeks or days, depending on your condition and how accustomed you are to exercise, do the same exercise but try to do it without having someone hold your feet down.

If you are very round shouldered your chest muscles will have shortened and your back muscles will have weakened and lengthened. The first thing to do is to stretch the chest muscles and it is nice to have someone help you at first. Sit on a stool or bench. Bend your elbows and place your hands behind your head, elbows up. Ask your husband to place his knee against your back between your shoulder blades. He now takes one of your elbows in each hand and rotates the elbows in circles, backward. As he pulls back on the elbows he pushes in with his knee. This must be done carefully. Do not push too hard.

If you would like to have my exercises for the entire family send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for them. Ask for The Family Exercise Plan. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Is Your Child 'Blue' With Nothing to Do?

By Penny Saver

My next-door neighbor has a real problem. It seems her youngest son, who is four, is quite desolate because all the other children near his age on the block are starting kindergarten this year and the poor little fellow isn't going to have anyone to play with. She's envisioning him underfoot all day now, and she was wondering if there was anything to solve this dilemma.

I have discovered a solution which will please both of them, keep Junior out of Mom's hair, and keep him amused at the same time. Also, he will be learning.

I'm talking about some brand-new educational toys which have just arrived in town. Let me tell you about some of them.

For the pre-schooler—and younger school students too—here's an easy and fun way to learn simple addition and subtraction with a small adding machine. The numbers run all the way up to 10 and to add, the child simply presses the button marked "add" and dials the numbers he wishes for a sum. Press a button marked "subtract," dial, and you have a subtraction.

Price of the little gadget is $2.98. It's wonderful as an aid for learning simple sums and it will keep a child fascinated for hours.

A little-older child might enjoy a brand-new series of jig-saw puzzles I noticed, selling for $1.49. These are all maps of the world, with different continents displayed with colorful pictures illustrating the history of every area.

The pieces are fairly large and fit easily together. It's a good way for a child to learn general geography and a little simple history.

If you are planning to take your vacation a little late this year and you have small children to worry about during those long hours driving, let him do some of the driving himself!

Selling for $5.49 is a complete model dashboard of a car with steering-wheel and rear-view mirror. The model fits easily onto a car — or if you wish to amuse a child at home, it can be attached to a stroller, a high-chair, or made to fit a chair. Other special features of this "car" are a four-speed gear-shift, glove compartment which snaps open and shut, and a gas dial.

Remember, Penny will tell you where to shop if you call 382-3131.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"Say, I remember this name! . . . Jefferson Keate! Isn't he the guy you could have married instead of me?"

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice:

When I made a silk print, lined dress for myself, I found the jewel neckline didn't hold it's shape, even though I made it just like the pattern told me to. Does it need interfacing? If so, do I have to rip the entire neckline open to put this in?—Mrs. G.G.H.

Dear Mrs. G.G.H.:

To fix it properly, you would have to rip the lining off. The patterns must generalize to apply to any fabric you might use. I always have my students cut interfacing for the neckline immediately and baste it to the wrong side of their material before applying the facing. The average woman is not proficient enough to handle the cut garment without stretching it out of shape. Interfacing always will make a professional finish with no danger of stretching.

Daughter Holds Party In Honor of Parents

There were 75 guests when Miss Diane Hammond gave a surprise party on Saturday for her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hammond of Moss Street. The affair was held in the banquet hall of the Esquimalt Municipal Sports Centre and was arranged for the couple's silver wedding anniversary which takes place next Tuesday.

After receiving guests, the honor couple was seated at a head table which had been decorated by their daughter and her friends. Frank Sellors proposed a toast to Mr. and Mrs. Hammond. Miss Nellie Poskitt presented a white carnation boutonierre and pink roses en corsage to her uncle and aunt.

An anniversary wedding cake, made by Mr. Hammond's sister, Mrs. Margaret Hiquebran was a focal point of the buffet-style dinner which followed.

Among the guests were Mrs. M. Lennax, Miss Bessie Poskitt and Mrs. E. Barr, who had attended Mrs. Hammond on the occasion of her marriage in Christ Church Cathedral.

Harry Liedtke was master of ceremonies for the dancing which completed the evening's festivities.

Next Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. Hammond will be honored at a family dinner, to be held at the Oak Bay Marina's restaurant. After dinner the couple will hold an open house from 8 to 11 p.m. in their home at 150 Moss Street.

TODAY'S RECIPE

BOILED HADDOCK OR COD FILLETS

Ingredients:

Four or 5 serving-sized pieces of haddock or cod fillets, 1 quart water, ¼ cup vinegar, 1 small onion, sliced; 1 small carrot, sliced; tomatoes and parsley for decoration.

Method:

Boil the water, vinegar, sliced onion and carrot in a saucepan for four to five minutes. Add slices of haddock or cod so the water covers them and boil for five more minutes.

Leave to stand in the water for another five to eight minutes with the heat turned off, drain the fish, throwing away the water and ingredients; or save them for a side dish.

Decoration:

To decorate, quarter the tomatoes to look like flower petals with a twig of parsley in the centre.

Sauce:

A boiled egg sauce goes well with this. The following is sufficient for 3 or 4 servings:

Ingredients:

One cup of cream, 1 tablespoon of melted butter, 1 tablespoon of flour, 1 chopped hard-boiled egg, 1 tablespoon of chopped parsley, salt and pepper to taste.

Method:

Bring cream to a boil, mix flour in the melted butter and add to the cream mixing until very smooth. Boil for a few minutes. Add the egg and chopped parsley, and salt and pepper to taste.

Complexion Care

The secret of beautifying the complexion is said to be in the saturation of the skin with a new type of moisturizer. The skin should take on an immediate healthy bloom as the tiny lines and blemishes are gently smoothed away. This saturation treatment with the moisturizer known as CEF 600 and CEF 1200 in double strength, is recommended by beauty care consultants who also recommend its daily use as a powder base to give the complexion day-long beauty treatment. HEIRLOOM DIAMOND RING

Her grandmother's diamond engagement ring was 'something old' for Maureen Patricia McMichael when she exchanged vows with Gary Lorne Patterson in the chapel of First United Church. For 'something borrowed', she had her mother's pearl necklace and earrings.

The floor-length wedding gown was of white Alencon lace and styled with a belled skirt, three-quarter-length sleeves and accent of cummerbund and bow. A coronet of seed pearls and aurora borealis held the shoulder-length veil of illusion net. The cascade bouquet contained gardenias, stephanotis and ivy.

Flowers in white and pink shades were at the altar for the ceremony at which Rev. Marvin G. Fowler officiated. Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. James McMichael, 3315 Linwood Avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Patterson, 825 Admirals Road. Mr. McMichael gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Lorraine Patterson, sister of the groom. She wore a full-length gown of aqua-toned organdy over peau de sole with headpiece en tone. Pink glamelias formed her cascade bouquet.

George McKay was best man and ushering guests were the groom's brother, Malcolm Patterson, and the bride's cousin, Tommy Beesley.

Dr. G. H. Keown proposed the toast to his niece's happiness at the reception which followed in Holyrood House.

A three-tier wedding cake, made by the bride's mother, centred the head table. It was decorated with green icing shamrocks and white butterflies of satin ribbon.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. P. McMichael with the Misses Jill and Jackie McMichael, Mr. and Mrs. W. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. H. Arnold, all of Vancouver; Dr. and Mrs. G. H. Keown of Pullman, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. A. Harris of Tacoma, Mr. Ed de Blaquiere, Kamloops; Mr. and Mrs. M. Patterson with Misses Susan and Gail Patterson and Master Norman Patterson, all of Port Coquitlam.

As her going-away outfit, the bride chose a two-piece suit of pale green silk, light beige accessories and yellow orchid corsage.

A LITTLE BIT OF HUNGARY

Hungarian entertainment was featured at the Chez Marcel, Colwood, recently, when Albert B. Bekes, restaurant owner, held a celebration in honor of St. Stephen, the first king of Hungary. Guest speaker was Imre Klima, an Hungarian engineer now living in Victoria. John Pastutics sang a national anthem of the country and Hungarian music was played by Stan Ustuchels. Mr. Bekes is endeavoring to establish at the restaurant an atmosphere blending the old and new worlds.

DEAR ABBY . . .

He's Got Oversized Problem!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our son is 19 and he has always been very small for his age. He wears a size 10 in boy's underwear, pajamas, shirts, socks and shoes, but he insists on buying his clothes in the men's departments. I am driven to distraction because I have to cut everything down to fit him. I offered to do all his shopping to relieve him of the embarrassment of going into the boys' departments, but he refuses to wear anything I have bought from there.

I am sure his size is responsible for his erratic behavior. He's cost his father a fortune because of the scrapes we've had to buy him out of. What can be done?

DISTRACTED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Your problem began when you and your husband failed to teach your son how to live with the misfortune of being undersized. You should have sought professional help as soon as this problem became apparent. Children who must go through life with a physical handicap need to develop early the attitude of acceptance. They should be given every opportunity to develop a skill in something within the realm of their capabilities in order to feel "big" in achievement. Parents must work hard to instill in those children a sense of security and worthiness. Perhaps it is not too late to get professional help for your son. It's worth a try. I hope your letter will inspire other parents faced with a similar problem to act more promptly.

DEAR ABBY: A well-known man in our town has broken every one of the Ten Commandments with the possible exception of "thou shalt not kill." And it wouldn't surprise me one bit if he's broken that one, too. He has born false witness, stolen, used the name of the Lord in vain, coveted his neighbor's wife, and has failed to keep the Sabbath Day holy. Yet he is right up there in the front row, pious as you please every Sunday morning. Do you think a hypocrite like that belongs in church?

A READER

DEAR READER: I can't think of anyone who "belongs in church" more.

DEAR ABBY: Whoever said the teen-age years were the happiest didn't know what they were talking about. I am 13 and I am not the least bit happy. Let me explain.

I can't date.
I can't wear heels.
I can't wear lipstick. (Even pale pink.)
I can't wear nail polish. (Any kind.)
I can't shave my legs.
I can't wear shorts or slacks.
I can't wear low-back dresses.
I can't listen to the radio or watch TV when I want to.
I can't stay overnight at anybody's house.

Had enough? Well, I have. I told my mother that she would regret it someday. And she will, too. I've been thinking about running away. I would, but I don't have any place to go. Please, Abby, tell me what to do. I don't deserve this.

SICK OF BEING BOSSED

DEAR SICK: Your mother is probably sick, too—of being battled. The things you would like to do are privileges teen-agers EARN by showing they are mature enough to handle them. One of the first signs of maturity is the ability to accept a decision without putting up an argument. Accept your mother's decisions for a while, and see what happens.

CONFIDENTIAL TO LARRY IN LONG ISLAND: If you are "putty in her hands" now, you can expect to be dirt under her feet after you're married.

Why your child's slippers should fit just as well as his shoes

Properly fitting shoes are important for growing feet. But every day your child spends many hours in slippers. So their fit is important, too.

Foamtread slippers come in proper sizes so they start by fitting right. And they keep their fit indefinitely.

An unbreakable heel counter holds the foot snugly inside the slipper. The heels don't wear down. And the smooth leather outsoles give safe, sure footing without marking floors.

Foamtreads are completely washable too.

So don't stop half-way: give your child every chance to develop strong, healthy feet by making sure his slippers fit just as well as his shoes.

P.S. When you buy their shoes for back to school, make them Packards.

EXPERT GIVES TIPS ON HOW TO RUN A BAZAAR WELL

TORONTO (CP)—Wide aisles and plenty of mops and brooms will help make a bazaar successful.

Aisles should be at least six feet wide or, if possible, eight feet.

"One thing that will annoy the public," says Mrs. Ronald Maskell, "is crowding and pushing. The aisles might seem a great waste of space, but people will leave if they are too crowded."

Barbara Maskell is sales coordinator for the women's division, Canadian National Exhibition. She sells the space and helps to organize and plan it, right down to a booth color, in the women's building at the Ex.

She says the time spent in planning the layout of the whole bazaar, each booth and jobs for the people can pay dividends.

She suggests you might even want a floor plan to help you decide what goes where, if you have someone who knows how to draw one up.

Mrs. Maskell says there are few rules about where is the best place for various kinds of booths. One exception is the food table.

"If you have a tea booth, put it by the kitchen. There may be a more attractive area, but near the kitchen is best. Keep the dirty dishes and the garbage cleared away and have plenty of mops and brooms and pails. People do spill things and children do get sick. We find sawdust and a shovel useful."

The other booths might be organized like a department store, in related groups.

"For instance, we group handicrafts, knitting and sewing. Group things to do with children, the fish ponds and things like that, and a booth of small items which children buy for their mothers. Put a cooking show in a section with preserves and baking."

She says she believes four-sided booths are most efficient if you have enough space for them, but other things are more important.

"There should be enough staff and their working material should be convenient. Have paper bags and change right there. It cuts down on sales if they have to take time to go get them, and here at the Ex, that's when things disappear from booths."

Mrs. Maskell suggests using a framework of posts and a cross-bar over your booth as a place to put items on display and tell people which booth is which.

SHOW EVERYTHING

"It won't always be practical. Usually you'll want to sell everything you have, and if you put up a baby's sweater, it would have to come down. But there is a lot of talent in these shows. Have someone draw a baby's sweater or letter a colorful sign saying baby's knitwear here. It adds color to the show."

"You should put all of your sale items out where they can be seen, and in some cases a display of samples might cut down the wear and tear on the items.

"Women are going to go through things at bazaars as they do at stores. It's best to have everything out and nothing under the table. Someone will always think what's under the table will be better.

"If you have aprons in eight basic colors, display all eight and minimize the pawing through your stock."

She has two small tips for the people who work in the booths.

"It doesn't matter if you wear high heels or flats, but take extra shoes. Walking on concrete floors, I change my shoes three times a day. If your feet hurt, you've had it.

"And if you're setting up in the morning or are going to work a long time, you're wise to have makeup with you and take time to clean up before the customers arrive. If you've worked hard and you're a mess, you're going to go on feeling a mess unless you do freshen up."

FEW CHALLENGERS—Karate expert Margitte Kilberg of Calgary finds few challengers in her specialty. The 26-year-old brunette will be presented in three months with the black belt for karate and will become the only woman in Canada to have reached that standard. She says women find it harder than men to learn karate because "we do not learn as children how to fight with our hands. We learn to bite." (CP Photo.)

Canadian Faces Fleeing Charge

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — John Christopher Doyle, 49, a Canadian fugitive from an order to surrender last month to begin serving a prison term, was indicted by a federal grand jury Tuesday on charges of bail jumping.

DOYLE
. . . no extradition

Doyle, who resigned last month as board chairman of Canadian Javelin Ltd., was charged with wilfully failing to surrender July 15 in U.S. district court. He had been convicted of mailing unregistered Canadian Javelin stock.

U.S. Attorney Jon O. Newman requested a $100,000 bond be set for Doyle if he is ever apprehended in the United States. Doyle cannot be extradited from Canada since stock-fraud cases are not covered in extradition treaties between the United States and Canada.

U.S. district Judge Robert C. Zampano approved the bond request and issued a bench warrant for Doyle's arrest. The new warrant follows one issued last month by U.S. district Judge T. Emmet Clarie.

Doyle was sentenced May 3 by Clarie to a prison term of three years to be suspended after three months, plus a fine of $5,000. He was granted a stay of execution of the sentence and then launched an appeal of the case to the U.S. Supreme Court review.

Associate Justice John Marshall Harlan, however, refused to approve a bond request for Doyle pending the review.

IRON CURTAIN MAY RISE FOR BEATLES

WARSAW (AP)—The Poles are trying to get the Beatles to come to Poland for their first performance in Communist-ruled East Europe.

An official of Pagart, the Polish artistic booking agency, said that contacts have been made with the British quartet's manager. He said it is almost certain the Animals, another rock 'n roll singing group, will perform for the Poles this fall.

Sleeping Sickness Stalks Prairie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sleeping sickness continued to haunt health authorities in Alberta and Saskatchewan Tuesday but there was no accurate estimate of cases among humans or horses.

An Alberta veterinary described the outbreak as the worst since 1938-39.

The death of a 10-year-old girl, suspected to have been caused by sleeping sickness, was being investigated by the Alberta health department.

Western equine encephalitis, a kind of sleeping sickness, was suspected as the cause of death of a Regina child last week.

Alberta has six suspected cases among humans but there was no accurate estimate of the number of suspected chases among humans in Saskatchewan.

In Alberta there were four confirmed horse cases among 100 being investigated. There was no estimate of the number of suspected cases among horses in Saskatchewan.

Manitoba has not experienced any outbreak among horses this year and since summer is nearly ended it is unlikely there will be an epidemic among humans.

Encephalitis is believed spread by mosquitoes which have been more numerous than usual in western Canada this year.

A tourist from eastern Canada was in serious condition in a Calgary hospital with what was suspected to be encephalitis. Calgary has not had a case of sleeping sickness since 1943 when two cases, one fatal, were reported.

SETTLEMENT HOPES HIGH

DUBLIN (UPI) — Hopes were high today for a settlement of the eight-week-old printing strike which has closed all Dublin's newspapers.

Union representatives and employees were meeting the labor court Thursday to discuss the strike. Printers have demanded a 33⅓ per cent wage increase.

The strike has put some 5,000 printers and 400 journalists out of work since July 4.

Heavy Highway Toll

ROME (AP)—Italy's big mid-August holidays took a toll of 163 dead and 3,280 injured on highways jammed for 10 days with the heaviest traffic of the year. The death toll was seven less than during the period last year, but the number of injured surpassed last year's figure by 404.

HEY WALDO!

Modern Furniture In Police Station

City police commission Tuesday ordered $19,024 in furnishings for the renovated police headquarters in Centennial Square.

Items are of the same type and quality used in the new City Hall and delivery is timed for opening Oct. 1.

"I wonder if Waldo will approve," quipped commission chairman Mayor R. B. Wilson.

He referred to a charge by Victoria MLA Waldo Skillings during the 1965 legislative session that City Hall was furnished luxuriously.

MANY SUPPLIERS

Among the items that will be bought from five local firms, two Vancouver bidders and the city public works yard are executive desks, upholstered swivel chairs, side chairs, tables, book cases, wastebaskets, cabinets and benches.

The total comes to $524 more than appropriated in this year's budget for police station - court furnishings, but the shortage is expected to be made up through public auction of old furnishings.

Major contracts went to J. R. Pipes Business Systems Ltd., for $8,946; Pacific Office Equipment for $3,799, and to B-Wys Sales Co. for $3,374.

An auction of 45 bicycles will be held at a storage building, 510 Johnson, 9 a.m., Sept. 11.

Permission was given the chief to attend the annual chief constables' national convention at Niagara Falls, Sept. 14 and 15.

Authority to spend $6,000 for the replacement of three police cars was given by commissioners. Decision on whether to buy current or 1966 models was left until later.

An additional three-wheel motorbike for parking patrol will be obtained for $2,100. Chief John Gregory explained that expansion of limited parking regulations into James Bay makes this necessary.

★ ★ ★

The chief agreed to accompany city council members to a meeting with the attorney-general on the possibility of lowering the juvenile age limit to 16 and other matters relating to handling of delinquents.

Mayor Wilson said it will be suggested to Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee that the matter of juveniles be reviewed with representation from all local councils.

He noted that most Canadian provinces had lowered the age limit.

Gregory's New Rules Piled 2 Inches High

Police Chief John Gregory has completed a two-year task that sets down for the first time in 30 years a standing book of orders for Victoria police force.

The Chief Constable's Rules and Regulations went to police commissioners Tuesday.

Comparable with the "blue book" of many other police repartments, the Commissioner's Standing Orders of the RCMP, and the armed forces' Queen's Orders and Regulations, the new book will be for internal consumption only, Chief Gegory said.

Its pages stack some two inches thick and it will be bound in loose-leaf form, making it easy to revise.

★ ★ ★

It has a philosophy, too, "with the emphasis on tact, diplomacy and courtesy," the chief said.

The last such compilation governing the force was published in 1935, making the re-writing a lengthy chore in view of changes over the 30 years since.

One of the newer aspects of the book is the way in which it details the duties of each job or position on the force.

The book also sets down ethics, behavior and disciplinary procedures.

Commissioners will read the draft and make suggestions at their next meeting.

TV for Every Home Replacing Children?

Oak Bay has more television sets per capital than any other community in B.C. But it has fewer youngsters to watch it.

A recent survey by B.C. Hydro lists Oak Bay as having 103.2 television sets per 100 homes plus 181 radio sets per 100 homes.

But, says the report, Oak Bay has only .09 children per home as compared with 1.3 children per home in Esquimalt, the highest ratio it the Greater Victoria area.

Only downtown Vancouver with .07 children per home and the city of Victoria with .08 have fewer children.

Oak Bay also leads the province in the number of electric ranges (89.5 per cent), refrigerators and deep freezers (98.2) per residence.

The survey also reveals that 2.7 of the homes in Oak Bay are heated by electricity, 77.3 per cent by oil and 2.3 per cent with coal and wood.

According to the Hydro statistics more than half of the homes in the 60-year-old municipality have been built in the past 20 years with 76.4 per cent of them owner-occupied.

Plot Foiled To Kill FDR Soviet Claims

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet magazine Ogonyok claims Soviet intelligence foiled a Nazi plot to liquidate U.S. President Roosevelt, British Prime Minister Churchill and Soviet Premier Stalin at the Tehran conference.

The account says an 18-year-old Soviet spy, a girl, found out about the plot from an important Nazi spy who promised to bring her some Persian rugs after his next job, in November, 1943, the time set for the conference.

The magazine gives this account:

The Germans dubbed their plot The Remote Leap and planned to send a plane-load of paratroopers from Copenhagen to Tehran. Roosevelt was their principal target.

"We will come to agreement with the English and Americans sooner or later," a Nazi agent was to have reported said, adding that without Roosevelt it would be easier to get an agreement with the Americans.

KILLED SPIES

Following the tip from the girl, Soviet counter - espionage agents poured into the Iranian capital, killed several Germans and persuaded Roosevelt to move from the American Embassy to a house in the Soviet Embassy compound which could be protected better.

The British Embassy, where Churchill was staying, was near the Russian compound and a special Soviet guard was put around it.

"Thus Soviet intelligence men cut the Remote Leap of Hitler's intelligence service," Ogonyok said.

The story is part of a report on activities of Nikmlai Kuznetsov, a Soviet spy who worked his way into the confidence of a Nazi espionage ring based in Western Russia while it was occupied by the Germans.

SUBURBS

More Firemen Needed

SASKATOON (CP)—Shortage of manpower probably is the major problem facing fire chiefs and there is no solution in sight, D. M. Baird of Montreal, director of the fire protection engineering division of the Canadian Underwriters Association, said Tuesday.

Mr. Baird told the Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs annual convention that the manpower shortage faces cities in the 10,000-to-100,000-population bracket.

Smaller communities, he added usually can raise volunteers, and larger cities can find the costs less severe.

SUBURBS WORST

"However, the fact remains that many, many cities and towns in Canada have fire departments which are hopelessly undermanned, which have been that way for a long time, and show every likelihood of remaining that way."

The suburbs around the larger cities seem to have the worst protection conditions, since it is difficult to raise a volunteer or full-time fire department, he said.

Mr. Baird told delegates the situation exists because of the high cost resulting from higher salaries, reduced hours, heavy expenses of expanding cities and citizens' preference for luxury items such as arenas and swimming pools.

He said he saw no reason why policemen could not be used as call men by the fire department.

Talented Tongue Gives Irishman Reform Chance

A "plausible" little Irishman was convicted in city court Monday of vagrancy, Arthur Byrne, 61, was bound over in his own recognizance for six months.

Magistrate William Ostler said it looked as if Byrne worked a bit and then drank what he earned. Replied the accused, "You can't judge a book by its cover, Your Honor."

He told the magistrate that he had spent some money on buying clothes. Pulling at his shirt he said, "I don't look like much now but the last time I was here I looked like a tramp."

He told Magistrate Ostler that he is trying to improve himself "bit by bit." The magistrate said that is all anyone can do and then acceded to Byrne's plea to give him another chance by not sending him to jail.

Two policemen testified they overheard Byrne asking a man for money on Broad Street Sunday morning.

Byrne said he couldn't recall the incident and stated he was on his way to hear the band at the Salvation Army Citadel at the time.

Soviet Space Chief Scores Moon Contest

MOSCOW (AP) — The head of the Soviet space program said Monday a great deal remains to be learned before "we can talk of landing a man on the moon or a planet."

Dr. Mstislav Keldysh said it is not even possible now to choose a landing site on the moon because there is insufficient information.

"Man is approaching interplanetary travel Keldysh said, "but it would be bad if he let himself be carried away . . . if he acted on the basis of insufficient information."

Keldysh, president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, deplored "the exaggerated interest in the world" in putting a man on the moon. More basic problems involve acquiring more scientific information on the universe and on interplanetary travel, he said.

"I am convinced that no one can fix a realistic date" for getting a man to the moon, Keldysh added. "Maybe I am wrong."

U.S. SETS TARGET DATE

The United States has announced a target for a man on the moon in 1969. The head of the U.S. program, Dr. Joseph Shea, said last June a continued Apollo program of earth orbits could advance that date to 1968.

Keldysh's comments came at a press conference on details of Zond 3, the Soviet space vehicle that took pictures July 20 of the moon's far side. Some new technical details were disclosed within the framework of already published results.

Keldysh said Zond 3's moon pictures were "practically as good as the best photographs of the visible side of the moon taken at observatories on earth.

The 2,204-pound vehicle took 25 pictures and transmitted them back at times when the earth's rotation put the Soviet Union in sight of Zond 3. The Soviet Union lacks a chain of receiving stations around the world such as enables American vehicles to broadcast back constantly.

Keldysh said about 580,000 square miles of the moon's surface remained unseen. A Soviet vehicle in October, 1959, transmitted back the first photos of the other side and Zond 3 almost completed the job.

Doctor Fails Final Hurdle For Rezoning

A Cordova Bay doctor who appeared to have won his battle for a professional office and residence had his plans defeated at Saanich council Monday night.

Councillors voted 3-2 against a motion to introduce a bylaw allowing Dr. Douglas Critchley to build a residence on Cordova Bay Road with office space for himself and an architect.

At a public meeting three weeks ago, councillors voted 3-2 to recommend the necessary change in zoning from residential to commercial.

Couns. William Campbell and Doug Crosby supported the doctor, but they were outvoted by Couns. Gregory Cook, Harold Todd and Ed Lum.

REEVE OPPOSED

Reeve Hugh Curtis also apposed the bylaw.

The vote came after two residents were heard and a petition read supporting the doctor in his bid for an office but opposing a "commercial office building."

Reeve Curtis pointed out that under the present residential zoning, the doctor could erect a home and have an office in it. But there could be no provision for off-street parking.

Those against the bylaw said it would be spot commercial zoning quite close to an existing commercial area.

Schools Set Advance Registration

All junior and senior secondary schools in Greater Victoria will be accepting advance registrations before the summer vacation period ends.

Early registration can be made at Oak Bay, Mount View and Victoria secondary schools on Aug. 30, 31 and Sept. 1.

Esquimalt Senior, Mount Douglas and all junior secondary schools wil accept advance registrations Sept. 1, 2 and 3.

Elementary schools will not be open for new registrations until Sept. 7, the day of school opening.

Students in Grades 8 to 12 who have come to Greater Victoria since the end of June should seek an interview with the principal of the school they expect to attend.

District school superintendent John Gough said it is expected all accommodation in the secondary schools will be used by local pupils.

He said students living outside school districts will not be accepted here unless there is a "very special reason."

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

The battle of ratings has hit the British television scene and renewed a dispute over how many American western and crime shows should be telecast at which hours.

Stephen

The fight came to the surface this week when the chairman of the broadcast authority in Britain, Lord Hill, ordered fewer American programs in the prime 8 to 9 p.m. time slot from Monday to Friday.

When the order was made public, the popular tabloid, Daily Mirror, came out with a front-page headline: "ITV bosses to fight ban on westerns —it wil just help BBC, they say."

ITV stands for Independent Television Authority, the commercial network which since 1954 has been competing for viewers with the publicly owned British Broadcasting Corporation.

Lord Hill is appointed by the government and has broad regulatory authority over the independents.

ITV producers claim that the commercial network must win a large viewing audience from late afternoon until the 8:55 news. Audience surveys show that if the viewer stays for the news he is locked in for the remainder of the evening.

BBC has not yet released its fall lineup, but ITV producers feel it will slot shows like The Man From U.N.C.L.E. and other American imports in the 8 p.m. spot.

Therefore ITV can retaliate only with similar mass-appeal programs such as westerns and crime shows.

This battle between the two TV outlets shows the dilemma now evident in British broadcasting circles. Whether to produce quality shows for fewer viewers or to reduce standards and telecast such cultural offerings as The Beverly Hillbillies (very popular in Britain).

Under the broadcast law, both BBC and ITV are limited to keeping foreign-produced programs to 14 per cent or less of broadcast time. It is only natural, therefore, that competition is lively to fill the period with the top American-produced programs.

ITV, unlike the North American practice, runs its commercials bunched together at the end of a show rather than disturbing the skein throughout the program. BBC carries no commercials. But both want that audience and so the fight.

Saanich Asks A-G To Rule

Saanich wants to know if it can be forced to drop its court facilities in favor of a centralized court for Greater Victoria to be located at Centennial Square.

Reeve Hugh Curtis, in a letter to deputy attorney-general Dr. Gilbert Kennedy, pointed out the municipality built a new police station-fire hall in 1962 to include cells, a magistrate's office and court room.

The reeve said since these facilities have been provided "we would respectfully request that you advise us of the statutory authority whereby we would be required to abandon our own facilities and make use of a central court located elsewhere."

He said both the police commission and council are concerned about the central court to be located in the city because of "a very real inconvenience" to Saanich police.

If each case was heard in the city, it would require two policemen and a car to transport a prisoner to the city and then bring him back when necessary. Officers would also have to journey to the city to give evidence.

Saanich has asked that its police court remain in the present building and suggested that cases from Central and North Saanich also be heard there.

Radio Tower Knocked Over

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) The remaining tower of Sherbrooke's English-language radio station, CKTS, was toppled by vandals during the night and the station Tuesday was off the air indefinitely. Three guy wires were cut to bring down the 200-foot tower, the same operation by which the main tower was toppled July 1.

Both actions were blamed on hoodlums but there have been no arrests yet. When the first tower was toppled the vandals left the separatist letters FLQ painted in several places on the tower and other objects. No painting or lettering was done in the latest act.

Oak Bay to Make Second Bid for Newport Property

Two residents are holding up improvements to the Oak Bay Ave.-Newport-St. David intersection.

Oak Bay traffic committee Tuesday night learned the residents have refused first offers on small portions of their properties.

They are on Newport Ave and are needed to give motorists a better view when making turns on or off the street.

Committee agreed to raise offers of $1,250 for the properties and try again. If this fails, expropriation will follow.

Yachts on Way After Maui Race

The 43-foot Victoria sloop Norena of Wight is heading home following a successful race this summer to the Island of Maui in the Hawaiian group.

The race, which included Vancouver sloops Long Gone and Velaris, proved to sailors a 2,300-mile Victoria-Maui race could become a major long-distance event.

Long Gone led the trio to the islands, making the run in 17 days. Norena placed third about 36 hours behind.

Norena, with owner Ron Ramsey, 3905 Tudor, at the helm, began her homeward journey Aug. 5 and is due in Victoria in about three days.

Overseas Mail Rate Boosted

OTTAWA (CP)—Surface postal rates to overseas countries will be increased Jan. 1 in line with a new rate structure being adopted by the universal postal convention, it was announced Tuesday.

It will not affect letters and postcards addressed to the United States, Central and South America, Britain, the Commonwealth, The West Indies, Ireland, France or Spain.

Letters to other countries, however, will jump to 10 cents from six on the first ounce and to six cents from four on each additional ounce. Postcards will be six cents instead of four.

Birth Control In China Soon?

GENEVA (UPI)—Communist China's population will number 1,000,000,000 by 1980 at the present birth and death rates, the first international conference on family planning programs was told Tuesday.

China's population now is around 750,000,000, two experts told the conference which opened Tuesday.

Irene Taeuber of Princeton University and Leo Orleans of the National Science Foundation said, however, that the Peking government will probably take "firm decisions and decisive action" soon to control the exploding population.

Tahsis Seeks Major Extension Of Tree Farm

The Tahsis Company Ltd., today asked Forests Minister Ray Williston to extend their Tree-Farm Licence by 100,000 acres in the general area of Zeballos on the west coast.

The application was made at a special forestry hearing in the Victoria Law Courts.

Tahsis asked the minister to approve the addition of two blocks to the present licence.

Block B, the larger area of the two, includes the Zeballos Valley and the headwaters of the Artlish. Block A lies north of the townsite of Gold River and northwest of Muchalat Lake.

WATERSHED AREA

It would add a section of the upper Gold River drainage, surrounding Gold Lake, Eena Lake, Chetwood Lake and the immediate adjacent headwaters of Grilse Creek.

In the brief, presented to Mr. Williston this morning, Tahsis claimed inclusion of the two areas "is required to justify the company opening up and developing for timber management and forest production purposes, an essential access road system . . ." and "extension of the Zeballos River road to the presently operable Upper Island Highway."

The company said development of communities on the West Coast had been retarded for years by lack of roads and an unstable economy.

It claimed granting the extension application would bring stability to the area through steady incomes for workers and provide isolated settlers with good roads to other communities.

"Mining, fishing and logging industries in the past have all experienced operational difficulties in this area," the brief stated. "Our proposal to revise the Tree-Farm Licence boundaries will change the whole life-line and complexion of this historic portion of B.C."

PULP MILL

Tahsis already is planning to build a pulp mill at Gold River with 750 ton capacity. Production should commence in 1967.

The company also operates a sawmill at Tahsis with a capacity of 18 million board feet a year.

If the extension bid is granted, Tahsis will give up a quota area in the Kyuquot region in exchange for the cutting rights obtained near Zeballos.

About 100 forest industry officials were present when the Tahsis brief was presented this morning.

RIB CAGE of their plywood boat is almost ready for sheathing as these Eskimo youths reach half-way mark in their 26-week boat-building course at HMCS Naden. Some plan to take further training at eastern centres on completion of their work here in November.

ESKIMOS LEARN QUICKLY SKILLS OF BOAT-BUILDING

By SUE PELLAND

Victoria's six visiting Eskimos from the North West Territories are half-way through their 26-week, boat-building course

The young men, aged 18-23, have been at Naden since May undergoing a training program sponsored by the department of northern affairs.

The program includes ships' carpentry, wooden-boat repairs, and the undertaking of a boat-building project.

They are now constructing a 21-foot fishing launch from plans they drafted themselves.

For some, the step from trapper to boat-builder was a big one.

A few have had some industrial training in technical school.

But for all of them, building a boat from the keel up, including the engine, is a new experience.

And according to their instructor, Rupert Padget, they have learned quickly.

PROBLEMS OVERCOME

Many of the problems they encountered in the beginning, with diet and climate, have been overcome.

They practised first on the hulls of old boats, replacing beams and planks, learning to construct chines and batons.

Now they are actually putting together the framework of their plywood boat.

The boys attend classes from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., five days a week.

When they have completed the course in November they will be tested and qualified.

And then what? Some are going back home, others are heading east for training.

They haven't decided what they'll do with the boat—if it floats, they joked.

But their instructor has more confidence in the boys. He says they've done "very well."

The boat-building course is part of an overall training program organized by the department of northern affairs to train Eskimos and Indians for skilled jobs.

Other such instructional courses include electronics, engineering and heavy-duty operating.

IN DAILY PRESS

Canadian Eyes See the World

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Canada's daily newspapers stand at the crossroads of all information and perform a vital and special role that other forms of communication cannot do, External Affairs Minister Martin said Monday.

Addressing 49 teachers meeting with editors and publishers Aug. 15 to 27 to explore the use of the newspaper as a teaching aid, Mr. Martin said the press occupies a special position in the life of the country.

All provinces except Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island are represented at the workshop sponsored by the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association at the University of Waterloo.

The press had maintained its position in the field of foreign policy where news is meaningless unless related to analysis and useless unless it contributes to the public's understanding of what is happening in the world Mr. Martin said.

FOREIGN NEWS

While there are more dailies in Canada in relation to the population than there are in Europe, many newspapers find it difficult to devote as much time and attention to foreign affairs as they would like to, he said.

Canadian newspapers are aware of their responsibilities in informing the public on international affairs and the role the country plays in them.

Mr. Martin termed "particularly commendable" the increased space given by dailies to background information and news analysis.

While noting a trend toward greater international coverage, Mr. Martin suggested more could be done in the national interest.

The world and relations among nations have become so complex that to understand the events and main trends requires an increasing amount of attention, he added.

"Canada's role has similarly become more complex and less easy to define."

BROAD BASIS

Canadian newspapers have access to a particularly broad basis of foreign news, he said. While the dailies rely on the services of world-wide news-gathering services, many are setting up permanent offices abroad in increasing numbers.

"Our country now is represented in Latin America, Moscow, Tokyo and Peking," Mr. Martin said.

"Canada is starting to see the world directly through Canadian eyes."

Despite increased travel by Canadians abroad, the country still is dependent and will continue to rely on foreign comments and news-gathering services. This contributes to Canada's being better informed than countries that rely solely on their own sources of information.

Mr. Martin warned of danger if Canadian newspapers do not continue to analyze the news for themselves or "to form our own views and to attach to our own policies their due importance."

SOCIAL INSURANCE

Sept. 2 Deadline For Registration

OTTAWA (CP)—A cabinet order-in-council making it compulsory for every worker who will be covered by the Canada Pension Plan to apply for a federal social insurance number by Sept. 2 was published last week in the Canada Gazette.

It provides that all persons who were 18 years of age or over at Aug. 3 this year and "employed in pensionable employment" must apply for social insurance registration. Most working Canadians already are registered but an estimated 600,000 still haven't applied.

The order-in-council, signed Aug. 3 but made public for the first time Friday, brings into force a clause of the Canada Pension Plan legislation passed by Parliament earlier this year.

This clause says social insurance numbers become mandatory for pensionable employed persons—just about every working Canadian—at a date to be set by the cabinet.

Persons have 30 days after the date to apply. That brings the deadline to Sept. 2.

MUST APPLY

In addition, the legislation provides that pensionable employed persons who become 18 after that date must apply for a number within 30 days.

It puts the onus on employers to have the registration made. Every employer must, before the 30-day deadline, require his employee to produce a social insurance number card. The employee has another 30 days to comply.

An employer who doesn't thus make sure that his workers are registered is guilty of an offence and a fine not exceeding $100. The legislation does not specify an offence for employees who do not regicster.

U.S. Pension Man In Victoria On Sept. 8, 9

Residents of the Victoria and Vancouver Island area employed in the U.S. after 1936 can get social security information Sept. 8 and 9.

William R. Pierron, field representative of the U.S. Social Security Administration district office in Bellingham, Wash., will be in the U.S. Immigration Office, CPR Dock Building, 468 Belleville.

He will be available for consultation from noon to 4:30 p.m. Sept. 8 and from 8:30 a.m. to noon Sept. 9.

Persons over the age of 62 and surviving widows and children may be eligible for monthly benefits under certain conditions.

Canadian citizens as well as U.S. citizens may also be eligible.

Fire Sweeps Liner

GENOA (Reuters)—The body of one woman was recovered Tuesday and six others were missing in a fire in the 20,565-ton Italian liner Angelino Lauro being refitted in a shipyard here. The vessel formerly sailed under the Dutch flag as Te Oranje.

Three Bids To Take Over Radio Station

OTTAWA (CP)—Three applications to change the ownership control of Vancouver radio station CJOR will be heard at a public hearing of the Board of Broadcast Governors opening here Sept. 14.

The applications would take control out of the hands of Marie Chandler, president of CJOR Ltd. The station under her presidency triggered the most drastic punitive action ever taken by the BBG, which ordered CJOR under its present management off the air as of Oct. 31.

The proposals would hand control to one of three applicants:

—British Columbia Television Broadcasting System Ltd., present operator of CHAN-TV in Vancouver and CHEK-TV in Victoria.

—Caulfeild Broadcasting Co., Ltd., formed by a group of present employees of CJOR Ltd.

—James A. Pattison and Ralph T. Cunningham of Vancouver.

Also seeking to operate on the 600 frequency after Oct. 31 are Vancouver Broadcasting Associates Ltd., which owns Vancouver radio station CHQM, and a company headed by Arthur Chandler, Marie Chandler's brother-in-law.

Cedar Hill X Road Fails to Receive Highway Status

Designation of Cedar Hill Cross Rd. as a secondary highway would be premature, the provincial highways department told Oak Bay works committee Tuesday night.

The department, in a survey during the past year agreed the joining of Henderson Rd. through to Cedar Hill Cross Rd. and the university will also affect traffic flow.

But H. T. Miard, deputy highways minister has suggested council submit a further application in the spring of 1966.

Killed In Plant

VANCOUVER (CP) — Edwin Malcolm McLaren was killed in an industrial accident at the Dominion Bridge plant in Burnaby Tuesday. McLaren was struck in the head by a piece of metal that flew from a metal press.

FALSE TEETH, BIBLES AND DAMP SUITS

Take a Bus, Leave It With Us

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

An old saying goes, "What's thine is mine, but what's mine is mine, too.

But for Victorians, a more up-to-date version might read: What's mine is mine—until I lose it on the bus.

Then it becomes the property of B.C. Hydro's lost and found department.

False teeth, swim fins and a jar of Ovaltine are only a few of the objects left behind by city bus riders.

Umbrellas—about 3,000 of them at first glance—are stacked up in the walk-in safe.

SLACK TIME

"It's a slack time of year for umbrellas," says lost and found caretaker, Ted Sparshatt. "Only 12 have been turned in this month."

Beneath them is an unclaimed pair of hockey skates. A baseball glove, some 45 rpm records and several Bibles join the list.

Many of the items are unopened packages left by shoppers on their way home.

And claiming them can prove embarrassing.

For instance:

How do you explain how you happened to leave your false teeth behind?

And what about the lady who phoned for a lost package, but refused to say what was in it? (Her husband called the next day, says Mr. Sparshatt, and claimed some just-puchased underwear for his wife.)

The army of umbrellas isn't the only seasonal part of the lost and found business.

Damp bathing suits and towels left by summer swimmers are the least popular articles.

"They all have to be dried out," says Mr. Sparshatt, "or else they smell to high heaven."

"School books and lunch kits will start coming in any time soon," he added.

"If people would only put their addresses or phone numbers on their children's things as well as the names," he said. "You can imagine how much good just plain 'Cathy' on something is to us."

"In nearly every case the articles are unidentifiable," he said.

A dozen or so sweaters, neatly rolled and tagged, rest in a drawer. Drivers who find any thing in their buses must label them with date, time and bus where they were found, as well as their name or the name of the passenger who found it.

A reward fo ran article, or a sum of money, if unclaimed, goes to the orignal finder. The rest is sent to charitable organizations after a few months' wait.

How eager are Victorians to turn in things they find left beside them on the seat?

"In most instances," said Mr. Sparshatt, "people are very honest."

And he gazed ruefully at the heap of "found" umbrellas.

Rover Scouts Bound For Sasquatch Land

A delegation of more than 20 Rover Scouts from the Victoria area will join 250 representatives from throughout B.C. for the eight provincial Rover Moot on Labour Day Weekend.

The four-day moot or meeting will take place in the land of the Sasquatch, Morris Valley, near Harrison Lake.

The list of program activities includes hikes, projects, discussions, games and camping. Of particular note are the topics selected for planned discussion periods. These include: Anti-Americanism, Premier Bennett's Pros and Cons, Sex, Morality and the Rover Code and Viet Nam.

Boat Flips, 45 Drown

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

(Dorothy Kilgallen is on vacation. Her guest columnist today is actress Sally Ann Howes.)

By SALLY ANN HOWES

NEW YORK — When I was on Broadway in My Fair Lady, I used to meet people at cocktail parties or after-theatre suppers who, by way of an opening conversational gambit would ask, "What would you say is the difference between theatre in New York and London?"

That is, actually a question that deserves an encyclopedic answer, but when someone tosses it at you lightly in passing, what he wants is not a thoughful response, but something short, smart or pithy, so I used to say merely that in England they serve tea in the intermissions, and play the national anthem at the end, and let it go at that.

Since then, however, I've heard Richard Burton's foster father, Philip Burton say that to compare the two is like comparing a jungle to a quiet English garden. And I agree.

That's not to say the actors inhabiting the American theatrical jungle are savages, nor those in the quiet garden of the the English theatre tame persons unduly gentle with each other, though I think both theatres have their share of each type. But what I've come to describe to myself as "the American success syndrome" gives the New York theatre a climate of ceaseless struggle in an atmosphere of competitive stress and strain that's immensely exaggerated, because the stakes are so enormous.

Possibly because Americans have so much regard for youth as the fountainhead of vitality, young actors and actresses trying to gain a foothold in the theatre here feel they must make a success quickly, or they're likely not to make it at all. There is so much pressure to keep working, to go from one engagement to another, to amass "credits," that very little will is left to actually study one's craft.

But even if there were, conscientious young performers would be hard put to find a place to do it. Not that there aren't, as in England, splendid dramatic schools or outstanding teachers, like Uta Hagen, Stella Adler, Sanford Meisner or Lee Strassberg. But it seems to me one can go only so far as a student. What's needed after that is to really work in the theatre and learn in actual practice, from directors, other actors, and audiences. A sensitive performer can learn so much about what he's doing, wrong or right, just from the audience's responses.

In England, thanks to the repertory theatres that dot the country as plentifully as opera houses in Italy and Germany, the young actor just out of school can do this. He can work uninterruptedly at his craft for six months, a year, two years in the same theatre, developing stage presense, learning how to project and color his voice, how to scale a gesture, even how to just stand still and do nothing—everything that makes a believable performance.

He can play a wide variety of roles at a pace that lets him develop and experiment with them, discovering in the process his own as yet incompletely realized capacities.

Except for the kind of theatre beginning to emerge here, like The Actors' Workshop in San Francisco, or The Tyrone Guthrie Theatre in Minneapolis, there's no American equivalent of the English repertory theatre. Young American actors, and older ones who, though excellent performers aren't "big Broadway names," are the poorer for it, since there are fewer jobs for them, because there are fewer theatres for them to appear in.

Almost their only chance today to gain actual stage experience (and their best, considering the hazards of a first Broadway appearance as an unknown), is in summer stock. But stock has its own drawbacks—limited rehearsal time, short runs, etc. In the tents the mere physical problems of getting on and off stage on time are so demanding there's little time to do more than learn the lines, let alone polish a characterization.

For better or worse, too, the American summer theatre is geared to the Star system and this again defeats the young unproven performer. All the advance publicity is designed to make the Star, not the play, the thing. More than the play, it's the star who's expected to lure the audience in, and this is hard on everyone.

On the positive side of the picture, though, if a performer really "makes it big" on Broadway, his impact is immediate and the payoff dramatic and generally glorious!

People in the business are more likely to rush to embrace the new proven talent than would be the case in England. The threat of having to wait a long time for another play is lessened, and even if another vehicle does not offer itself at once, every other entertainment medium magically opens its doors to him. The chances to earn a sustained living in the theatre may be smaller than in England, but once you've hit, the rewards are bigger—recordings, television, films—the works!

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Jack Coghlan, age 12, of Spokane, Wash., for his question:

What animal is said to sweat blood?

He has the second largest mouth in the world and seems to be very proud of it. His whopping head may weigh a ton, and his total weight may equal the weight of 50 grown men. The Greeks called him the river horse. We borrowed their name for him and call him the hippopotamus.

There are times when the brown skin of the hippopotamus is covered with a pinkish fluid. He seems to be sweating blood, and some people say that this is what he does. But today's question is stated quite correctly. Mr. Hippo is merely said to sweat blood. He actually does not do so.

The horned toad, also called the horned lizard, is another animal said to ooze blood without being wounded. But this rumor is true. The horned lizard can and often does squirt a jet of real blood from his eye. He performs this feat when scared, perhaps hoping to discourage his foes. But the hippopotamus has no defensive tactics in mind when his skin becomes covered with the substance that looks like pinkish sweat.

The bulky fellow is a native of Africa, where much of his time is spent in the warm and weedy waters of fresh and brackish rivers. He is a mammal with a mammal's skin and air-breathing lungs, and his body is equipped for a life of partial submergence in the water. He can hold his breath long enough to stay below for 4.5 minutes. He can swim and float, and he can walk on land.

Likes to Soak In Water

Such a life of soaking and drying out would be very hard on the human skin. But the hippo has a special skin to cope with this problem. His pores secrete a substance that seems to protect his skin from long periods of soaking in the water and long periods of basking in the air. This substance is the pinkish fluid that looks like oozing sweat.

A grown hippo may weigh four tons and reach a length of 14 feet. His big mouth, surpassed in size only by the mouths of the big whales, measures two feet wide. He seems to enjoy yawning and exposing his enormous gape for all the world to see. His tusky teeth are used to gather water weeds and uproot garden vegetables. His salad raids on land take place at night. And day and night, in and under the water, prowling on land or basking on a sunny sand bar, he may protect his skin with an ooze of pinkish fluid.

The hippopotamus is a vegetarian and hence not naturally aggressive toward other animals. Mr. Hippo, however, will fight a rival with all his might. The males tend to stay together, while the females and youngsters stay in a separate group along the reedy river. Rival males declare their intentions to fight by opening their monstrous mouths to the limit.

MISS PEACH

ROYALTY was all steamed up when it visited Cowichan Valley Forest Museum. Chief engineer aboard the museum's vintage rolling stock is Viscount James Fitzhugh, only son of the Earl and Countess of Malmesbury. From Basingstoke, Hampshire, England, the young viscount was escorted by owner Gerry Wellburn. He passed through the area on his way home after a year in Australia where he was a schoolmaster for a term. He will visit his married sister in Toronto.

PM Joins World's Smallest Fire Department

SPROAT LAKE — Prime Minister Lester Pearson has become honorary chief of the world's smallest fire department.

The prime minister sent a $5 cheque to the home fire chief proper, Bob McPherson, at Sproat Lake.

Bob's fire department boasts a one-man—himself — no fire-fighting equipment and no fire-hall.

In a bid to raise cash to buy equipment, the department is offering honorary chiefstainships with every $5 share sold.

In a letter accompanying his cheque, the prime minister said:

"Please accept the smallest contribution to the smallest fire department, and I sincerely hope you never have to use the equipment you are purchasing."

As things stand, the department may never even get the equipment they were supposed to purchase.

Plans to buy a 23-year-old jeep from the city of Vancouver for $30, have gone skew-whiff.

Vancouver parks department is disputing the city's right to sell the jeep.

The parks department claims it has jurisdiction over the jeep.

Meanwhile, Bob McPherson has only hope, faith and charity to aid him in fighting fires in a busy summer resort area.

Other honorary fire chiefs, along with the premier, include lumberman H. R. McMillan, Phyllis Diller and a Paddy Walker.

LIFEBOATS TO GET RADAR

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Coast Guard's Tofino and Bamfield lifeboats will soon be equipped with radar, the department of transport has promised.

The department also is studying the need for new search and rescue craft, with a decision expected shortly.

Deputy Transport Minister J. R. Baldwin sent this information in a letter to R. Stan Stanton, manager of the Pacific Trollers' Association, who made a plea for better protection in B.C.

Mr. Stanton wrote Prime Minister Pearson after the troller Bon Accord drifted for 24 hours off the Island coast when it developed engine trouble. The west coast lifeboats were laid up for repairs and the nearest help was a cutter in Vancouver, he said.

Mr. Baldwin wrote that one of the lifeboats could have gone out at the time but the weather was foggy and it had no radar.

He said the Bon Accord did not send out an SOS and it was not considered an emergency.

Mr. Stanton said the troller's radio was out of order and it could not send an SOS.

Credit Chief Quits Over Restrictions

DUNCAN — Former Duncan and District Credit Union boss James Hunt Tuesday attacked the policies being enforced by directors of the Duncan branch.

The veteran credit union manager claims the policies were responsible for his sudden retirement last week.

Said Mr. Hunt: "I resigned over a policy matter because I believe in the principles that have made credit unions the strong organization they are today—serving the people."

The new policies restrict the powers of union staff to grant loans.

In the past loans have been granted or refused at the manager's discretion.

STRICT RULES

Now, strict rules govern the transaction.

Union members can no longer borrow money to buy a car over three years old.

For a new car or boat, the borrower must have 50 per cent equity. In the past he had only to have 10 per cent in shares.

Manager here for seven years, Mr. Hunt feels the new policy "defeats the basic principles of credit unions."

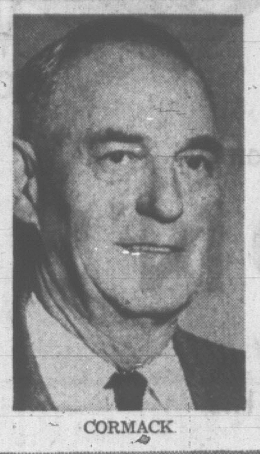
His own branch has increased its membership during that time from 1,500 to 5,000.

IGNORED

Mr. Hunt resigned after his own suggestion last week, to return to the old system, was ignored.

After 17 years of credit union work, Mr. Hunt said: "I was not ready to quit. I planned to stay on for another six months or a year."

At present he is busy developing a waterfront subdivision in the Cowichan Lake area.



CORMACK

CORMACK BACKS ROAD PLAN

'Gun Held at My Head'

SIDNEY—Albert A. Cormack denied today he resigned as chairman of Sidney village council Monday because he opposed a $225,000 street development program.

"A gun was held at my head," he said. "I was asked to support a program without consultation. It had not even been submitted to the public works for study. It was an impossible situation."

Commissioner F. S. B. Heward resigned for similar reasons.

Mr. Cormack said Commissioner Douglas Taylor, who was appointed acting chairman, was implying in news reports that he and Mr. Heward were opposed to the street building and sidewalks program.

Mr. Taylor said Tuesday Mr. Cormack would have served Sidney better if he had not quit after council endorsed the street referendum.

He should have stayed on and argued his beliefs, he said.

BADLY NEEDED

Sidney streets are badly in need of improvements, he said.

The narrow roads are hazardous to children and could present a problem to emergency vehicles, he added.

He appealed to ratepayers to support the referendum on Sept. 20.

Mr. Cormack said at the start of the year he advocated improvements to some streets and construction of sidewalks.

"But I believe a program should be based on a pay as you go basis," he said. "The program should be geared to what taxpayers are able to pay."

He said Mr. Taylor at the council meeting presented a series of motions to initiate the program over objections that it first be studied by the public works committee.

The motions were supported by Commissioners L. R. Christian and Andries Boas.

"They were telling me in effect to support it or else," said Mr. Cormack.

Playwright to Fast During Sit-Down

COMOX—Support is mounting for a peace demonstration at the RCAF base here this weekend.

Tuesday, Montreal playwright Dan Daniels offered to fast for the duration of the sit-down.

His only stipulation — that peace leaders wire him as soon as the demonstration is over.

The weekend sit-down is due to last 32 to 48 hours.

Between 100 and 200 nuclear disarmers are expected to take part.

Leader Peter Light hoped to block all entrances to the base, bringing activity to a virtual standstill.

This afternoon, Light and 18-year-old Torontonian Ingrid Erhard, were to ask permission to see the newly appointed base commander, Group Captain R. S. Turnbull.

If permission is refused—as it was in the past by former commander Group Captain E. G. Ireland—the two will wait for 24 hours.

They will then request permission again.

If it is twice refused they will sit at the pedestrian entrance until the civic disobedience protest starts Saturday.

Blast Didn't Do Job At Kyuquot Harbor

KYUQUOT — Last month's spectacular blast to clear the harbor entrance here apparently wasn't quite enough.

Blasting, drilling and dredging operations are being continued by Nanaimo Bulldozing Ltd. which is struggling with hard rock formations.

In the first blast, second in size only to the explosion which removed the Ripple Rock hazard, only about nine of the 15 tons of explosives were effective.

But it did improve harbor entrance conditions for fishboats which could only enter at high tide previously.

The harbor is open nearly full time now.

Main aim of the project is to deepen the harbor for large fish-packers but a second blast should end debris piling up against a sea wall.

ARTIST'S CONCEPTION of manned orbiting laboratory revealed by President Johnson at his news conference today is shown. Under present planning, MOL will consist of pressurized cylinder, about 25-30 feet long and 10 feet in diameter, attached to modified Gemini space capsule. It will be lifted into orbit by Titan booster. (AP Wirephoto.)

COST $1.5 BILLION, READY BY 1968

Space Lab 'Go' Given by LBJ

President Johnson today ordered the defence department to build a $1.5 billion orbiting space laboratory to be launched in 1968 with two men aboard.

In a statement read at his news conference, Johnson said the manned orbiting laboratory (MOL) "will bring us new knowledge about what man is able to do in space" and "will enable us to relate that ability to the defence of the nation."

As presently conceived, the MOL will be a big cylinder about the size of a house trailer in which two men will live and perform experiments in space for two weeks to a month.

Johnson again committed the United States never to put weapons of mass destruction into orbit. He said "we believe the heavens belong to all the people" of the world.

The MOL on which the U.S. is now proceeding is intended to test man's ability to do useful work in space.

It will be launched by a Titan 3-C rocket, the most powerful booster yet developed by the United States. The crew will ride into space aboard a modified Gemini spacecraft developed by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for its current pre-lunar flight program.

The Gemini spacecraft will be attached to one end of the laboratory and the two will go into orbit together. Once in orbit, the two crew members will crawl from the Gemini into the lab. When the time comes for them to return to earth, they will crawl back into the Gemini, cut loose and descend the way NASA's Gemini pilots do.

Final decision to go ahead with the MOL had been long delayed. The project first was initiated in 1963 when the defence department abandoned its Dyna-Soar space glider project. But until today it had never got out of the planning and design stage.

The military is particularly interested in finding out just what men can do over long periods aboard a spacecraft. Some of the current Gemini experiments are designed to that end.

Some of the military questions are concerned with man's ability to spot, identify, and track other spacecraft, which might be hostile, and with his ability to identify, place, and photograph structures such as rail lines, cities, and air fields on the surface of the earth.

Eventually, experts have said, the U.S. must have the ability to approach, inspect, and if necessary, capture or destroy enemy spacecraft.

The president said unmanned flights to test launching, recovery, and other fundamental aspects of the MOL system will begin late next year or early in 1967.

The first manned launch of a fully-equipped MOL is scheduled for 1968. Johnson said this flight with men aboard will be folowed in the same year by five others.

Gemini Twins Take Spy Films, Soviet Claim

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A Russian newspaper suggested today the two U.S. astronauts aboard Gemini 5 may be busy taking spy pictures of Cuba, North Viet Nam and Communist China.

Red Star, official organ of the defence ministry, made the charge to support its claim that the United States space program was heavily geared to military needs.

"American propaganda praises the scientific aims of the Gemini program and tries to conceal its military character, but these attempts are futile," Red Star said. "The real purpose of the program is obvious."

Red Star said long-range cameras aboard could provide detailed photographs of cities, railways, ports and ships, and the astronauts were also equipped to "carry out visual intelligence."

Meanwhile, President Johnson today offered the Soviet Academy of Science an invitation to observe the October launching of the Gemni 6 space capsule.

The president told a press conference that he had directed space administrator James E. Webb to invite the academy to send a high-level representative to the space shot—one of whose goals is a rendezvous with an orbiting satellite.

Johnson said he hoped the Russians would accept the invitation, and that their representative would get a warm welcome.

FREIGHTERS COLLIDE IN RACE ROCKS FOG

Two freighters collided in heavy fog off Race Rocks in Juan de Fuca Strait this morning.

The 7,448-ton Don Ramon, arriving from Japan, collided with the sea-bound Diamantis, 7,257 tons, which left Vancouver this morning.

Both were able to continue under their own power.

But the Don Ramon was heading for Esquimalt dry dock where she was expected to berth this afternoon.

Damage has not yet been estimated. The Diamantis did not break her journey for repairs.

Eight-Day Flight Looks Sure

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The Gemini 5 astronauts, their beards itchy and their cramped space cabin cluttered, set a U.S. space endurance record today and took aim on the Soviet-held world record for a single flight.

They eclipsed the 97-hour, 59-minute record of Gemini 4 at 11:59 a.m. EDT. They have a go-ahead to pass the world record of nearly five days at 9:06 a.m. Thursday.

Comfortable in their cramped, weightless quarters, the two spacemen appeared sure to ride the skies the full eight days.

Meanwhile, the Gemini 5 astronauts did some light housekeeping in their cabin and kept a sharp eye on the earth for details of human activity.

SPOTS WAKE

Pilot Charles Conrad Jr., a navy lieutenant - commander spotted the wake of the aircraft carrier Lake Champlain which is scheduled to recover the astronauts from the sea Sunday.

Conrad's excited voice announced: "He's at 12 o'clock. I can see him turning. Bigger than heck. We got him in sight this time."

"Roger, I knew an old carrier pilot could find the carrier," said capsule communicator James A. McDivitt. "Very good."

Conrad made his first carrier landing in June, 1955, on the deck of the Lake Champlain. He'll be aiming for it again when the eight-day flight ends.

Command pilot L. Gordon Cooper Jr. long before had logged enough hours in space to claim the world record in that department. His wife, Trudy, relayed her congratulations to him in space.

The world record for a single flight is held by Soviet cosmonaut Valery Bykovsky who orbited the earth for 119 hours and six minutes beginning June 14, 1963.

Their beards itchy and their small space cabin showing some of the clutter of four days of occupancy, the astronauts discussed with doctors on the

U.S. JET HIT

Mobile Missile Strikes Again

SAIGON (AP)—A U.S. spokesman announced today a U.S. Navy Phantom jet was downed by what appeared to be a surface-to-air missile Tuesday about 90 miles south of Hanoi. One crew member is presumed dead, the other missing.

It was in the same general area Tuesday that North Vietnamese gunners felled a U.S. Air Force F-105 Thunderchief, one of a four-plane force attacking an airfield under construction 20 miles west of the city of Thanh Hoa. The helicopter rescued the Thunderchief pilot.

The spokesman said the Phantom, a supersonic plane from the 7th Fleet carrier Midway, was hit near Thanh Hoa.

The downing was the first indication that Communist anti-aircraft missiles have been moved as far south as Thanh Hoa. It seemed likely that the missile was fired from a mobile launcher.

One parachute was seen after the Phantom was hit, but search and rescue operations failed to locate the American airman. The other crew member is presumed dead, the spokesman said.

Two other American planes have been downed in the last month by missiles which Soviet technicians are presumed to have installed in North Viet Nam. U.S. officials think Russian personnel are helping to man the missile launchers.

A U.S. Air Force Phantom was downed by a missile northwest of Hanoi July 24, and a navy Skyhawk was shot down Aug. 12 about 50 miles south-southwest of the North Vietnamese capital.

Scientist, Student Disappear

BERLIN (UPI)—British authorities announced today two Britons have disappeared in East Germany.

The disappearance of one of them—a scientist who speaks Russian in addition to English, French and possibly other languages—triggered a hunt for clues in Britain, Paris and Berlin.

The scientist, identified as Arthur Wilbraham, 29 of Plymouth, vanished Friday and was reported arrested by Communist police.

British authorities said they could not confirm the arrest report.

The second missing Briton, John Thwaites, a 19-year-old youth studying in Vienna, traveled into East Berlin 10 days ago and did not return.

In London, the newspaper Evening Standard said Wilbraham was a member of the Anglo-French teams of experts working on the Concord supersonic jet airliner both nations are developing jointly.

British officials here said they believed there was no connection between the two disappearances.

Navy Switches To Gas Turbines For Destroyers

OTTAWA (CP) — The navy will make a revolutionary switch to gas turbine from steam engines in its new destroyers, informed sources said today.

The gas turbines will provide higher maximum speed in the four destroyers, scheduled for construction between 1967 and 1970, and for much faster attainment of high speed in submarine chases.

Sources said the change will add about $5,000,000 to the capital cost of the $142,000,000 four-ship program but that this increase will be more than offset in the long run by lower operational and manpower costs.

The gas turbines are smaller and lighter than steam plants and thus will allow more space for fuel and, consequently, for more sea time without refuelling. Working conditions will improve — there will be no steam boilers to clean — and there will be less heat and noise.

The switch to gas turbines will mean a delay of about six months in the start of construction of the first destroyer—to about mid-1967—but there will be no delay with the other three.

With a gas turbine engine, the destroyer propellers will be turned by gas vapors instead of steam passing through turbine blades.

ARSON RING REVEALED WITH QUEBEC ARRESTS

QUEBEC (CP)—Two men were charged with arson and conspiracy to commit arson here Tuesday in what Quebec justice department sources called the beginning of action against one of the biggest arson rings in Canada.

Charged were Alfred Cyr, 44, a merchant now held on a commissioner's warrant, and Gerard Arsenault, 35, a salesman.

The charges arise from a fire which destroyed a mobile canteen in suburban Ancienne Lorette in 1962.

"Six or seven" other persons are being held under fire commissioner's warrants.

Quebec justice department sources said a $5,000 insurance policy was paid after the fire in connection with which Cyr and Arsenault have been charged, and high premiums were paid for other fires the inquiry is investigating.

Court Watchdog Sought by MLA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ernie LeCours, Social Credit MLA for Delta, said today he is seeking money to finance an organization called Defenders Unlimited to watch over lower courts in British Columbia.

He called for 1,000 members of the public to contribute $1 each to set up the organization.

If the money is collected by Sept. 21, he said, he would contribute $500 to the fund, but will drop the idea if less than 1,000 people are interested.

At the last session of the legislature, Mr. LeCours sharply criticized B.C.'s courts.

"I received a large volume of mail in support of my contentions," he said.

"The writers included professional people, ex-policemen and newspapermen and most of them supported my suggestion that a citizens' organization be formed to keep an eye on the lower courts and provide assistance and guidance when required.

If the money comes in, he said, it would be used to organize a central group of laymen with local units in various areas of B.C.

"Volunteers will be sought to keep in touch with local courts and supply any required information to the central body," he said.

"You might say the basic idea of the organization would be to make the public more aware of the operations of our courts and also make our courts more aware of the public. I believe this will ensure a better quality of justice for all our citizens."

Chemical Blasts Rock City

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) —Dozens of violent explosions ripped through a Du Pont Chemical Corp. plant five miles from downtown Louisville today.

Authorities evacuated everyone from a two-mile radius in fear a huge tank of vinyl chloride would explode.

Jefferson County police said at least one person was killed. A fire captain said four persons were killed and 17 injured, but this could not be confirmed.

The explosions sent towering mushroom clouds of black smoke into the air, shattered dozens of windows in buildings and could be heard 10 miles away. Periodic blasts could be heard for more than two hours.

WITHDREW

All available emergency equipment from the city and county was rushed to the scene shortly after the first series of blasts, at about 10 a.m.

But the explosions continued to rock the area and authorities ordered the firemen and police to withdraw.

Police ordered the evacuation of everyone within a two-mile area of the plant in fear that liquid vinyl chloride would explode. Estimates of the tank's capacity ranged up to a half-million gallons.

Commercial air traffic was warned to bypass the area.

ON RIGHT WAVE-LENGTH FOR RESCUE

An Old Seadog Learns New Trixie

Trixie, a lop-eared cocker spaniel, was safe home today after spending 20 hours alone at sea.

Still trying to find her land legs, the two-year-old pet was reunited Tuesday night with the five pups she last saw Saturday.

It was only by a stroke of luck that Trixie was ever able to see her 10-week-old family again.

On Saturday she was thrown into the water while sailing with owners, George and Dora Storrie, of 1871 Allenby, Oak Bay.

They were on a cruise from Sidney to their summer cottage on Pender Island at the time.

It wasn't until the 19-foot outboard, the Sir Bouncealot, reached Pender that they noticed Trixie missing.

Fearing the worst, they searched the Fairfax Point area for three hours.

There was no sign of Trixie.

Tuesday they inserted a newspaper advertisement in the hope that Trixie might have paddled to shore.

It was a very different story they heard from the couple who answered the ad.

Dr. Robert Talbot, aboard the pleasure cruiser "Tera," found Trixie Sunday five miles south of the point where she was lost—floating on a raft.

Through his binoculars he spotted the black and white dog sitting forlornly on the raft, five miles from the nearest land.

Since then, the family, who are visiting Victoria from Seattle, have fed and cared for Trixie.

In return for saving the family pet, Mr. Storrie is presenting the Talbot family with one of the pups.

SHERIFF SUIT NO GAME, LAD CAPTURES BURGLAR

LONDON (AP)—An 11-year-old boy has been praised in court for playing sheriff and actually getting his man.

The boy is Barry Youngs of nearby Clacton-on-Sea.

"He found a real crime and tackled it like a real sheriff," prosecutor Thomas Lavelle told the court Tuesday.

It began when, dressed up in his sheriff's uniform, complete with badge, Barry spotted three men breaking into a house.

First, he went home to tell his mother to telephone police, giving her the address of the house the trio entered. Then he hid in some bushes near the house. As the three men came out of the house, they split up. Barry couldn't keep track of them all—because he had no deputies—so he followed one of them.

"Barry trailed the villain," said the prosecutor. "He trailed him for over two miles, hiding behind bushes and trees, telephone boxes, booths and slipping in and out of shop doorways."

BARRY
. . . relentless

The man must have seen the sheriff trailing him, for he broke into a run. Barry ran too, but was soon outdistanced.

"Staying after his man, he went to the police station and told the detectives there he could spot the man. They put him in a car, toured the seafront—and Barry saw him."

In court was Raymond Brent, 22, who, the Royal Navy said, was absent without leave. Brent pleaded guilty to breaking into the house but said he stole nothing. He was put on probation and held until the navy comes to get him.

Of the young sheriff the prosecutor summed up:

"It was very public-spirited of this boy and I would like to say how much we appreciate what he did."

Said Barry:

"It was a pity I didn't have my handcuffs with me. I just dream of making an arrest."

Montreal Firm Wins Atom Pact

REGINA (CP) — Lummus Company of Canada will be the general contractors for the design and construction of a proposed $45,000,000 heavy water plant at Estevan, Sask., Frank Brown, president of Dynamic Power Corporation of Calgary said Tuesday.

Mr. Brown said Lummus, a Montreal firm, was designated by his firm, who will operate the plant, as part of the financing terms arranged with Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. Lummus is the firm that designed and built the Savannah River atomic energy plant at Savannah, Ga.

Western Deuterium of Victoria, the original successful bidder for the contract from AECL, withdrew because it could not guarantee full production at the Estevan plant would begin by November, 1967.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 25, 1965 —PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

A few minutes ago, I was led unerringly back to this office by William D. Small, an American tourist from St. Louis, Mo., who took time off from his holiday with wife and son to show me my home city.

If you think there's something wrong with that statement, I agree. It's us residents who are supposed to take the pilgrim from the United States in hand, straighten him out if he's lost, and direct him to various points of interest.

To have the situation reversed is more than a little confusing. It is also humbling, because I have more than a suspicion that industrial psychologist Bill Small from Missouri knows Victoria better than I do after full 14 years of living in Canada's fairest town.

What put us in touch was a piece I wrote last week about the Rolls-Royce. Bill Small, it turned out, numbers five Silver Ladies among his 15 vintage cars.

We talked about these a while; then Bill amiably undertook to show me around Victoria, a city with which he has been deep in love since he first visited here as a U.S. navy ensign in 1943.

★ ★ ★

As we headed out along Hillside in my car, visitor Small confided that he hopes one day to become a permanent resident, thereby doing away with the need for a yearly 2,600-mile trek to his land of heart's desire.

A sound idea, I agreed, then asked directions like any tourist.

"You mentioned coffee," said Bill, "so I thought we'd put in at Oak Bay." He added casually, "along Lansdowne, if you don't mind, and through on Rutland to Beach. It's the long way around, but I like that area."

Convinced that the guy knew more than any tourist from St. Louis should, I followed orders meekly, with a pause at Cattle Point to learn how livestock from San Juan Island was once put ashore there.

Over coffee for me and a soft drink for him, Bill Small filled me in on several other obscure items of local history.

"You ever see a wattle fence?" I asked.

"No," Bill said, "but I'll bet you can't take me to Willie Newcombe's old place."

So I drove him out for a look at Victoria's original ash-splint fence on Arbutus Road, then scored again, unfairly, by hitting him with the new university buildings under construction off Finnerty.

★ ★ ★

As we cut across the city, the psychologist lulled me with casual directions. "Right at the next," he would say, or "left," and his bearings were unfailingly sound.

We fooled around for awhile among the little old streets near Ogden Point.

"Right," my pilot directed—and seconds later I was backing out of a one-way street I'd never known existed.

"I guess we missed the sign," Bill said, with a bland smile that emphasized his physical resemblance to Premier Bennett. "If you're lost, call on me."

Presently we peered through the tangled shrubs at the fine old Victorian brick house where a kindly recluse lived out his life.

"Willie Newcombe used to cut old ladies' grass free," Bill informed me, "and when he died, that place was found to be stacked with about $70,000 in Indian artifacts."

Half an hour or so later, after we had attempted vainly to call on Louis the endowed parrot in his Courtney Street abode, the too-knowing tourist scored again.

"Where," he demanded, "is the drinking fountain in Centennial Square?"

"Near the big fountain," I ventured.

"Not so," came the correction. "You look at all that spouting water, and it makes you thirsty. But there's no drinking fountain, and while a visitor may be out of line in suggesting this, I think they should have one."

At this point I quit trying and let myself be guided back to the Times by a route of Victoriaphile Small's choosing. It saved us a traffic light and two blocks.

MOTHER CECILIA
. . . . "no changes here"

NEW ORDER WOULD BE 'IN SPIRIT OF ECUMENICAL COUNCIL'

Defiant Nuns May Break Away From Priory

By ROGER STONEBANKS

The six nuns who run the Good Shepherd Shelter for abandoned animals may reconstitute themselves as a separate house from the priory.

Mother Cecilia Mary said this morning she cannot say whether they will separate from St. Mary's Priory in Colwood, but such a move is being considered.

At present, sisters at the shelter and the priory are members of the Order of the Love of Jesus, a group which Mother Cecilia brought into the Roman Catholic Church many years ago.

Such a separation might involve establishing a new order, but Mother Cecilia said this takes much time and in any event it is only being discussed at the moment.

The move was being contemplated following a fresh order from the Roman Catholic Church for the nuns to leave the shelter and return to the priory, or become lay persons and run the shelter.

Mother Cecilia said members of different religions have joined together to form new orders, and this might happen at the shelter.

Such a move would be in the spirit of the Ecumenical Council and is "a marvelous idea."

The church has stated it does not consider the nuns at the Metchosin shelter are leading an "accepted religious life."

"Those sisters presently working at the animal shelter cannot continue in this work," said Archbishop Sergio Pignedoli of Ottawa, the Vatican's apostolic delegate to Canada.

The nuns "must live their life in community and dedicate themselves to the work given to them by their superiors."

Mother Cecilia said the latest order—a repeat of one issued last April—will make no difference.

"We shall just go right on," declared the 76-year-old nun, a distant relative of nursing pioneer Florence Nightingale.

"There will be no changes here. This fight just increases my determination."

She said it is a matter of interpretation whether the order's general aims exclude full-time care for animals, as maintained by church leaders.

"Our order says 'any work of mercy,'" she said. "We consider this a work of mercy."

Asked why she wants to remain a nun and run the shelter, she said:

"I have been a sister since I was 19 and at 76 I see no reason to change my status.

"I intend to stay a sister the rest of my life in this world."

Mother Cecilia also disclosed these developments:

- A lawyer is putting final touches to formation of a society with her as president to run the shelter. A board of directors would take some of the work load off her and ensure continuation of the shelter "if anything happens to myself."
- She would "not be surprised" if the $500 a month allowance from the priory for the sisters at the shelter is cut off at the end of the month.

But she is not worried about this possible development because financial support has been promised by others if this happens.

- The church cannot strip the nuns of their vows unless they themselves sign papers, which they won't.

Mother Cecilia started her animal care five years ago with approval from the sisters at St. Mary's Priory and the blessing of the late Bishop James Hill of Victoria.

A place was established in Saanich and two years ago the nuns moved to a 24-acre property at 3842 Duke Road near Albert Head.

Funds for the $75,000 shelter came from an inheritance of Mother Cecilia's and donations from animal lovers.

The church's latest order expressed the hope the nuns will follow the directive. If not, then ecclesiastical authority will reconsider their official status within the church as sisters.

Bishop Remi De Roo of the Victoria diocese said this leaves the next move up to Rome.

Escapee Charged At Campbell R.

Police Find Teen-Ager Hiding Under Log After Chase, Crash

The second escapee from Colquitz Jail was recaptured Tuesday after a wild car chase through Campbell River.

Rubin Wallace, 19, was re-arrested after being at large for 22 hours. He was driving a stolen car when caught, police said.

Wallace and another prisoner got away from the jail at 1:30 Monday afternoon. The other escapee gave himself up after wandering in the rain for 12 hours without leaving the jail property.

Campbell River RCMP spotted Wallace in a car shortly before noon Tuesday. They gave chase and Wallace raced through the village in an attempt to get away.

RAN AWAY

Police said speeds in the chase reached 90 m.p.h. at some points. Wallace's vehicle went off the road into swampy bush and Wallace jumped out and ran away.

He was found by police hiding under a log some distance off the road. Police said he had a change of clothes from those he was wearing when he escaped.

Saanich police are investigating Wallace as a suspect in two break-ins overnight Monday when a car was stolen from Suburban Motors and cash was taken from a service station.

Wallace may also face charges in Campbell River in connection with his driving.

Beer Stocks Good for Few More Days

Home deliveries of beer have ended except for those with advance orders.

But liquor stores and beer parlors in Victoria reported today they still have stocks on hand.

Beer drinkers here found themselves in a better situation than those in Vancouver, where 30 taverns closed Tuesday when beer ran out.

Closure of another 92 pubs in the Vancouver area is threatened by the end of the week, which would leave more than 1,000 beer parlor employees jobless.

NO TALKS

No talks were contemplated between the 500 striking members of the United Brewery Workers of America and seven breweries and warehouses in Victoria and Vancouver.

A spokesman for Local 513 of the Beverage Dispensers Union said the strike hasn't affected Victoria's 20-odd taverns yet.

He added that about 100 men will be affected when stocks run out, but some of them may find work if cocktail bars experience an upsurge of business.

WEEK'S SUPPLY

Beer parlors indicated they as much as a week's supply on hand.

Liquor stores reported a steady demand for beer, but with sufficient stocks for at least a few days.

Pacific Brewers Warehousing, which makes the home deliveries, said it only has enough beer to meet advance orders.

The company is involved in the strike, but the union agreed to continue home deliveries until supplies ran out.

Other companies hit by the strike are Lucky Lager in Victoria and New Westminster; Carling's, Molson's, O'Keefe and Pacific Delivery Service.

'NDP RIGHT'

Medicare Subsidies Going Up

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan today said a statement by Premier Bennett proved the B.C. Medical Plan is inadequate.

He was referring to the premier's announcement Tuesday night in Powell River that the government intends to increase subsidies on premiums paid by persons with low incomes.

The premier did not disclose how much would be added to the present subsidies of 50 per cent for subscribers with no taxable income and 25 per cent for those with less than $1,000 taxable income.

"WE WERE RIGHT"

"He's finding out we were right when we said the plan as he proposed it at the last session would not work," commented the New Democratic Party leader.

"People on low incomes would have to take the bread out of their children's mouths to pay their share of the premiums and they're just not doing it," Mr. Strachan said.

"We said it would happen and I'm not a bit surprised. I'm of the opinion that there should be no premiums of any kind.

"Medicare is a necessity for every citizen and we have so much money in this province now that low income groups should not have to pay for it.

"NO BARRIERS"

"There should be no financial barriers between a patient and his doctor."

Mr. Bennett's prediction of higher subsidies follows recent disclosure that about 100,000 persons are expected to be covered by the government-medical insurance plan.

This is far short of the 450,000 the premier told the legislature needed coverage which would be provided by the government insurance plan with the help of premium subsidies.

Government officials have declined to reveal how many of the BCMP subscriptions involve subsidies.

Long Trip To Protest Weed-Killer

A Burns Lake couple arrived in Victoria today to protest the use of weed-killer in their neighborhood by the B.C. Telephone Company and the B.C. Highways Department.

They claim this is a breach of the Pharmacy Act and will take their complaint to the provincial health department.

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Sisson, who own 65 acres of woodland at Burns Lake, claim that their trees have already suffered from the spraying of weed-killer by the telephone company.

"This indiscriminate spraying has also damaged roses and plants in the area," Mr. Sisson said, "and some of the drinking water has been spoiled.

ARSON BLAMED IN BUSH FIRE

British Columbia's forest fire situation continued to improve today with hazard ratings listed as low throughout the province except on the northern coast where it ranged from medium to high.

One of the seven new fires reported overnight to the B.C. forest service was blamed on arson. The blaze at Lake Cowichan was quickly put out.

Ottawa May Buy Nematode Farms Here

Saanich potato farms infested with golden nematode may be bought by the federal government.

The proposal is being discussed in Ottawa to compensate growers who can't economically grow crops other than potatoes on their lands, a government spokesman said today.

The pest which attacks potato and tomato plants has been found here and in the McHugh Valley on the east side of the Patricia Bay Highway—a major potato growing area.

Nine properties have been found to be infested.

Meanwhile, plant experts are confident that nematodes exist nowhere else in B.C.

Dr. Phillip Campbell in charge of the nematode program, said there is no evidence of infestation on Vancouver Island north of the Malahat or on the mainland.

"We have taken thousands of soil samples," he said. These areas outside Saanich have been found free of nematodes."

Holstein Breeders In the Black

Lower island Holstein breeders won't be in the red when they return from the Pacific National Exhibition at the end of the week with their black and white beasts.

Four district farms are exhibiting in the Holstein dairy section at the big mainland fair this week (beef breed are featured next week) and all have come up with ribbons.

What is considered the top award has been won by William Taylor of Saanwood Farm, McIntyre Road, Saanichton. His four-year-old bull, Acme Snowden Baron, purchased two years ago in Alberta, was named grand champion Holstein male. And his Saanwood Pacemaker Prince won the reserve junior bull championship.

The Saanwood Farm also has collected numerous other awards along with Gordon Rendle and Bert Youle, also of Saanichton, and J. S. Judge and Sons Jagar Farm on outer Burnside Road.

Pearson Lands Three, Bobbles Three More

Prime Minister Pearson caught three salmon on a three-hour fishing trip this morning at Brentwood Bay before leaving by air for Vancouver and a Liberal party rally in the evening.

One weighed four pounds and the other two were three pounds. He hooked three bigger fish but they got away.

The prime minister and Mrs. Pearson were the guests for two days of Mrs. W. C. Woodward at Woodwynn Farm overlooking Saanich Inlet.

"These have been two of the happiest and most restful days in my life and I am overjoyed by the beauty of the inlet," he said.

Tuesday, he visited Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes at Government House for lunch. An aide said it was a time for the two couples to get together.

NEW PROGRAM

Meanwhile, a federal program of capital assistance to develop pleasure-craft harbors was announced in a Vancouver release from Mr. Pearson.

The announcement said marine facilities for commercial navigation are often crowded and unsuitable for the growing numbers of small craft on coasts and inland lakes.

The program will concentrate on such navigation facilities as breakwaters, protection works and dredging.

Federal help will depend on a commitment by local interests to develop wharves, roads, services, marinas and living accommodation as necessary.

"Harbors of refuge" would be established to help boats along unprotected sections of coastal waters.

Janitor Dozes As Hearing On Freschi Killing Nears End

David Robinson will stand trial at the Fall Assizes for the capital murder of Susan Freschi.

The 24-year-old janitor was formally committed this morning for trial after a preliminary hearing of the charge before Magistrate William Ostler.

Susan Freschi was a 14-year-old California girl who came here last fall to attend school in Victoria. She was the victim of a sex-slaying near her home May 11.

Robinson apparently dozed for 45 minutes Tuesday when the preliminary hearing of the charge resumed in Colwood court.

HEAD IN HANDS

The accused man sat in the dock between two policemen. Most of the time he sat with his head in his hands.

But after a while he appeared to have fallen asleep. His head was down on his chest and he was breathing heavily. This went on for 45 minutes when he again looked up and opened his eyes.

The Crown closed its case Tuesday and the case was adjourned overnight for further legal argument. Crown prosecutor is W. R. McIlrath, assisted by David Wilson. Defence counsel is Alan Bigelow.

SAYS NOTHING

When Magistrate Ostler summed up on the legal points today he asked Robinson, "Do you want to say anything?"

Mr. Bigelow replied that his client did not. He also said the defence did not want to call witnesses at this stage.

The fall assizes open Nov. 8. At that time the date for Robinson's trial will be set.

Susan Freschi's body was found in a clearing in woods near her home in View Royal May 12, the day after she was reported missing.

Robinson was charged with the murder two weeks later. The preliminary hearing was adjourned several times to allow the Crown to prepare technical evidence in the case.

Then, when the hearing finally got under way, it took up four days which was longer than anticipated and all the evidence had still not been heard.

It was adjourned again but when time came to resume Mr. Bigelow was unable to attend because he had gone into hospital for a back ailment.

The hearing was adjourned once more and finally resumed Tuesday.

Police Planning Crackdown On Labor Day Drivers

In preparation for the three-day holiday weekend coming up with Labor Day, RCMP highway patrols will be out in force this coming weekend.

The idea is to emphasize the hazards of holiday highway travel and to curb the accident rate.

All available manpower and equipment including radar will be in use on main highways in RCMP jurisdiction.

The concentration of men and equipment is aimed at speeders, drivers who pass where unsafe, follow other autos too closely and commit other accident-causing violations.

Police suggest drivers allow themselves plenty of time to reach destinations, under-drive their physical capabilities and their cars' "roadabilities."

Private Meeting On Suspension Of Etchells

A special private meeting of Victoria city council is set for Thursday afternoon to discuss issues revolving around dismissal of Greater Victoria juvenile detention home superintendent Charles Etchells.

The move follows similar action by Saanich council, which recommends the matter for early consideration by Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee.

Meanwhile, lawyers for Mr. Etchells and his wife in a letter delivered to the mayor and city council Tuesday afternoon—with copies to councils of Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt—ask for reinstatement or full public hearing into the reasons for dismissal.

"The only other alternative is immediate legal action," declares the letter signed by Hummel and Owen-Flood.

Thieves Steal Whisky, Cash From Restaurant

City police reported this morning that two restaurants were broken into in the city overnight.

Prowlers forced a door to enter the Net Loft Restaurant where they stole a couple of bottles of whisky and about $45 in loose change.

At the Aurora Bowling Alley the thieves rifled a cigarette-vending machine and stole an undetermined amount of cash.

Ask The Times

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 25, 1965—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

A few minutes ago, I was led unerringly back to this office by William D. Small, an American tourist from St. Louis, Mo., who took time off from his holiday with wife and son to show me my home city.

If you think there's something wrong with that statement, I agree. It's us residents who are supposed to take the pilgrim from the United States in hand, straighten him out if he's lost, and direct him to various points of interest.

To have the situation reversed is more than a little confusing. It is also humbling, because I have more than a suspicion that industrial psychologist Bill Small from Missouri knows Victoria better than I do after full 14 years of living in Canada's fairest town.

What put us in touch was a piece I wrote last week about the Rolls-Royce. Bill Small, it turned out, numbers five Silver Ladies among his 15 vintage cars.

We talked about these a while; then Bill amiably undertook to show me around Victoria, a city with which he has been deep in love since he first visited here as a U.S. navy ensign in 1943.

★ ★ ★

As we headed out along Hillside in my car, visitor Small confided that he hopes one day to become a permanent resident, thereby doing away with the need for a yearly 2,600-mile trek to his land of heart's desire.

A sound idea, I agreed, then asked directions like any tourist.

"You mentioned coffee," said Bill, "so I thought we'd put in at Oak Bay." He added casually, "along Lansdowne, if you don't mind, and through on Rutland to Beach. It's the long way around, but I like that area."

Convinced that the guy knew more than any tourist from St. Louis should, I followed orders meekly, with a pause at Cattle Point to learn how livestock from San Juan Island was once put ashore there.

Over coffee for me and a soft drink for him, Bill Small filled me in on several other obscure items of local history.

"You ever see a wattle fence?" I asked.

"No," Bill said, "but I'll bet you can't take me to Willie Newcombe's old place."

So I drove him out for a look at Victoria's original ash-splint fence on Arbutus Road, then scored again, unfairly, by hitting him with the new university buildings under construction off Finnerty.

★ ★ ★

As we cut across the city, the psychologist lulled me with casual directions. "Right at the next," he would say, or "left," and his bearings were unfailingly sound.

We fooled around for awhile among the little old streets near Ogden Point.

"Right," my pilot directed—and seconds later I was backing out of a one-way street I'd never known existed.

"I guess we missed the sign," Bill said, with a bland smile that emphasized his physical resemblance to Premier Bennett. "If you're lost, call on me."

Presently we peered through the tangled shrubs at the fine old Victorian brick house where a kindly recluse lived out his life.

"Willie Newcombe used to cut old ladies' grass free," Bill informed me, "and when he died, that place was found to be stacked with about $70,000 in Indian artifacts."

Half an hour or so later, after we had attempted vainly to call on Louis the endowed parrot in his Courtney Street abode, the too-knowing tourist scored again.

"Where," he demanded, "is the drinking fountain in Centennial Square?"

"Near the big fountain," I ventured.

"Not so," came the correction. "You look at all that spouting water, and it makes you thirsty. But there's no drinking fountain, and while a visitor may be out of line in suggesting this, I think they should have one."

At this point I quit trying and let myself be guided back to the Times by a route of Victoriaphile Small's choosing. It saved us a traffic light and two blocks.

MOTHER CECILIA
. . . "no changes here"

NEW ORDER WOULD BE 'IN SPIRIT OF ECUMENICAL COUNCIL'

Defiant Nuns May Break Away From Priory

By ROGER STONEBANKS

The six nuns who run the Good Shepherd Shelter for abandoned animals may reconstitute themselves as a separate house from the priory.

Mother Cecilia Mary said this morning she cannot say whether they will separate from St. Mary's Priory in Colwood, but such a move is being considered.

At present, sisters at the shelter and the priory are members of the Order of the Love of Jesus, a group which Mother Cecilia brought into the Roman Catholic Church many years ago.

Such a separation might involve establishing a new order, but Mother Cecilia said this takes much time and in any event it is only being discussed at the moment.

The move was being contemplated following a fresh order from the Roman Catholic Church for the nuns to leave the shelter and return to the priory, or become lay persons and run the shelter.

Mother Cecilia said members of different religions have joined together to form new orders, and this might happen at the shelter.

Such a move would be in the spirit of the Ecumenical Council and is "a marvelous idea."

The church has stated it does not consider the nuns at the Metchosin shelter are leading an "accepted religious life."

"Those sisters presently working at the animal shelter cannot continue in this work," said Archbishop Sergio Pignedoli of Ottawa, the Vatican's apostolic delegate to Canada.

The nuns "must live their life in community and dedicate themselves to the work given to them by their superiors."

Mother Cecilia said the latest order—a repeat of one issued last April—will make no difference.

"We shall just go right on," declared the 76-year-old nun, a distant relative of nursing pioneer Florence Nightingale.

"There will be no changes here. This fight just increases my determination."

She said it is a matter of interpretation whether the order's general aims exclude full-time care for animals, as maintained by church leaders.

"Our order says 'any work of mercy,'" she said. "We consider this a work of mercy."

Asked why she wants to remain a nun and run the shelter, she said:

"I have been a sister since I was 19 and at 76 I see no reason to change my status.

"I intend to stay a sister the rest of my life in this world."

Mother Cecilia also disclosed these developments:

- A lawyer is putting final touches to formation of a society with her as president to run the shelter. A board of directors would take some of the work load off her and ensure continuation of the shelter "if anything happens to myself."
- She would "not be surprised" if the $500 a month allowance from the priory for the sisters at the shelter is cut off at the end of the month.

But she is not worried about this possible development because financial support has been promised by others if this happens.

- The church cannot strip the nuns of their vows unless they themselves sign papers, which they won't.

Mother Cecilia started her animal care five years ago with approval from the sisters at St. Mary's Priory and the blessing of the late Bishop James Hill of Victoria.

A place was established in Saanich and two years ago the nuns moved to a 24-acre property at 3842 Duke Road near Albert Head.

Funds for the $75,000 shelter came from an inheritance of Mother Cecilia's and donations from animal lovers.

The church's latest order expressed the hope the nuns will follow the directive. If not, then ecclesiastical authority will reconsider their official status within the church as sisters.

Bishop Remi De Roo of the Victoria diocese said this leaves the next move up to Rome.

Escapee Caught At Campbell R.

Police Find Teen-Ager Hiding Under Log After Chase, Crash

The second escapee from Colquitz Jail was recaptured Tuesday after a wild car chase through Campbell River.

Rubin Wallace, 19, was re-arrested after being at large for 22 hours. He was driving a stolen car when caught, police said.

Wallace and another prisoner got away from the jail at 1:30 Monday afternoon. The other escapee gave himself up after wandering in the rain for 12 hours without leaving the jail property.

Campbell River RCMP spotted Wallace in a car shortly before noon Tuesday. They gave chase and Wallace raced through the village in an attempt to get away.

RAN AWAY

Police said speeds in the chase reached 90 m.p.h. at some points. Wallace's vehicle went off the road into swampy bush and Wallace jumped out and ran away.

He was found by police hiding under a log some distance off the road. Police said he had a change of clothes from those he was wearing when he escaped.

Saanich police are investigating Wallace as a suspect in two break-ins overnight Monday when a car was stolen from Suburban Motors and cash was taken from a service station.

Wallace may also face charges in Campbell River in connection with his driving.

Beer Stocks Good for Few More Days

Home deliveries of beer have ended except for those with advance orders.

But liquor stores and beer parlors in Victoria reported today they still have stocks on hand.

Beer drinkers here found themselves in a better situation than those in Vancouver, where 30 taverns closed Tuesday when beer ran out.

Closure of another 92 pubs in the Vancouver area is threatened by the end of the week, which would leave more than 1,000 beer parlor employees jobless.

NO TALKS

No talks were contemplated between the 500 striking members of the United Brewery Workers of America and seven breweries and warehouses in Victoria and Vancouver.

A spokesman for Local 513 of the Beverage Dispensers Union said the strike hasn't affected Victoria's 20-odd taverns yet.

He added that about 100 men will be affected when stocks run out, but some of them may find work if cocktail bars experience an upsurge of business.

WEEK'S SUPPLY

Beer parlors indicated they have as much as a week's supply on hand.

Liquor stores reported a steady demand for beer, but have sufficient stocks for at least a few days.

Pacific Brewers Warehousing, which makes the home deliveries, said it only has enough beer to meet advance orders.

The company is involved in the strike, but the union agreed to continue home deliveries until supplies ran out.

Other companies hit by the strike are Lucky Lager in Victoria and New Westminster; Carling's, Molson's, O'Keefe and Pacific Delivery Service.

Murder Trial Goes To Assizes

Janitor Dozes As Hearing On Freschi Killing Nears End

David Robinson will stand trial at the Fall Assizes for the capital murder of Susan Freschi.

The 24-year-old janitor was formally committed this morning for trial after a preliminary hearing of the charge before Magistrate William Ostler.

Susan Freschi was a 14-year-old California girl who came here last fall to attend school in Victoria. She was the victim of a sex-slaying near her home May 11.

Robinson apparently dozed for 45 minutes Tuesday when the preliminary hearing of the charge resumed in Colwood court.

HEAD IN HANDS

The accused man sat in the dock between two policemen. Most of the time he sat with his head in his hands.

But after a while he appeared to have fallen asleep. His head was down on his chest and he was breathing heavily. This went on for 45 minutes when he again looked up and opened his eyes.

The Crown closed its case Tuesday and the case was adjourned overnight for further legal argument. Crown prosecutor is W. R. McIntyre, assisted by David Wilson. Defence counsel is Alan Bigelow.

SAYS NOTHING

When Magistrate Ostler summed up on the legal points today he asked Robinson, "Do you want to say anything?"

Mr. Bigelow replied that his client did not. He also said the defence did not want to call witnesses at this stage.

The fall assizes open Nov. 8. At that time the date for Robinson's trial will be set.

Susan Freschi's body was found in a clearing in woods near her home in View Royal May 12, the day after she was reported missing.

Robinson was charged with the murder two weeks later. The preliminary hearing was adjourned several times to allow the Crown to prepare technical evidence in the case.

Then, when the hearing finally got under way, it took up four days which was longer than anticipated and all the evidence had still not been heard.

It was adjourned again but when time came to resume Mr. Bigelow was unable to attend because he had gone into hospital for a back ailment.

The hearing was adjourned once more and finally resumed Tuesday.

Private Meeting On Suspension Of Etchells

A special private meeting of Victoria city council is set for Thursday afternoon to discuss issues revolving around dismissal of Greater Victoria juvenile detention home superintendent Charles Etchells.

The move follows similar action by Saanich council, which recommends the matter for early consideration by Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee.

Meanwhile, lawyers for Mr. Etchells and his wife in a letter delivered to the mayor and city council Tuesday afternoon—with copies to councils of Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt—ask for reinstatement or full public hearing into the reasons for dismissal.

"The only other alternative is immediate legal action," declares the letter signed by Hummel and Owen-Flood.

'NDP RIGHT'

Medicare Subsidies Going Up

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan today said a statement by Premier Bennett proved the B.C. Medical Plan is inadequate.

He was referring to the premier's announcement Tuesday night in Powell River that the government intends to increase subsidies on premiums paid by persons with low incomes.

The premier did not disclose how much would be added to the present subsidies of 50 per cent for subscribers with no taxable income and 25 per cent for those with less than $1,000 taxable income.

'WE WERE RIGHT'

"He's finding out we were right when we said the plan as he proposed it at the last session would not work," commented the New Democratic Party leader.

"People on low incomes would have to take the bread out of their children's mouths to pay their share of the premiums and they're just not doing it," Mr. Strachan said.

"We said it would happen and I'm not a bit surprised. I'm of the opinion that there should be no premiums of any kind.

"Medicare is a necessity for every citizen and we have so much money in this province now that low income groups should not have to pay for it.

'NO BARRIERS'

"There should be no financial barriers between a patient and his doctor."

Mr. Bennett's prediction of higher subsidies follows recent disclosure that about 100,000 persons are expected to be covered by the government-medical insurance plan.

This is far short of the 450,000 the premier told the legislature needed coverage which would be provided by the government insurance plan with the help of premium subsidies.

Government officials have declined to reveal how many of the BCMP subscriptions involve subsidies.

Long Trip To Protest Weed-Killer

A Burns Lake couple arrived in Victoria today to protest the use of weed-killer in their neighborhood by the B.C. Telephone Company and the B.C. Highways Department.

They claim this is a breach of the Pharmacy Act and will take their complaint to the provincial health department.

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Sisson, who own 65 acres of woodland at Burns Lake, claim that their trees have already suffered from the spraying of weed-killer by the telephone company.

"This indiscriminate spraying has also damaged roses and plants in the area," Mr. Sisson said, "and some of the drinking water has been spoiled.

ARSON BLAMED IN BUSH FIRE

British Columbia's forest fire situation continued to improve today with hazard ratings listed as low throughout the province except on the northern coast where it ranged from medium to high.

One of the seven new fires reported overnight to the B.C. forest service was blamed on arson. The blaze at Lake Cowichan was quickly put out.

Ottawa May Buy Nematode Farms Here

Saanich potato farms infested with golden nematode may be bought by the federal government.

The proposal is being discussed in Ottawa to compensate growers who can't economically grow crops other than potatoes on their lands, a government spokesman said today.

The pest which attacks potato and tomato plants has been found here and in the McHugh Valley on the east side of the Patricia Bay Highway—a major potato growing area.

Nine properties have been found to be infested.

Meanwhile, plant experts are confident that nematodes exist nowhere else in B.C.

Dr. Phillip Campbell in charge of the nematode program, said there is no evidence of infestation on Vancouver Island north of the Malahat or on the mainland.

"We have taken thousands of soil samples," he said. These areas outside Saanich have been found free of nematodes."

Holstein Breeders In the Black

Lower island Holstein breeders won't be in the red when they return from the Pacific National Exhibition at the end of the week with their black and white beasts.

Four district farms are exhibiting in the Holstein dairy section at the big mainland fair this week (beef breed are featured next week) and all have come up with ribbons.

What is considered the top award has been won by William Taylor of Saanwood Farm, McIntyre Road, Saanichton. His four-year-old bull, Acme Snowden Baron, purchased two years ago in Alberta, was named grand champion Holstein male. And his Saanwood Pacemaker Prince won the reserve junior bull championship.

The Saanwood Farm also has collected numerous other awards along with Gordon Rendle and Bert Youle, also of Saanichton, and J. S. Judge and Sons Jagar Farm on outer Burnside Road.

Police Planning Crackdown On Labor Day Drivers

In preparation for the three-day holiday weekend coming up with Labor Day, RCMP highway patrols will be out in force this coming weekend.

The idea is to emphasize the hazards of holiday highway travel and to curb the accident rate.

All available manpower and equipment including radar will be in use on main highways in RCMP jurisdiction.

The concentration of men and equipment is aimed at speeders, drivers who pass where unsafe, follow other autos too closely and commit other accident-causing violations.

Police suggest drivers allow themselves plenty of time to reach destinations, under-drive their physical capabilities and their cars' "roadabilities."

Thieves Steal Whisky, Cash From Restaurant

City police reported this morning that two restaurants were broken into in the city overnight.

Prowlers forced a door to enter the Net Loft Restaurant where they stole a couple of bottles of whisky and about $45 in loose change.

At the Aurora Bowling Alley the thieves rifled a cigarette-vending machine and stole an undetermined amount of cash.

Pearson Lands Three, Bobbles Three More

Prime Minister Pearson caught three salmon on a three-hour fishing trip this morning at Brentwood Bay before leaving by air for Vancouver and a Liberal party rally in the evening.

One weighed four pounds and the other two were three pounds. He hooked three bigger fish but they got away.

The prime minister and Mrs. Pearson were the guests for two days of Mrs. W. C. Woodward at Woodwynn Farm overlooking Saanich Inlet.

"These have been two of the happiest and most restful days in my life and I am overjoyed by the beauty of the inlet," he said.

Tuesday, he visited Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes at Government House for lunch. An aide said it was a time for the two couples to get together.

NEW PROGRAM

Meanwhile, a federal program of capital assistance to develop pleasure-craft harbors was announced in a Vancouver release from Mr. Pearson.

The announcement said marine facilities for commercial navigation are often crowded and unsuitable for the growing numbers of small craft on coasts and inland lakes.

The program will concentrate on such navigation facilities as breakwaters, protection works and dredging.

Federal help will depend on a commitment by local interests to develop wharves, roads, services, marinas and living accommodation as necessary.

"Harbors of refuge" would be established to help boats along unprotected sections of coastal waters.

Ask The Times

RED MISSILE AGAIN DOWNS U.S. PLANE

FREIGHTERS COLLIDE IN RACE ROCKS FOG

The 7,448-ton freighter Don Ramon put into Esquimalt dry dock for repairs this afternoon after colliding in dense fog only a few hours earlier.

The freighter, which grazed against the 7,257-ton Diamantis off Race Rocks in Juan de Fuca Strait, had only superficial damage.

After patch-up work it will continue the journey from Japan to Vancouver.

Gemini Flight Nears Record

★ ★ ★

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The Gemini 5 astronauts, their beards itchy and their cramped space cabin cluttered, set a U.S. space endurance record today and took aim on the Soviet-held world record for a single flight.

They eclipsed the 97-hour, 59-minute record of Gemini 4 at 11:59 a.m. EDT. They have a go-ahead to pass the world record of nearly five days at 9:06 a.m. Thursday.

Comfortable in their cramped, weightless quarters, the two spacemen appeared sure to ride the skies the full eight days.

Meanwhile, the Gemini 5 astronauts did some light housekeeping in their cabin and kept a sharp eye on the earth for details of human activity.

Pilot Charles Conrad Jr., a navy lieutenant - commander spotted the wake of the aircraft carrier Lake Champlain which is scheduled to recover the astronauts from the sea Sunday.

Conrad's excited voice announced: "He's at 12 o'clock. I can see him turning. Bigger than heck. We got him in sight this time."

"Roger, I knew an old carrier pilot could find the carrier," said capsule communicator James A. McDivitt. "Very good."

Conrad made his first carrier landing in June, 1955, on the deck of the Lake Champlain. He'll be aiming for it again when the eight-day flight ends.

Command pilot L. Gordon Cooper Jr. long before had logged enough hours in space to claim the world record in that department. His wife, Trudy, relayed her congratulations to him in space.

The world record for a single flight is held by Soviet cosmonaut Valery Bykovsky who orbited the earth for 119 hours and six minutes beginning June 14, 1963.

Their beards itchy and their small space cabin showing some of the clutter of four days of occupancy, the astronauts discussed with doctors on the

Space Twins Take Spy Films, Soviet Claim

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A Russian newspaper suggested today the two U.S. astronauts aboard Gemini 5 may be busy taking spy pictures of Cuba, North Viet Nam and Communist China.

Red Star, official organ of the defence ministry, made the charge to support its claim that the United States space program was heavily geared to military needs.

"American propaganda praises the scientific aims of the Gemini program and tries to conceal its military character, but these attempts are futile," Red Star said. "The real purpose of the program is obvious."

Red Star said long-range cameras aboard could provide detailed photographs of cities, railways, ports and ships, and the astronauts were also equipped to "carry out visual intelligence."

Meanwhile, President Johnson today offered the Soviet Academy of Science an invitation to observe the October launching of the Gemini 6 space capsule.

The president told a press conference that he had directed space administrator James E. Webb to invite the academy to send a high-level representative to the space shot—one of whose goals is a rendezvous with an orbiting satellite.

Johnson said he hoped the Russians would accept the invitation, and that their representative would get a warm welcome.

ARTIST'S CONCEPTION of manned orbiting laboratory revealed by President Johnson at his news conference today is shown. It will be lifted into orbit by Titan booster. (AP Wirephoto.)

Johnson Orders 'Go' On Space Laboratory

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson today ordered the defence department to build a $1.5 billion orbiting space laboratory to be launched in 1968 with two men aboard.

In a statement read at his news conference, Johnson said the manned orbiting laboratory (MOL) "will bring us new knowledge about what man is able to do in space" and "will enable us to relate that ability to the defence of the nation."

As presently conceived, the MOL will be a big cylinder about the size of a house trailer in which two men will live and perform experiments in space for two weeks to a month.

Johnson again committed the United States never to put weapons of mass destruction into orbit. He said "we believe the heavens belong to all the people" of the world.

The MOL on which the U.S. is now proceeding is intended to test man's ability to do useful work in space.

It will be launched by a Titan 3-C rocket, the most powerful booster yet developed by the United States. The crew will ride into space aboard a modified Gemini spacecraft developed by National Aeronautics and Space Administration for its current pre-lunar flight program.

The Gemini spacecraft will be attached to one end of the laboratory and the two will go into orbit together. Once in orbit, the two crew members will crawl from the Gemini into the lab. When the time comes for them to return to earth, they will crawl back into the Gemini, cut loose and descend the way NASA's Gemini pilots do.

Final decision to go ahead with the MOL had been long delayed. The project first was initiated in 1963 when the defence department abandoned its Dyna-Soar space glider project. But until today it had never got out of the planning and design stage.

The military is particularly interested in finding out just what men can do over long periods aboard a spacecraft. Some of the current Gemini experiments are designed to that end.

Some of the military questions are concerned with man's ability to spot, identify, and track other spacecraft, which might be hostile, and with his ability to identify, place, and photograph structures such as rail lines, cities, and air fields on the surface of the earth.

Eventually, experts have said, the U.S. must have the ability to approach, inspect, and if necessary, capture or destroy enemy spacecraft.

The president said unmanned flights to test launching, recovery, and other fundamental aspects of the MOL system will begin late next year or early in 1967.

The first manned launch of a fully-equipped MOL is scheduled for 1968. Johnson said this flight with men aboard will be folowed in the same year by five others.

Court Watchdog Sought by MLA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ernie LeCours, Social Credit MLA for Delta, said today he is seeking money to finance an organization called Defenders Unlimited to watch over lower courts in British Columbia.

He called for 1,000 members of the public to contribute $1 each to set up the organization.

If the money is collected by Sept. 21, he said, he would contribute $500 to the fund, but will drop the idea if less than 1,000 people are interested.

At the last session of the legislature, Mr. LeCours sharply criticized B.C.'s courts.

"I received a large volume of mail in support of my contentions," he said.

Seadog Learns New Trixie

Trixie, a lop-eared cocker spaniel, was safe home today after spending 20 hours alone at sea.

Still trying to find her land legs, the two-year-old pet was reunited Tuesday night with the five pups she last saw Saturday.

It was only by a stroke of luck that Trixie was ever able to see her 10-week-old family again.

On Saturday she tumbled into the water while sailing with owners, George and Dora Storrie, of 1871 Allenby, Oak Bay.

They were on a cruise from Sidney to their summer cottage on Pender Island at the time.

It wasn't until the 19-foot outboard, the Sir Bouncealot, reached Pender that they noticed Trixie missing.

Fearing the worst, they searched the Fairfax Point area for three hours.

There was no sign of Trixie.

Tuesday they inserted a newspaper advertisement in the hope that Trixie might have paddled to shore.

It was a very different story they heard from the couple who answered the ad.

Dr. Robert Talbot, aboard the pleasure cruiser "Tera," found Trixie Sunday five miles south of the point where she was lost—floating on a raft.

Through his binoculars he spotted the black and white dog sitting forlornly on the raft, five miles from the nearest land.

Since then, the family, who are visiting Victoria from Seattle, have fed and cared for Trixie.

In return for saving the family pet, Mr. Storrie is presenting the Talbot family with one of the pups.

STETTLER GROUNDS IN ESQUIMALT HARBOR

Naval authorities reported the ocean-escort HMCS Stettler ran aground in Esquimalt Harbor at noon today without apparent damage.

The ship overshot its jetty and grounded on a mudbank near HMCS Venture float. Two anchors were dropped to slow the headway.

Stettler was refloated after about 20 minutes and with the aid of tugs was taken alongside HMCS Sussexvale at C2 jetty.

Preliminary examination showed no leaks or damage. Naval authorities have started an investigation. The ship's commander is Lt.-Cmdr. T. A. Irvine.

Mushroom Cloud Marks Blasts

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Dozens of violent explosions ripped through a Du Pont Chemical Corp. plant five miles from downtown Louisville today.

Authorities evacuated everyone from a two-mile radius in fear a huge tank of vinyl chloride would explode.

Jefferson County police said at least one person was killed. A fire captain said four persons were killed and 17 injured, but this could not be confirmed.

The explosions sent towering mushroom clouds of black smoke into the air, shattered dozens of windows in buildings and could be heard 10 miles away. Periodic blasts could be heard for more than two hours.

WITHDREW

All available emergency equipment from the city and county was rushed to the scene shortly after the first series of blasts, at about 10 a.m.

But the explosions continued to rock the area and authorities ordered the firemen and police to withdraw.

Police ordered the evacuation of everyone within a two-mile area of the plant in fear that liquid vinyl chloride would explode. Estimates of the tank's capacity ranged up to a half-million gallons.

Commercial air traffic was warned to bypass the area.

Mobile Launch Deadly

SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. spokesman announced today a U.S. Navy Phantom jet was downed by what appeared to be a surface-to-air missile Tuesday about 90 miles south of Hanoi. One crew member is presumed dead, the other missing.

It was in the same general area Tuesday that North Vietnamese gunners felled a U.S. Air Force F-105 Thunderchief, one of a four-plane force attacking an airfield under construction 20 miles west of the city of Thanh Hoa. The helicopter rescued the Thunderchief pilot.

The spokesman said the Phantom, a supersonic plane from the 7th Fleet carrier Midway, was hit near Thanh Hoa.

The downing was the first indication that Communist anti-aircraft missiles have been moved as far south as Thanh Hoa. It seemed likely that the missile was fired from a mobile launcher.

One parachute was seen after the Phantom was hit, but search and rescue operations failed to locate the American airman. The other crew member is presumed dead, the spokesman said.

Two other American planes have been downed in the last month by missiles which Soviet technicians are presumed to have installed in North Viet Nam. U.S. officials think Russian personnel are helping to man the missile launchers.

A U.S. Air Force Phantom was downed by a missile northwest of Hanoi July 24, and a navy Skyhawk was shot down Aug. 12 about 50 miles south-southwest of the North Vietnamese capital.

SHERIFF SUIT NO GAME, LAD CAPTURES BURGLAR

LONDON (AP)—An 11-year-old boy has been praised in court for playing sheriff and actually getting his man.

The boy is Barry Youngs of nearby Clacton-on-Sea.

"He found a real crime and tackled it like a real sheriff," prosecutor Thomas Lavelle told the court Tuesday.

It began when, dressed up in his sheriff's uniform, complete with badge, Barry spotted three men breaking into a house.

First, he went home to tell his mother to telephone police, giving her the address of the house the trio entered. Then he hid in some bushes near the house. As the three men came out of the house, they split up. Barry couldn't keep track of them all—because he had no deputies—so he followed one of them.

"Barry trailed the villain," said the prosecutor. "He trailed him for over two miles, hiding behind bushes and trees, telephone boxes, booths and slipping in and out of shop doorways."

BARRY
. . . relentless

The man must have seen the sheriff trailing him, for he broke into a run. Barry ran too, but was soon outdistanced.

"Staying after his man, he went to the police station and told the detectives there he could spot the man. They put him in a car, toured the seafront—and Barry saw him."

In court was Raymond Brent, 22, who, the Royal Navy said, was absent without leave. Brent pleaded guilty to breaking into the house but said he stole nothing. He was put on probation and held until the navy comes to get him.

Of the young sheriff the prosecutor summed up:

"It was very public-spirited of this boy and I would like to say how much we appreciate what he did."

Said Barry:

"It was a pity I didn't have my handcuffs with me. I just dream of making an arrest."

Plot Foiled To Kill FDR Soviet Claims

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet magazine Ogonyok claims Soviet intelligence foiled a Nazi plot to liquidate U.S. President Roosevelt, British Prime Minister Churchill and Soviet Premier Stalin at the Tehran conference.

The account says an 18-year-old Soviet spy, a girl, found out about the plot from an important Nazi spy who promised to bring her some Persian rugs after his next job, in November, 1943, the time set for the conference.

The magazine gives this account:

The Germans dubbed their plot The Remote Leap and planned to send a plane-load of paratroopers from Copenhagen to Tehran. Roosevelt was their principal target.

"We will come to agreement with the English and Americans sooner or later," a Nazi agent was to have reported said, adding that without Roosevelt it would be easier to get an agreement with the Americans.

KILLED SPIES

Following the tip from the girl, Soviet counter - espionage agents poured into the Iranian capital, killed several Germans and persuaded Roosevelt to move from the American Embassy to a house in the Soviet Embassy compound which could be protected better.

The British Embassy, where Churchill was staying, was near the Russian compound and a special Soviet guard was put around it.

"Thus Soviet intelligence men cut the Remote Leap of Hitler's intelligence service," Ogonyok said.

The story is part of a report on activities of Nikmlai Kuznetsov, a Soviet spy who worked his way into the confidence of a Nazi espionage ring based in Western Russia while it was occupied by the Germans.
